Two community programs offer free Thanksgiving meals

AEBRA COE/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Line cooks Kyle Heid (left) and Carrie Beemon with Stafford's Weathervane in Charlevoix prepare dinners for Stafford's Neighbors in Need program, which sends out Thanksgiving dinners to area families.

In the spirit of the holiday, Charlevoix offers two opportunities for free Thanksgiving dinners this week with the hope of ensuring everyone will be able to celebrate the holiday with a full stomach.

Neighbors in Need

Stafford's Weathervane in Charlevoix organizes a Thanksgiving dinner which is slightly different, called Neighbors in Need. Ingredients and funds are donated to the restaurant, and then full Thanksgiving dinners are cooked on site and presented hot to families in need.

This is the third year site manager Jeff Spreckself has been organizing the community Thanksgiving. Last year, they were able to serve 40 families through the program at the Weathervane.

Spreckself said the program was preceded by a well-established Neighbors in Need effort at Stafford's Pier restaurant in Harbor Springs. Eight years ago, employees at the Pier teamed with their guests to create the program. Last year, the Pier served 72 families a traditional Thanksgiving dinner.

Spreckself said employees of the restaurant donate their money and time to pull off the event. Spreckself delivers some of the meals and others are picked up on Thanksgiving Day.

"They're all cooked, hot and ready to go in a large box," he said.

They get names of families in need from the local school district and the Manna Food Project. Each family receives a 13-pound turkey, mashed potatoes, gravy, dressing, squash, cranberry relish, sourdough bread and a pumpkin or apple pie.

"It's a lot of food. It can feed six to eight people," said Spreckself. "We have seen need increasing with the economy down."

He said that with each $125 donated to Neighbors in Need, they are able to prepare and deliver one of the dinners.

For more information, or to donate, call Spreckself at (231) 547-4311.

Charlevoix Ministerial Association

The Charlevoix Ministerial Association will host a community Thanksgiving dinner noon-3 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 24, at the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix, located across from the post office.

This is the fifth year the association has put on a dinner and the location usually varies from year to year.

Event organizer Dennis Halverson said he and his wife, Joy, were helping at a community dinner in Petoskey and there was enough demand for it that he thought a dinner in Charlevoix was needed.

The first year they hosted the dinner, they had close to a hundred people show up. Last year, that number nearly doubled.

"We are hugely supported by volunteers. Putting this together is a group effort," he said.

About 50 volunteers help out with setting up and cooking, and restaurants donate instruments and some ingredients.

"I'm happy we're able to do it and appreciative of all the help we receive," Halverson said.

The main financial support for the dinner is from the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and the venue is provided by the association each year.

Halverson said that if anyone wants to come, all they have to do is show up.

"There's more than enough food for everybody," he noted.

This year, Charlevoix Cab is providing free rides to and from the meal. For more information or to volunteer, call (231) 547-4813.

Rayders fall to Eagles on Quiz Central

The Carson City/Crystal Eagles defeated the Charlevoix Rayders in an all-new "Quiz Central" Blue Division First Round Game, with a final score of 250 to 70. The Eagles will now move on to a Blue Division Second Round game, inching their way closer to the division championship and ultimately the Quiz Central Grand Championship game.

At 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 26, the East Jordan Red Devils take on the Meridian Mustangs.

See an encore presentation of both the game at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 27.

Quiz Central's seventh season features forty-eight teams from high schools around Michigan. Tune in to CMU Public Television for new games at 7:30 p.m. each Wednesday and at 5:30 p.m. Saturday (plus, a special repeat broadcast of both of the week's games on Sundays at 2 p.m.)

Teams compete on "Quiz Central" in four divisions, based on school size. Division champions will be awarded four $2,500 one-year scholarships to Central Michigan University. Again this season, "Quiz Central" is offering five textbook scholarships to seniors planning to attend Central Michigan University. The textbook scholarships are provided by The CMU Bookstore.

CMU Public Television includes WCML Channel 6 Alpena, WCMU Channel 14 Mt. Pleasant, WCMW Channel 21 Manistee, WCMV Channel 27 Cadillac and WCMZ Channel 28 Flint.

Library to host 'Gifts with a Purpose' event

With the holiday gift-giving season about to jump into full swing, the Charlevoix Public Library will host an event for those looking for a way to give a gift that makes a difference.

The event, dubbed, Gifts with a Purpose: An Alternative Gift Fair, will focus on helping the community and people in need, just-in-time for the holiday season. The fair will take place 10 a.m.–2 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 3, at the Charlevoix Public Library. The fair, which focuses on 100 percent Charlevoix organizations, is an opportunity for community members and businesses to "shop" non-profit organizations, making donations in honor of people on gift lists.

There are a dozen organizations participating in this year's fair that meet the immediate needs of the community. When a shopper comes into the fair, they will be greeted by an organization representative and receive a list of suggested giving levels. Then the shopper may go around and learn about the organizations and how they help the community. Each organization will have suggested gift donations, and how those donations specifically help. For example, a $50 donation to the Outreach Food Pantry will provide meals for a family of four for one month or a $10 donation to the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library will purchase one book for the youth department.

Once the shopper decides what to purchase, he or she will receive a gift card that can be mailed or given out to their loved ones.

"My children loved buying their holiday gifts for their teachers at the Alternative Gift Fair in Harbor Springs, said Valerie Meyerson, co-organizer and director of the Charlevoix Public Library. "The teachers truly appreciated the gift that kept on giving."

Meyerson said she is excited to bring this type of fair to Charlevoix because, "The spirit of the event embodies the holiday spirit as well as the atmosphere of Charlevoix itself."

Cheri Hoffman, event co-organizer and executive director of Hospice of Northwest Michigan, is also looking forward to the event because, "it doubles the act of giving – it is a unique alternative to buying a gift and at the same time can change the life of someone right here in the community."

The organizations involved in the Gifts with a Purpose Fair include: B.A.S.E.S. Teen Center, Bergmann Center, Inc., Charlevoix Area Community Pool, Charlevoix Historical Society, Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, Charlevoix Area Humane Society, Charlevoix Community Christmas Project, Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation, Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library, Hospice of Northwest Michigan, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, and Third Day Fellowship & Outreach Food Pantry.

Snacks will be available to purchase through the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library. All of the snack proceeds go to support collections and programming for the youth department of the library. For further information about the fair, contact one of the co-organizers: Cheri Hoffman at (231) 547-7659 or Val Meyerson at (231) 547-2651.

Operation Christmas

For the past several years, the students at St. Mary School have participated in Operation Christmas Child. Again this year, students at the school are sharing their treasures with the less fortunate children around the world. Since the start of the project in 1993, Operation Christmas Child has delivered more than 61 million gift-filled shoe boxes to needy children in third-world countries. During distribution, children are offered "The Greatest Gift of All" Gospel storybooks about the life of Christ. Pictured above with some of the items collected for the program are, front (from left), Braeden Clark, Evan Beano, Sam Dixon, Audrey Thompson; back (from left), Cami Closson, Abrianna Scafidi, Audrey Dishinger and Grace Ward.

Northwest band gets the show on the road

The Northwest Academy Advanced Band traveled to Marquette on Oct. 28, to play a concert at North Star Academy in Marquette and tour the Northern Michigan University campus.

Band director Gary Stutzman said the band performed a rousing concert for the middle and high school student body as well as the beginning band students that have just began their band classes very recently. North Star Charter Academy is one of only three charter schools in the Upper Peninsula and the concert did a great deal to highlight the importance of bringing an instrumental band program to their campus, Stutzman said. The school currently has a beginning strings program that meets after school.

The Northwest band concluded its concert and traveled to the university campus and were treated to lunch in the university student center and then took a walking tour of the campus as well as a personal tour of the new music school building.

After an overnight stay, the Northwest band attended the band day rehearsal inside the Superior Dome and then participated with 10 other schools in an on-field half time performance. The band shared the field with more than 500 other school musicians and also attended rehearsals of outstanding marching bands as well as the NMU Wildcat Band under the field direction of drum major Lance Dubay, a former member of the Petoskey Northmen Marching Band.

Stutzman offered his thanks to the chaperones and the First Congregational Church for the use of their van for transportation.

Holly Daze are here again

Santa Claus is coming to Holly Daze this year — in fact, that's the theme of the entire event. He's bringing an evening of joy and treats for everyone who attends.

Tickets are still available to the 19th annual Holly Daze fundraiser hosted by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation. This year's event will take place at 5:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2, at Castle Farms.

The evening begins with a silent auction and cocktails, followed by a seated dinner catered by Grey Gables Restaurant and the live auction.

Organizers said there's something for everyone at this year's silent auction, with more than 180 items at a wide-range of price points. Artful displays include everything from original artwork to chandeliers, a charcoal grill, a tube for summer boaters, gift certificates, home service packages, and much more.

For the live auction, guests will start off bidding for a truly local experience — snipping off Kirby Dipert's ponytail. The local business owner has grown out his locks and is granting the honors of cutting them to the highest bidder. A few of the other live auction items include a full-length fur coat made from coyote and fox, a farm-to-table dinner for 10 featuring local ingredients prepared by a professional chef, and a Detroit team sports package for tickets to Tigers, Lions, and Red Wings games. And for the art lovers in the crowd, local artist Todd Warner has donated his "Blue is Beautiful" whimsical bird sculpture to add to the evening's offerings.

Proceeds from the event will provide support for the new school nurse program, which is placing qualified, professional health care providers into local school districts. The program is off to a great start, and additional funds will ensure its continued progress.

"People love to give to the hospital, and they love to come together to celebrate the holidays. This is a wonderful opportunity to do both," foundation executive director Lyn Jenks said. "We are so excited about this event. It is always such fun for everyone involved." For more information about Holly Daze or to make a reservation, call the foundation at (231) 547-8502. To learn more about Charlevoix Area Hospital, visit the website, www.cah.org, or call (231) 547-4024.

Retired sheriff putting skills to use

JENNIFER RICHARDSON
NEWS-REVIEW

HORTON BAY George Thomas Lasater retired from his position as Charlevoix County's sheriff after 32 years at the end of 2008, but he isn't willing to give up the pursuit of justice.

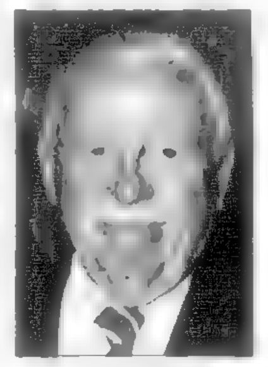
Lasater recently opened a private investigation business, Up North Investigations, based in the Horton Bay area.

"It's a way of helping folks," Lasater said

Helping people has been a theme throughout Lasater's adult life. After completing college, Lasater taught for six years, coached football, and later worked as a counselor and a probation officer, before becoming a police officer. Lasater hopes he can continue to serve the public good as a professional investigator.

In the last few months, Lasater has worked nearly 40 cases, ranging from aiding clients in navigating friend-of-the-court proceedings to cold cases to situations arising from online, overseas dating.

Lasater says that compared to police work, professional investigators are more limited in the ways they can access information.



Lasater

"You don't have as many tools at your disposal Everything that I have to look at is public record," Lasater said

However, he has found that his local connections provide an excellent source of information. Even though he is no longer sheriff, Lasater says people still contact him with concerns and tips.

Lasater has also developed his research skills through his interest in local history. He has published one book on the contribution Charlevoix County residents made to the war effort during World War II, and expects another volume, focusing on the area's contributions during World War I, will be available within a few more weeks. Lasater also has finished a large majority of the work on a memoir of his years as a sheriff.

Lasater is licensed as a professional investigator through the state of Michigan, and charges for his work based on ability to pay. For more information, contact Lasater at (231) 582-7001.

Girl Scouts give back

Nearly 100 Charlevoix County Girl Scouts and their families packed the Charlevoix Cinema III on Sunday to attend a service-area wide movie event, combined with a food pantry donation drive. Girls from Charlevoix, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, and East Jordan gathered to watch Happy Feet 2 and donate non-perishable food items to the two Charlevoix food pantries in anticipation of the Thanksgiving holiday. Attending a movie in November in combination with the food pantry donation has been an annual event for the Girl Scouts for several years.

Rayders' ride ends a little too soon

Record-setting season ends at state semifinals

STEVE FOLEY
SPORTS WRITER

BATTLE CREEK — They had all the momentum, all the fan support, and all the drive and determination you could ask for.

Unfortunately for the Charlevoix High School volleyball team, the one thing the Rayders didn't have was an answer for a just-as-determined Morley-Stanwood team and Miss Volleyball runner-up Alexis Huntey.

Playing in their first-ever Class C state semifinal match, the Rayders fell to the Mowhaks in three straight sets, 25-19, 25-22, 25-12, Friday at Kellogg Arena in Battle Creek.

Morley-Stanwood went on to claim the state championship Saturday with a 25-22, 26-28, 25-22, 24-26, 15-12, win over defending champion Monroe St. Mary Catholic Central in a thrilling five-setter. The Mohawks, who were ranked second, finished 58-4-2.

The Mohawks, who also won a Class C state title in 2007, put an end to Charlevoix's dream season, a season which saw the Rayders finish with a school-best record 49-5-6 and earn the program's first-ever regional title.

The Rayders also earned Lake Michigan Conference and district championships this season.

"I thought this was a once-in-a-lifetime experience, especially for the seniors who've helped build this program," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said moments following Friday's loss. "Hopefully, this experience will just keep us going and moving forward."

After topping Houghton on their home court two days earlier in a state quarterfinal match, the Rayders went up against an experienced Mohawk team that featured the 6-foot-2 Huntey, who'll join Miss Volleyball winner Maddy Doyle of Farmington Hills Mercy at George Washington University next season.

Huntey dominated the match at the net with 19 kills and also sparked an 11-0 Mohawk rally in the third set with five aces.

"I thought they served the ball really well on us," Shaw said. "We had a hard time on serve receive communicating and we just made a lot of errors. We just made a lot of uncharacteristic errors and we let them go on runs. You just can't let those runs happen because good teams like them will take advantage, and that's what they did."

The Mohawks finished with 10 aces, including six from Huntey, while the Rayders finished with five.

"We wanted to be aggressive on serving and we wanted to make (Charlevoix) pass well," Morley-Stanwood coach Robin Kozuch said. "Even though Charlevoix was ahead at several times here and there, our girls were really good at not getting down and we're used to fighting back."

The Rayders started strong and built a 4-1 lead in the opening set behind a pair of Jenna Way aces, but the Mohawks tied the game at 7-all on a Huntey ace. They took an 8-7 lead following a Rayder attacking error.

Charlevoix then regained the lead at 16-15 after a Megan Peters kill, but the Mohawks reeled off four straight points to make it 19-16, and then closed out the set with a 4-1 run with two kills apiece from Bailey Cairnduff and Brett Chesebro.

"We'd allow them to score four points here and there and (Cairnduff) and (Huntey) did a good job of attacking and hitting," Shaw said. "They just did a lot better job of passing the ball than we did."

In the second set, Charlevoix built a 12-7 advantage and then a 17-12 cushion, but couldn't put the Mohawks away. With Kayla Rosman at the service line, the Mohawks rolled off nine straight points — three of which came on Rosman aces — to take a 22-18 lead. Morley-Stanwood then took a 2-0 lead in the match behind another Cairnduff kill.

In the third set, Charlevoix took an early 5-4 advantage, but Huntey went on her tear at the service line, recording five aces during a 13-0 spurt.

"I felt like the girls were getting frustrated with each other and playing out of frustration is not a good way to win," Shaw said.

Also for the Mohawks, who earlier this season defeated the Rayders in the semifinals at their own tournament, Cairnduff finished with 14 kills, nine assists and six digs, while Chesebro added 10 kills and seven digs. Melissa Holland added 22 assists, while Huntey also collected a team-high 13 digs.

"The girls really wanted it this year and we felt we were capable of getting to the finals as long as we played as well as we could play," Kozuch said. "We played Charlevoix earlier in the year and beat them and we knew it would be possible (to advance) if we just came out and played our game."

For the Rayders, Jenna Way finished with a team-high nine kills, 16 assists and four aces; Peters added eight kills; Karley Pearsall and Madeline Boss had four kills apiece; Kelly Greyerbiehl added 12 digs, while Kelsey Way and Chelsie Hoffman finished with 11 and eight digs, respectively.

"I'm still trying to figure out what the problem was or what went on," said Jenna Way, the Rayder setter. "I think maybe we didn't give ourselves a lot of chances to set up and get a good volley. I personally didn't get the ball to certain people as I did in other games and I didn't connect with my hitters.

"We struggled as well with serve receive up and down."

Way, one of seven Rayder seniors with Greyerbiehl, Hoffman, Kelsey Way, Madison Zimmerman, Peters and Allison Hankins, said playing in Battle Creek is something for which she and her teammates have been aiming for years.

"It was amazing to play on this floor, there's so much history here and so many former Miss Volleyballs have played here," Way said. "Although we didn't accomplish a state championship, we did mark off another check on our goal sheet."

Greyerbiehl, who along with fellow back row players Hoffman, Kelsey Way and Zimmerman had their hands full with Huntey's attacking and serving, said the Rayders should be proud of their accomplishments this season.

"We made it so far as a team and we met all of our goals," she said. "We made it to Battle Creek for the first time as a program. It's a bummer that we lost, but we gave it our best and that's all you can ask for.

"Their No. 9 (Huntey) was really good," Greyerbiehl said. "They (Morley-Stanwood) came out and played their game before we did and we couldn't play our game throughout the match. We just weren't consistent enough."

Way added she's proud to be part of a team that has left such an impact for future Charlevoix teams.

"It's going to be weird stepping into the gym next fall and not being with these girls," Way said. "I'm really going to miss them and all seven of us have gone through a lot together.

"I'll miss being a Charelvoix Rayder, but I'm proud to be able to always call myself one."

Coaching: It's all in the family

Rayder volleyball coach, sister enjoy simultaneous success

STEVE FOLEY
SPORTS WRITER

The excitement surrounding the Charlevoix Rayder volleyball team's bid for a state title reached a fevered pitch in Charlevoix last week, but for two sisters who happen to coach high school volleyball teams some 2,300 miles apart, the excitement really had been going on all season.

One person who would love to have had the chance to be sitting in the stands among Rayder Nation, both during the quarterfinal match at home Tuesday, Nov. 15 and at Friday's semifinal match was Christine Halberg, who just also happens to live in Port Angeles, Wash.

Halberg, who's maiden name is Grunch, just happens to be the sister of Charlevoix coach Liz (Grunch) Shaw.

She also just happens to coach varsity volleyball at Port Angeles, and she guided her team — the Roughriders — to the Washington Class 2A state tournament recently, where they recorded their best finish since 1989, the only other time Port Angeles reached the state tournament.

Although the distance made it impractical for Halberg to make the trip, she was able to watch the semifinal match online via a Michigan High School Athletic Association video feed.

As Shaw has led her Rayders to the best volleyball season in school history, her sister did likewise in Port Angeles. The Roughriders finished 23-8-5, and lost just once in Olympic League and regular season play.

It became quite frequent following games when the two sisters, seven years apart in age, would text or call each other, which this season surely saw plenty of exclamation points, smiley faces, and capital letters across their cell phone screens.

"After we won regionals, she (Halberg) was playing in her district tournament and we were texting each other our scores," Shaw said. "We're thousands of miles away and yet we're still in each others lives and sports has always been our connection."

Shaw, a 1995 Charlevoix graduate, excelled in volleyball, basketball and softball in high school and went on to play at Lake Michigan Junior College in Benton Harbor. She also played club volleyball after transferring from Lake Michigan to Grand Valley State.

"I was in a really bad car accident my freshman year and after the accident, things just weren't the same," Shaw said of her collegiate playing days.

Following college, Shaw, 34, began working at Charlevoix Public Schools. as a teacher in 2001 and soon thereafter coached varsity softball before taking over as the head volleyball coach.

"Volleyball was the only opening they had and the game was never really my thing, but now it's kind of my pride and joy," Shaw said. "I've put so much time and effort into it and we've built up the program. It seems like it gets better and better every year.

"One of the reason we have such a great program is that my players work hard for me and they lead with me, not against me. I also have supportive parents and coaching staff. They are very helpful in whatever I need them to do."..

The growth of the Rayder program has a lot to do with what Shaw learned from her older sister, beginning when Halberg served as an assistant coach when Liz was a senior on the Rayder volleyball team.

"Volleyball wise, I've learned the most from her," Shaw said. "She helped coach my team in districts in Charlevoix one year."

That year of coaching for Halberg sparked her interest in continuing to coach the game, a game that she got the itch to play when playing at New Mexico State on a softball scholarship.

"Before I wanted to be a teacher, I helped Liz's team when she was a senior in high school," said Halberg, who grew up in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, and graduated from Coeur d'Alene High School. "I'd just graduated from New Mexico State, went back home to Michigan and substitute taught and helped her team.

"I totally loved it. I went back to Spokane (Wash.) to get my teaching masters and certificate through an 18-month program there, which led me to Port Angeles."

Halberg, who just finished her fourth season as the head coach at Port Angeles, began her varsity coaching career in Owosso, where she coached volleyball and JV softball for seven years.

"I got married, then moved to Mount Pleasant to start my family before moving back to Port Angeles, where my husband is from, in 2006," she said. "I applied for the coaching job in 2008."

Both sisters have turned their respective programs into quality teams by focusing on the fundamentals, keeping a positive attitude, and by bring energy to the court day-in, day-out.

"There's so much excitement when you're playing and teaching the kids is so fun and exciting, as is the team aspect of it," said Halberg, 42. "There's just so much more excitement and energy in the game of volleyball and it's fun to instill that fun with the girls."

In fact, Halberg's theme for her team the past four seasons has simply been 'amore,' Latin for love.

"With love and dedication, we've built a covenant of what we're going to live by," Halberg said. "That was hard at first because I came into a program with six seniors and it's hard to change habits. It wasn't necessarily happily accepted by everybody at first, but you have to believe in what you're doing."

Shaw said she and her sister rarely talk strategy, but more about keeping their players motivated and getting them to reach their potential. She credits her father and high school softball coach, Rick Grunch, with helping mold her into the coach she is today, along with former Charlevoix coaches Jim Kanine and Keith Haske.

Shaw said in her family, coaching is just a way of life.

"Coaching has been in my family for a long time," Shaw said, noting that just about everyone in her family has been a coach. "I just feel like its in our blood."

But when it comes to volleyball specifics, Shaw turned to her sister.

"I learned most of the fundamentals through her because she's really the best teacher," Shaw said. "I've taken what they've all said and have translated it and used it in my own style and technique. But Christine, volleyball-wise, I've learned the most from her."

The sisters were members of a Petoskey-based women's fast-pitch softball team that won an Amateur Softball Association national championship in 1997, and they have competed as teammates on many a slow-pitch teams over the years.

"On the diamond and through volleyball, we're very connected," Shaw said. "I try to see her at least once a year and I went out there twice last year. I know they're coming up for a month around Christmas."

Halberg, who along with her husband, Greg, have three daughters, said she is proud of what Shaw has accomplished.

"She's done such a great job," Halberg said. "We've had a lot of talks about things we can do to make our programs better. We don't talk about drills and the fundamentals, but we both believe in the same things and what gets your team motivated. We talk about how to deal with issues with kids and parents and school administration and those tough issues that are important and hard to make decisions on.

"I definitely enjoy having her as a resource."

"I really envy Liz and Charlevoix because Charlevoix is so good at supporting their teams. I've gone to their state final in basketball and they just have a tremendous support group from the students, faculty, administration and the community.

"Volleyball is a game of momentum and the fans can really help build that momentum."

DDA favors 'lots' of free parking

City officials considering revising downtown Charlevoix parking regulations, meter usage

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority's board would like to see most, but not all, of the parking in downtown Charlevoix parking lots become free.

At what will likely be its last regular monthly meeting of the year Monday, the board voted unanimously (among the members present) in favor of a motion to recommend to the city council that it modify downtown parking regulations so that all parking lots on the west side of Bridge Street are free, and increasing parking fines from $5 to $10 for meter violations and $15 to $30 for non-meter violations.

It was a variation on one of four downtown parking options offered up by city police chief Gerard Doan who the city council earlier this year charged with the task of studying downtown parking.

Doan, whose department is responsible for parking enforcement, was asked for his input when debate surfaced over whether the DeWitt Lot (located off Park Street a half-block west of Bridge Street) should be metered or otherwise regulated.

Doan

After hearing reports from downtown business owners that the DeWitt lot, constructed in 2010 after a house on the site was razed, was having the desired effect of opening up more parking on Bridge Street, the council decided to continue not charging to park in the lot.

At the time, several members of the council expressed an interest in removing some or all of the parking meters from downtown. The council decided to hold off on a decision to allow time to study its options and the impact they might have on the city's budget.

City officials have said after enforcement costs are deducted, the city makes about $30,000 per year in parking fees and fines.

Currently parking spaces are metered on Bridge Street, in portions of some of the parking lots on the west side of Bridge Street and in portions of the Bridge Park area. (Many of the spaces in that area are leased seasonally.) After the first few spaces, other spaces on side streets in the downtown are not metered, but parking is limited to two hours. Meters are typically installed in late May and removed around the time of Apple Festival. Overnight parking is prohibited year-round in downtown parking lots.

Doan was unable to attend Monday's meeting, however in his memo on the matter, he offers four options for the Shelter planned

The Rev. Ginger Stevens wants to help the most at-risk women and children in Charlevoix.

Her Third Day Fellowship ministry has a plan to do so, as well. A new Christian homeless shelter named Joppa House is expected to open in the spring, should enough donations come from the community to launch the program.

The women and children's shelter would join the ranks of others across Northern Michigan — including facilities in Alpena, Cadillac, Gaylord, Petoskey and Traverse City — providing more beds for a growing homeless population.

"They are always full or nearly full, so it's a difficult thing to find housing for everyone," Stevens said. "There is a tremendous need in our area and we are not meeting those needs."

Third Day Fellowship began its street-level ministry in February and operates both a food pantry and a drop-in center on Bridge Street in Charlevoix. It's a benevolence ministry that distributes food to needy clients twice a day on Mondays and Thursdays.

"Out of this ministry, it revealed the need that so many are facing homelessness or are already homeless," Stevens

Trail grants appear to be a lock

First phase of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road trail could be built in 2013

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Boyne City to Charlevoix non-motorized recreation trail took a big step closer to becoming reality last week, but not before some serious hand-wringing about costs by some members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting, the board voted 5-1 to serve as the lead governmental entity for the first phase of the path, which will follow Boyne City-Charlevoix Road for 3.2 miles from the Boyne City city limit to Springwater Beach Road.

The action comes on the heels of some recent news that two grants that will pay for a large portion of the first section of the trail appear to be nearly a lock for approval.

Recently Boyne City officials learned that its application for $565,900 in federal transportation enhancement grant funds for the project has been tentatively approved. Additionally county officials recently received word that their application for a $300,000 grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Trust Fund scored very high with state officials who administer the grant making it very likely to also be selected for approval.

Together those two grants alone make up more than 90 percent of the project's estimated $954,500 price tag. Another $71,000 has been pledged toward the project from the city of Boyne City, Evangeline Township and a Charlevoix County Community Foundation grant, leaving a little more than $17,000 to be raised from other sources including private donors.

At Wednesday's Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meeting those who have done the legwork on the trail project — a collection of county and city officials and volunteers — came asking for what appears to be one of the final lynch pins in securing the funding portion of the project: A resolution in which the county agrees to be the lead governmental agency, enter into a cooperative agreement with the city of Boyne City, and enter into a contract with Northwest Design Group to finish engineering design.

While most, if not all board members voiced the support for the idea of the trail, several expressed concerns about the what the trail might cost the county beyond what it has pledged to maintain it once it is built. Some of the commissioners — in particular board chair Joel Evans, and commissioners Ron Reinhardt and Chris Christensen — were concerned that in approving the resolution they could be obligating the county to pay thousands should the project experience cost overruns or bids come in higher than expected.

Northwest Design representatives at the meeting said cost estimates will be more precise when more detailed engineering work is done. Although conceding that, with the amount of engineering work done so far, costs could vary plus or minus 20 percent, Northwest representatives said they are confident that the estimates are on the high side.

When it appeared that angst over the possibility of additional costs for the county might — at most sink the whole deal, or at very least delay it — Boyne City city manager Mike Cain spoke up in an effort to reassure the commissioners.

In recent years, Cain has overseen numerous infrastructure projects funded largely through grants similar to those that will be used for the recreational trail.

He said although there is always some risk in any such project, the benefits of leveraging a small percentage of local money to get large federal and state grants offer a significant opportunity to local governments.

"I can understand the concern about uncertainty," Cain said. "We've face this time and time again. Fortunately, the city

Who should pay for senior services?

Commission on aging seeks input on services, fees, millage requests

STEVE ZUCKER

Messer

Charlevoix County Commission on Aging Director Jack Messer and his staff have crunched the numbers and they've asked for community input. Now they're ready to put those two pools of data together as they look for the how the agency can best meet the needs of its current and soon-to-be clientele in a fiscally sustainable fashion.

Earlier this year, Messer came to the county board of commissioners with grave concerns about red ink on the agency's books.

Around the same time, agency officials conducted several focus group session asking what services are most needed — especially among the bubble of Baby Boomers who are soon to be standing at the commission's doorstep for services. .

At a Charlevoix County personnel committee meeting earlier this month, Messer said the message loud and clear from those earlier focus group sessions was that the next generation of seniors will have less interest or need for the senior center model of service and more desire for in-home services — such as meal delivery, cleaning, certain care services, respite care and other services that allow seniors to "age in place."

After figuring out which services to offer, the trick becomes figuring out how to pay for it, Messer said.

At the same meeting Messer gave his recommendation that the funding should come from a combination of senior millage money and user fees.

Currently the commission on aging does not charge fees for its services, instead it asks for a recommended donation. According to its 2010 annual report, last year more than half (52 percent) of the agency's budget came from the 0.4 mill county wide senior citizens millage and only 15 percent came from contributions for services. With 12 percent coming from federal and state sources and interest income, the remaining 21 percent ($341,791) of a $1.6 million budget was covered by a transfer from the agency's cash reserves. Messer said those cash reserves were at about $1.3 million at the start of the fiscal year that began in October. But the budget for the same fiscal year calls for another

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

I need to remind myself that it's the season of giving and sharing and it doesn't necessarily need to occur on a specific day. I've met couples lately who have had heated discussions over whose family to visit and where to travel for Christmas, which can bring on arguments that frustrate and sadden the season. Some factors when making this decision involves costs because fuel is expensive and the weather which in Northern Michigan can easily affect us and scheduled sports your children may be part of. Gone are the days when you grew up next door to mom and dad or your farm was just an acre away. If you do live near family, you are members of the fortunate few.

Families are mobile and technology follows us, so you may end up "Skyping" with family you can't see. You can make arrangements to see members who are absent the following year or visit each other on another day or weekend during the month of December. It's all about compromise. It's a discussion that should come up before or right after the "I do's." I found from experience that alternating holiday visits and an occasional "We are leaving Dodge all together and taking a vacation" or "We are organizing our family in the direction of adopting a mission or homeless shelter project" can bring a renewed togetherness for your family.

I realize that young families may be into lots of gift-giving as marketing has brought on shopping for Christmas way too soon and putting emphasis on gifting and midnight sales. Some larger corporations may think they have something good going, but more employees are beginning to resist and say my family time is more important than selling the last "must-have" off the shelf. Even though times are tight, some employees have sought out jobs that pay less but offer more in regards to family time.

My personal feeling on viewing the holidays is to see it as the season of celebration from November through January — a time to focus on faith, family, food and fun. Wouldn't it be nice to keep this going all year through? It's not about the gift you feel you need to purchase, the number of cards you want to send out, the amount of decorating you feel needs to be placed out. I've written articles in the past imparting the stress holidays can bring and educating that the only one stressing you out is yourself. Delegate things that you feel need to be done and enlisting others to feel a part of the holidays you host. Cut back on purchasing what you think you must have and donate to local causes instead. Share family and friend time enjoying each other's company because you never know if this will be the last holiday you celebrate together so celebrate like it is. I remember corralling relatives with the comment, "this may be grandpa's last Christmas." After the seventh "this may be grandpa's last Christmas" relatives from as far as California still come to visit even when their busy schedule deems otherwise.

The saying "you can't pick your family but you can pick your friends" may come to mind for some of you as well. If family members bring on personal stress then quality time with friends may be the order of the day. After a brief time friends do feel like, and become family to you personally even though ancestry tells you otherwise.

This is a season that wraps around us like a warm blanket comforting us with memories from childhood and the gift of a time to reflect on faces and friends of the past and rejoice with the ones who are with us. There may not be "peace on earth" but I hope what little information I impart can bring peace at home.

Hayes continues to eye Camp Sea Gull

AEBRA COE
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Hayes Township officials are moving forward with their application for a grant to purchase 23 acres with more than a thousand feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline.

The township is hoping to be approved for a Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund grant to purchase the property. The property, on the north end of Lake Charlevoix, is currently home to Camp Sea-Gull, an all-girl summer camp. The township would like to turn it into a park with amenities such as a boat launch ramp, swimming beach and perhaps other recreational facilities.

Ethel Knepp, Hayes Township supervisor, said the board hopes to have everything squared away for the grant application before an April 1 deadline.

"We're currently going forward with the grant application process," she said.

The township board of trustees recently took a tour of the property and, according to Knepp, they were very impressed.

She said the board has been searching several years now for property on which to provide public access to the north end of Lake Charlevoix.

"A boat launch would be our primary goal for the property to start with," Knepp said.

There are also several existing buildings which could be utilized for park purposes.

"It's a great recreational opportunity," she said.

But, the township still has a ways to go before the purchase can become a reality.

"We still need to hold pub-said.

She intends to tackle the problem head-on with a facility that can house up to 14 residents and two innkeepers.

"It's really hard to realize in our small town that there really are so many in need. You think it's just in the metropolitan areas, but it's here in our backyard," Stevens said.

The goal is to empower women to take financial control of their lives to better raise their children. The facility will offer a sliding-scale day care service in the basement, as well.

"We don't want to exclude anybody who needs help. We have a whole generation of people who have raised themselves, or don't have the life skills they need to be successful in life because mom and dad have either been stoned or drunk," Stevens said. "Part of our plan is to help find or create employment as a means to further life skills."

The ministry received some donated land at the corner of State Street and Garfield Avenue and plans to use the Catholic church's convent house, which will be relocated to the vacant lot. It will cost $10,500 to move the stick-built house and upwards of another $15,000 to build a new basement and foundation.

It's estimated the ministry will need $75,000 to put the project together, though that does not include operating expenses, Stevens said.

Third Day Fellowship will go before the Charlevoix Planning Commission on Dec. 12 to request a special use permit for the Joppa House project.

"I think it's important for people to know the house will be well-supervised and will be screened through an extensive application process," Stevens said. "Our goal is to transform old mind sets and train people with the skills they will need to become successful and productive citizens in the community. This is to give a hand up, not a hand-out."

Mike Walker, executive director at the Nehemiah Project in Petoskey, said he believes Stevens' goal is a worthy and much-needed effort.

"I think it's a great addition to what (the region) already has. It's a daunting task to put the project together and find the financing," Walker said. "I do think we need it. I think it will be a wonderful resource."

Joppa House will ask clients to participate in offered programs, including church services, financial counseling, cooking, motivational groups, substance abuse counseling and Bible study. The shelter will keep an 11 p.m. curfew, save for those clients who work late shifts.

Stevens said the name Joppa House comes from a New Testament Bible story in Acts 9:36-42, in which a disciple named Tabitha did "good works and alms deeds" for the poor and was raised from the dead by God through Peter. She lived in a town called Joppa.

Meanwhile, Stevens, Charlevoix's former Assembly of God associate pastor, seeks financial help from the community to make her women and children's shelter vision a reality.

Donations can be sent to Third Day Fellowship, P.O. Box 174, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. Donors should note in the memo line whether their donation is for the Joppa House shelter, the ministry operations fund or the food pantry program.

PARKING

city to consider:

— Make no changes

— Meter spaces on Bridge Street and the first few spaces on the side streets and leave the parking lots free

— Meter spaces on Bridge Street and the first few parking spaces on side streets and allow free, but time-limited parking in the parking lots

— Remove all parking meters and enforce all spaces downtown as time-limited spaces.

In his memo, Doan recommends the third option on the list. However board member Kirby Dipert said he thinks that option might be confusing for visitors.

Dipert said he doesn't share the concerns that some have voiced that, if left unregulated, the parking lots will end up occupied by downtown employees during the busy summer months.

"There's really only about six days out of the year when you can't find a parking space somewhere downtown," Dipert said.

Two downtown business owners John Ochs of Central Drugs and Rick Root of the Taffy Barrel weighed in on the matter with letters to the city in which they wish for no meters to be removed from downtown.

Ochs writes that parking space turnover is especially important for his business which includes customers — some of them with limited mobility — who regularly come in to pick up prescriptions. In fact, in his letter, Ochs requests a 15-minute meter be installed for a space in front of his store.

For his part, Root suggests that the meter system not only be maintained, but that they be left in place and enforced year round. Root complains that as soon as the meters are pulled for the season he sees many people parking in the spaces on Bridge Street all day long.

Several board members noted that leaving the meters in during the winter months would make snow removal in those areas more difficult for city crews and would likely result in more of the city's aging meter inventory being damaged.

City treasurer Rick Brandi said it's hard to estimate how the option recommended by the Downtown Development Authority board would affect the revenue stream the parking system generates, but he said it is possible that the increased violation fees could make up for the revenue lost by removing the parking lot meters.

The authority board's recommendation will be passed on to the city council, which is likely to consider the matter at its Dec. 19 meeting.

In other business, the authority board took its first look at its proposed budget for the 2012-13 fiscal year.

Brandi said this first draft of the budget was based on the taxable value in the district remaining the same for next year. In its current form, the $704,000 budget calls for revenue to exceed spending by about $38,500. The early draft budget calls for no significant changes to authority programing.

The board will take a closer second look at its budget at its January meeting. The board does not typically meet in December.

Lighthouse Lunch feeds hungry souls

SHERI MCWHIRTER

Eighty-year-old Barbara Wheat stirred a pot of gravy on the stove while she explained why she and a pack of volunteers feed the hungry.

"We thought there might be a need," she said.

Wheat, of Charlevoix, is joined each Monday and Thursday morning at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix for a project called Lighthouse Lunch. It's a free soup kitchen effort that launched more than two years ago and currently feeds around 50 twice per week.

Nearby, Sandy Knack sliced up donated tomatoes for the lettuce salad.

"It's fun and it's a good thing to do. I enjoy it," said Knack, of Charlevoix.

"There's nothing more satisfying than serving," chimed in Darlene Herriman, another volunteer from Charlevoix. "You probably get more out of it than the people who come in. I do."

Monday's (Nov. 21) menu included chicken, biscuits, mashed potatoes and gravy, peas and sweet treats such as bread pudding and blueberry muffins. The program took a break on Thanksgiving this year because other community meals happened.

But this week, they are back at it. This twice weekly cook-and-serve routine is part of their Christian charity, the women agreed.

"We are all here because God said we should be here doing this," Wheat said. "We don't do this to get our names in the paper."

And the need is greater than many know, she said, adding that the down-turned economy keeps many unemployed or under-employed.

"I'd say the majority of people coming in here are working poor and we also have some seniors," Wheat said.

She said Oleson's grocery store in Charlevoix donates produce and bread to the effort and the town's Assembly of God Church also makes a monthly donation. Paying for the program is a constant struggle, but she's up to the task, Wheat said.

"God has work for me to do. He keeps me strong. He keeps me well. If we really need something, it almost always turns up," she said.

Wheat, Knack and Herriman are also joined by dining room volunteers Kim Peters, Shannon Fields, Elsie Joyce, Sandy Whitley and Jan Greene, all of Charlevoix.

Much of the food that's served comes from the region's nonprofit food bank. Wheat goes to the Manna Food Project site in Harbor Springs once every two months to stock up on discounted grocery items.

She said tax-deductible financial contributions would help keep the program going. Donations to support the effort can be made to the Lighthouse Lunch account at the Citizens Bank, 201 State St. in Charlevoix.

Additionally, the program could save money through a dependable dish-washing volunteer. It would allow the program to stop using disposable — and costly — plates, cups and utensils, Wheat said.

Lighthouse Lunch meals are offered between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. every Monday and Thursday at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut in Charlevoix. Call (231) 547-2875 for more information.

Flurry Fest set for Dec. 3

RACHEL BROUGHAM
NEWS-REVIEW

From the very beginning, organizers of Charlevoix's Flurry Fest knew they were on to something.

The event, which all started five years ago in an attempt to get people downtown to kickoff the holiday season, has turned into a showcase of community spirit.

This year's Flurry Fest will take place from 2:30-6 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3, under a large heated tent in Charlevoix's East Park.

"We started from very humble beginnings under a small tent on Clinton Street, and it became very clear to us early on that we needed to provide a larger area with more heated space to accommodate everyone," said Keith Carey, executive director of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority.

Music and hot chocolate tastings highlight the event, and area restaurants and businesses will be open to help shoppers get started on purchasing holiday gifts.

Local performers scheduled this year include the Petoskey Steel Drum Band, banjo-strumming Tiger-Bear Jon, the brass group Tuba Christmas and new this year, the vocal harmonies of the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts' Christmas Glee ensemble.

"We typically also expect to have eight to 10 restaurants provide their own take on hot chocolate," Carey said. "It really serves as a great chance to get into our wonderful restaurants and businesses to check out their offerings."

Santa will also make an appearance at Flurry Fest, when he is chauffeured in by the Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighters Association, along with his reindeer.

Mount McSauba, Charlevoix's municipal ski hill, will also offer discounted season passes for sale during the festival.

Limited edition Flurry Fest mugs will also be available for purchase, with proceeds supporting the event.

"It's really gotten to the point where folks just expect to participate," Carey said.

"The whole goal is to give people a great reason to come downtown and enjoy their friends' and neighbors' company, while also having great entertainment and a chance to get into the holiday spirit and see all we have to offer downtown."

Downtown open house set for December 10

Holiday festivities in downtown Charlevoix will continue for the third of three weekends on Saturday, Dec. 10, when merchants will be armed with samples, refreshments, special sales and more during the Charlevoix Merchant Open House.

Organizers are hoping the event will help area residents make sure they go into the season well prepared and take advantage of the special event.

"It's the perfect place for inspiration and acquisition of all your holiday needs. Whether you're shopping for that must have gift or those little, but necessary 'thank-you's,' you can find it all in downtown Charlevoix," organizers said.

In addition to the sales, Santa will arrive downtown on a fire truck at noon to spread some holiday cheer for the children. Santa will be downtown from noon to 1 p.m.

After Santa departs, children are invited to watch a free full-length holiday movie at Charlevoix Cinema compliments of Charlevoix State Bank with a donation of a canned good. While children enjoy the movie, parents are able to shop without interruption.

For additional information or a complete list of participating stores and their activities visit www.charlevoix.org or call (231) 547-2101.

Free chiropractic screenings at next farmers market

Dr. Aaron Wilkin of Randall Chiropractic will be giving away free spinal screenings at the Charlevoix Farmers Market from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 1.

"The market is not just about fresh, local food. It's about helping our community lead a healthy lifestyle," said market master Bethany Pearson. "This is going to be a great opportunity for those who have always wondered about chiropractic care, but haven't always had the resources to pursue it.

The Charlevoix Winter Farmers Market takes place from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. on the first Thursday of every month (November- May) at the Charlevoix Public Library.

A special holiday market is planned for Thursday, Dec. 22 and will include a holiday cooking demonstration with free samples from Chef Paul Ramey of the Roquette Burger Bistro.

For more information about the market, contact the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101.

Test passed, electric cable project expected to proceed

Consumers Energy officials are planning to move forward with a project to replace an underwater electric cable that serves the city of Charlevoix after a test of a temporary electric supply system was successful Monday.

On Thursday, Dec. 1, Consumers crews tentatively expect to begin preparations to replace a 46,000-volt electric distribution line that currently serves the south side of Charlevoix. Consumers Energy plans to replace the existing four-cable electric distribution service that runs on the bottom of Lake Charlevoix from the north near the Chicago Club to the south near Northwest Marine Yacht Club. The existing lines were installed in 1962 and testing shows that the existing cables will fail sometime in the future. The old cables will be replaced with a single upgraded cable that will provide increased service reliability to the city of Charlevoix.

Consumer's Energy spokesman Tim Petrosky said no problems were discovered in the temporary system test Monday. He said the only other step remaining prior to the project is a public hearing that was scheduled by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 29, at the Charlevoix County Jail (lower level meeting room) to hear public comment on Consumer's permit application for the project. Petrosky said he does not anticipate the hearing will result in any delays for the project.

While the project is under way, City of Charlevoix electric customers on the south side of the city will be served by a temporary substation located at St. Mary's Cement Company. During the project, residents on the south side of the city of Charlevoix may experience a slight flickering of their lights lasting only a few seconds a few times a day. The affected area is roughly bordered on the north by Round Lake and the Pine River Channel, on the south by M-66, on the east by Lake Charlevoix, and on the west by Lake Michigan. Consumers officials have previously said the condition should not pose a problem for any electronic equipment.

The project is expected to last approximately eight weeks.

Consumers Energy officials said they scheduled the project outside of the summer season to minimize the impact on residents, boaters and visitors to the area.

Stafford's taking over Crooked River Lodge

Stafford's Hospitality is taking over this Alanson hotel and plans to reopen it in December as Stafford's Crooked River Lodge & Suites, following some renovations.

ALANSON — Stafford's Hospitality, which operates several landmark lodging and dining spots around Emmet and Charlevoix counties, including the Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix, announced this week that it is adding a new property to its group of hotels: Stafford's Crooked River Lodge & Suites, situated just north of Alanson.

The lodge, located along U.S. 31, features 40 guest rooms and suites, all with balconies overlooking the Crooked River.

Stafford's recently took over management of the hotel, and has been working toward its acquisition of the property.

Crooked River Lodge originally opened in 2003, and Emmet County equalization records list Sharon and Michael Pressey as the site's most recent owners.

"Stafford's Crooked River Lodge and Suites is a natural fit to the Stafford's family," said Reg Smith, vice president of hotels with Stafford's Hospitality. "This is a family friendly, true 'up north' hotel."

Stafford's Crooked River Lodge and Suites offers easy access to recreational and snowmobile trails. It is located along the Crooked River, which forms part of the Inland Waterway. The hotel has an indoor pool and hot tub.

Stafford's does not plan to offer full-service dining at the site, but breakfast will be included with every hotel stay.

"Admittedly, it varies slightly from the traditional Stafford's hotel model, but it has many of the same qualities Stafford's has always been known for: beautiful guest rooms, breathtaking waterfront views, wonderful public areas, gracious hospitality and a community rich with history, all in a very natural setting. As for the quality of service, and the rest of our plans, just wait until you see what we come up with ... hopefully even a wedding or two," said Stafford's Hospitality vice president David Marvin. "Our families have long been outdoor enthusiasts and have been skiing and snowmobiling, paddling and boating the Inland Waterway for as long as I can remember. We are excited to share these amenities with our guests.

Stafford's plans to reopen the lodge in December, after a few renovations and repairs. For more information and to view progress on the property, see www.staffords.com/crookedriverlodge.

Stafford's Hospitality's other operations include The Pier Restaurant in Harbor Springs, Bay View Inn in Bay View, The Perry Hotel and Stafford's Gallery in Petoskey and The Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix. Stafford's Hospitality has been in business since 1961.

As Stafford's continues renovating Crooked River Lodge, guest reservations for that site can be made by contacting The Perry Hotel at (231) 347-4000.

A quick change of seasons for Rayders

Charlevoix hopeful that volleyball success will spill over to basketball

ANDY SNEDDON
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS EDITOR

The bulk of the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team has little time to prepare for the season opener.

That's just fine with second year coach Leslie Hoffman. She'll trade prep time for the big time experience many of her Rayders will bring to the court when they take to the court for the first time on Tuesday, Nov. 29, at home against Ellsworth.

Eight of the 13 players on Hoffman's roster were members of the Rayder volleyball team, which closed its season just over a week ago in the state semifinals in Battle Creek.

"I said the greatest thing that could happen is for those girls to go to the state finals," Hoffman said. "I couldn't be happier for them. I couldn't have been more proud of them.

"These girls, they know what it takes as far as mental toughness and they have a ton of great chemistry coming from volleyball. They're bringing that continuity with them to basketball. Volleyball shape is totally different than basketball shape, but once we get some of that speed ... I think that we'll cover that ground quicker than what (some) expect."

While many of the Rayders were thinking about getting the ball over the net instead of in it through earlier this month, Hoffman said the experience of playing pressure packed games deep into the state tournament — regardless of the sport — should pay dividends as her Rayders look to challenge for the Lake Michigan Conference championship and make a run in the state tournament come March.

"Last year, same thing, the (volleyball) girls went to the regional finals," Hoffman said. "This year (volleyball) went even longer and those volleyball girls didn't get a break at all. Last year I was kind of panicked, this year that thought crossed my mind. . There's only so much I can cram in, but I haven't stressed about that this year."

Two factors have helped put Hoffman at ease: One, the Rayders return a solid corps of basketball players who were either starters or key contributors last season, and, two, Hoffman is in her second year as the varsity coach.

"I definitely feel a lot more confidence in having that year of experience," said Hoffman, who led the injury-plagued Rayders to an 8-14 finish a year ago and a berth in a Class C district title game. "I think there's less pressure too."

Seniors Jenna Way, Kelsey Way, Kelly Greyerbiehl, Megan Peters and junior Sydney Carlson return, and all started or played significant minutes last season.

Jenna Way, who is headed to Ferris State University on a volleyball scholarship, is one of the Lake Michigan Conference's best athletes and Hoffman said she will look to Way to pick up some of the scoring slack lost with the graduation of all-leaguer Lynzie Gotshall.

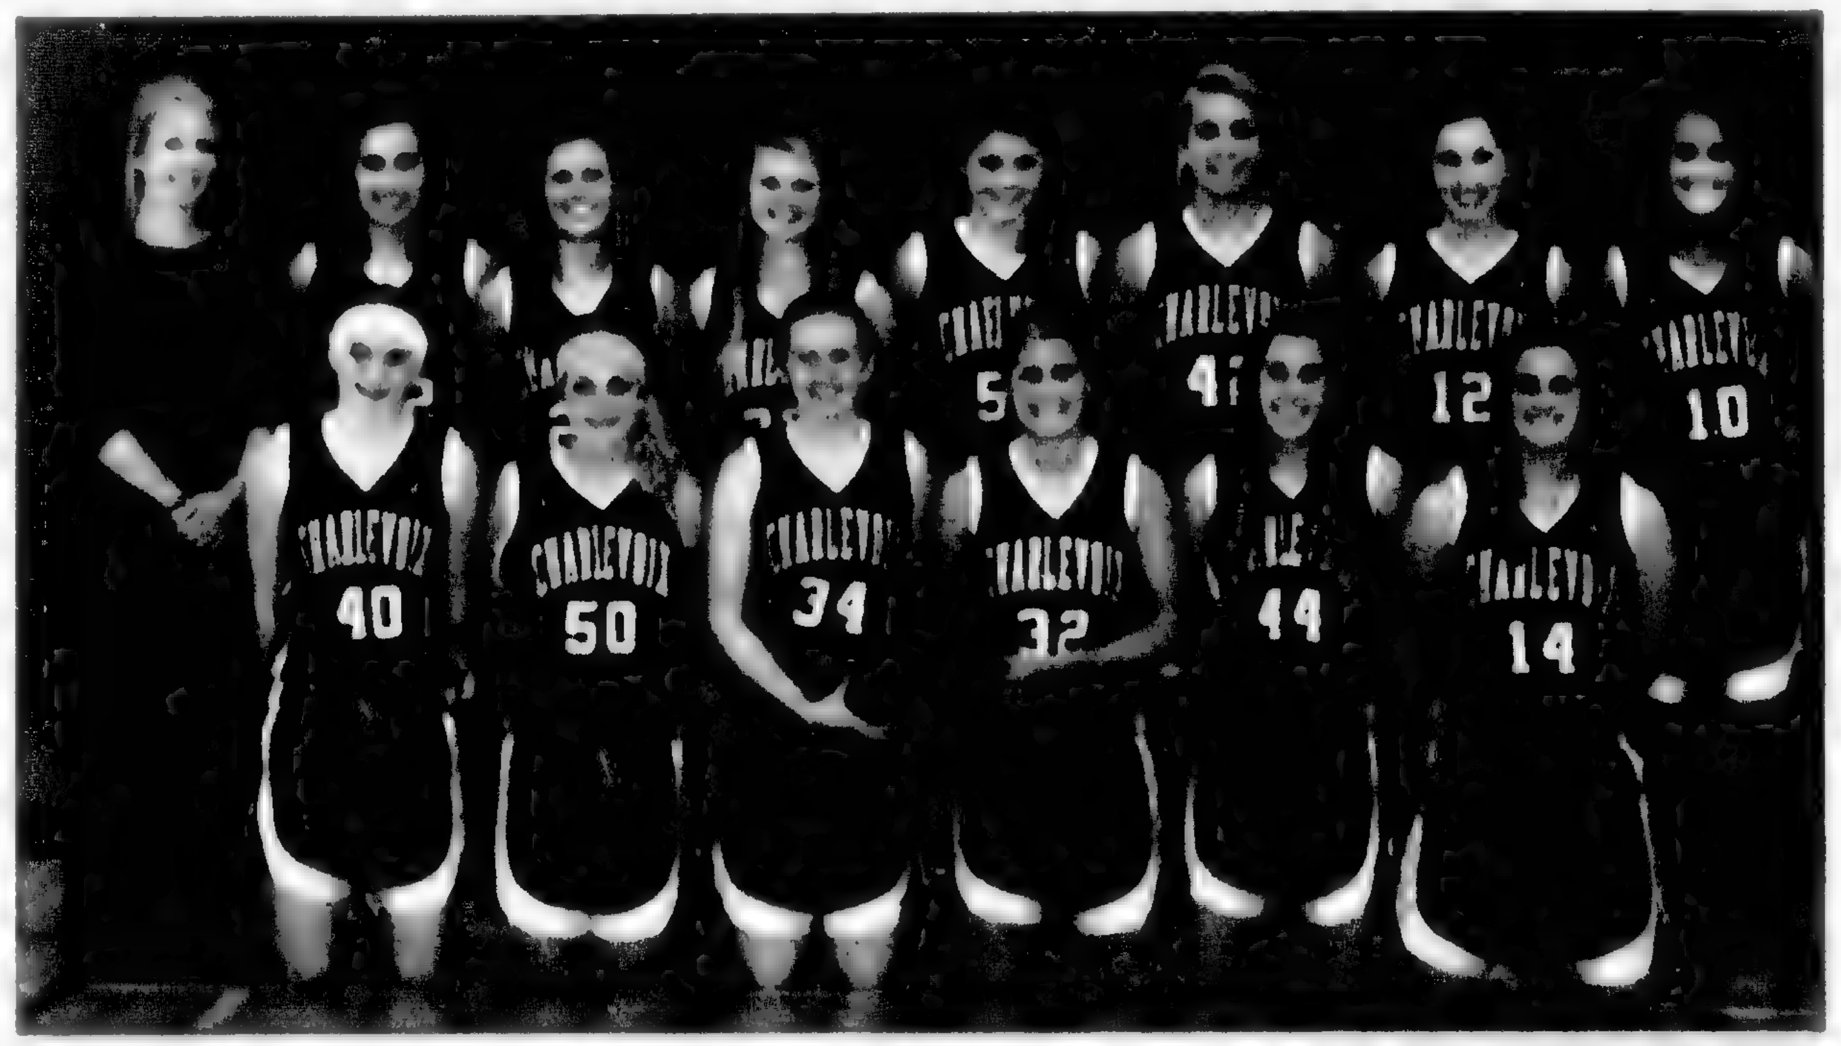
Carlson, one of the area's top outside shooters, will also be asked to shoulder the scoring load. She and Jenna Way comprise the starting backcourt, and Hoffman said both are capable of handling the point.

Peters stands 5-foot-10 and is a mainstay in the post. She'll get some help down low from the likes of 5-10 junior Karley Pearsall, 5-11 freshman Madeline Boss, and 5-9 junior Bailee Stevens.

Juniors Anna Way and Katie Hybl are both good athletes who should make immediate impact, Hoffman said.

"We're deep at every position," Hoffman said. "I expect us to contend in the conference and not stop there. I think we've got the potential to have a really great season with our experience and depth at every position."

The Rayders were set to open their season Tuesday at home on Tuesday against Ellsworth. They then will host Cheboygan on Thursday and Mesick on Friday



KURT GRANGOOD/NEWS-REVIEW

The 2011-12 Charlevoix Rayder girls varsity basketball team is: Front (from left), Madel Boss, Maura Brandl, Megan Peters, Kelsey Way, Karly Pearsall, and Jenna Way; and back (from left) coach Leslie Hoffman, Paige Ager, Kelly Greyerbiehl, Katie Hybl, Carolena Eloway, Bailee Stevens, Sydney Carlson and Anna Way.

Here's a look at what the Rayders will be facing from other area teams in the Lake Michigan Conference:

Harbor Springs

The Rams surged at the end of the 2010-11 season, winning eight of their final 11 games and capturing a Class C district championship, their first since 2003.

Harbor, under second-year coach Jennifer Foley, is looking to build on that momentum, but they have big shoes to fill with the loss to graduation of spitfire guard Emily Ford along with Kristen Albert and Haley Kloss, both among the top players in the league.

"I think we're going in the right direction," said Foley, who last season led Harbor to a 13-11 finish, its best since 2004. "The kids are enthusiastic all the way down to our peewee program."

While the Rams graduated plenty of talent and experience, seven letter winners return, and several of those players either started or logged significant playing time a year ago.

Guards Elena Ongaro and Jenna Lechowicz are back, as are post players Maggie Walker, Mackenzie Sylvain and Becca Morse. Two other guards, Emily Barkley and Erica Seaver, also return.

At 5-foot-10, Walker is the tallest Ram and Foley will lean on her for a post presence.

Ongaro and Lechowicz are both excellent athletes who bring different skill sets, Ongaro as a ball handler and ball-hawking defender, Lechowicz as a shooter.

"Lechowicz is a good shooter," Foley said. "The work she's done in the offseason is unbelievable. She's in the best shape of her life. Ongaro ran cross country to get ready for basketball."

Juniors Mallory Keller and Katie Barkley, along with sophomore Stephanie Sylvain, form a capable trio of varsity newcomers.

"They're solid competitors and they'll push for playing time as well," Foley said.

Boyne City

The harder the fall, the bigger the bounce?

Might be.

Two years ago, Boyne City finished 12-10, tied for third in the Lake Michigan Conference, and reached a Class C district championship game.

But the Ramblers did not field a junior varsity team because of a lack of numbers that year, and a year ago the program hit rock-bottom with a 1-20 finish.

Kevin Fitzpatrick has taken over the varsity after three years as an assistant to former coach Jim Brown, and the Ramblers would appear to have a squad that could make that 1-20 finish a distant memory.

Fitzpatrick, who coached the Boyne City boys during a highly successful run in the 1990s, has 10 varsity candidates, the tip of the iceberg of a program that now has upwards of 30 girls, plenty enough to field JV and freshman teams.

Four-year varsity veteran Rachel Butler is the top returnee, and she is joined by other varsity mainstays such as juniors Halee Boughton, Jessica Selissen and Mary Myers, and sophomore Kyle Hicks, a standout three-sport athlete who lettered last year. Butler was the Ramblers' top scorer a year ago.

The Ramblers roster will also be bolstered by senior Tanner McCune and sister Rainy McCune, a sophomore, who transferred from East Jordan. Sophomores Taylor Baker and Jenny Selissen also return to the varsity.

At 5-foot-9, Hicks is the tallest Rambler. No other player on the roster stands over 5-8.

"Of our 10, nine girls were on a varsity team last year," Fitzpatrick said. "Collectively, they've got a ton of varsity experience. We don't have much height, but we have athletes.

"Our younger kids are developing. And because of our athletic ability, we should be able to be competitive every night."

Fitzpatrick said one of the keys to getting things headed in the right direction is getting his players to believe that they can compete, and win.

"We need to change our mindset and as our confidence grows I think that will happen," he said. "The chemistry for early in the season has been very, very good. The 10 girls we have have come together well. We really have something we can build on."

East Jordan

Veteran coach Steve Hines has 12 players on his roster, the most in recent memory, and he has a solid corps or returnees, led by senior Grace Howes, around which to build.

Howes averaged 12 points and eight rebounds a game last season, when East Jordan finished 8-13. Point guard Val Peters, one of the top all-around athletes in the Lake Michigan Conference, also returns. Howes earned all-league honors in 2010-11.

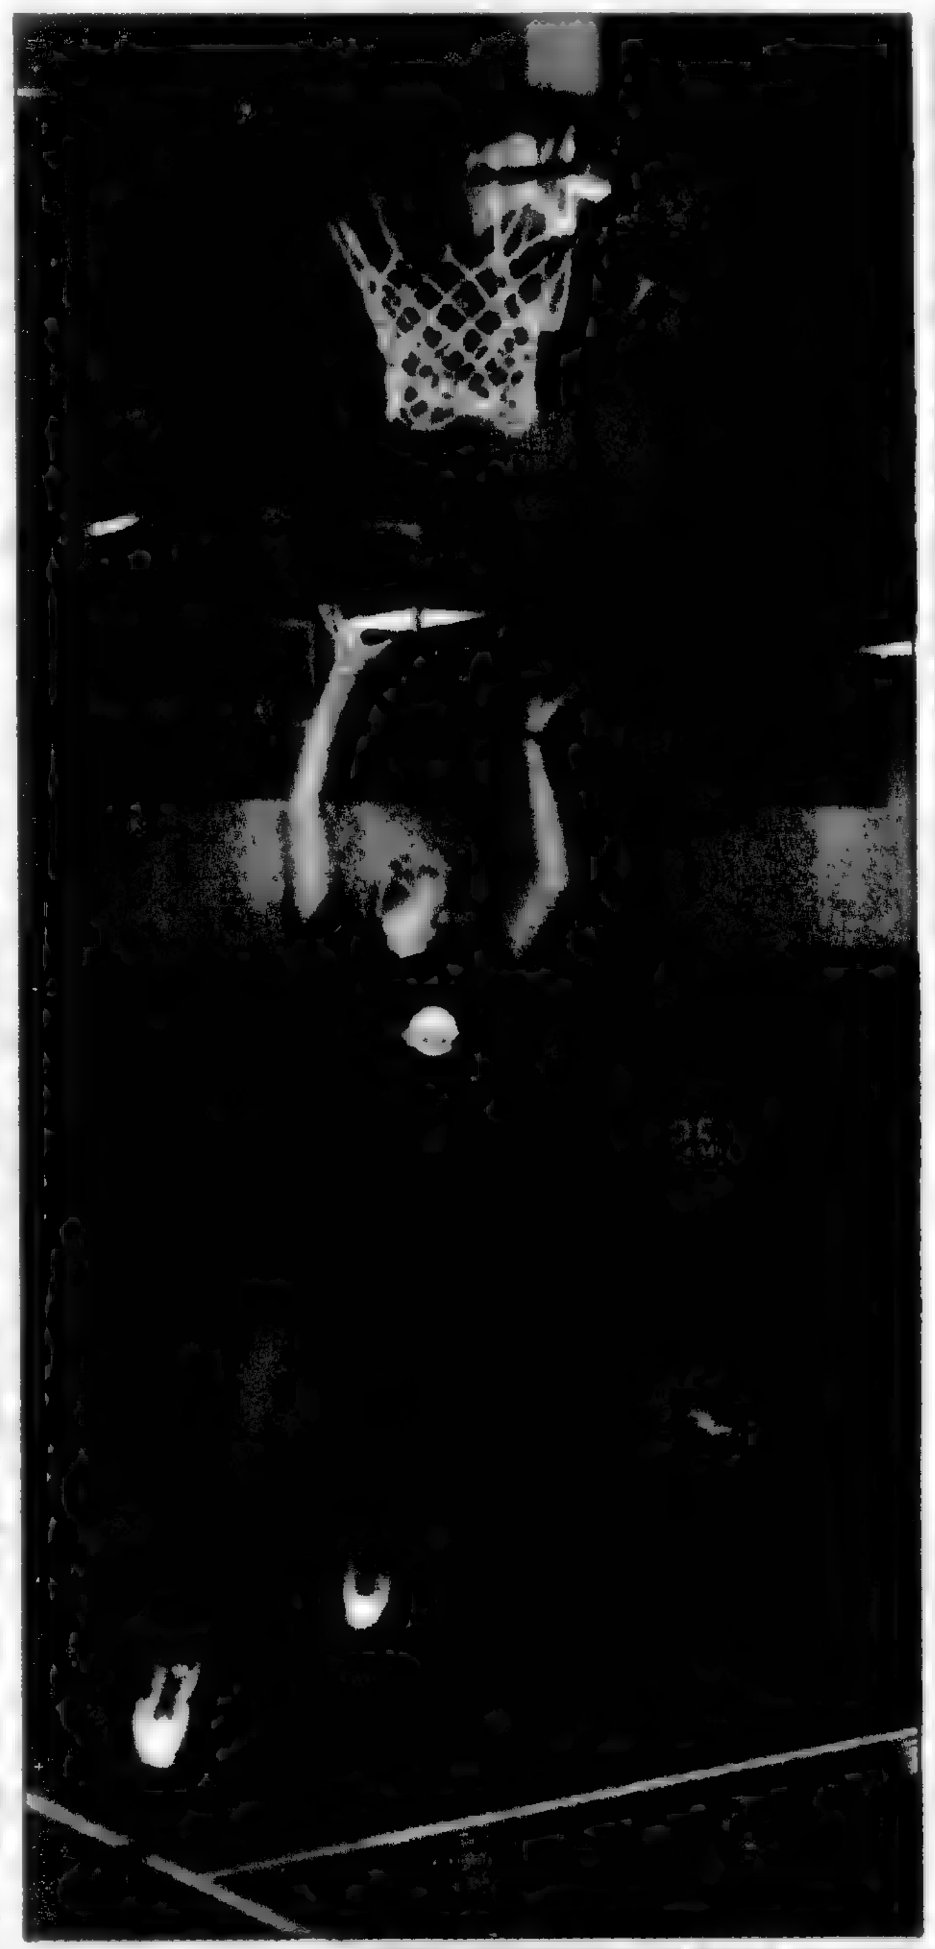
"Grace proved that she can lead the team with her effort last year," Hines said. "Val keeps improving and plays a strong point guard for us."

Seniors Emily Crick, Paige Roberts and Jordyn Bacchus round out the starting five.

"All three girls bring talent and experience to the floor," Hines said. "They practice hard, and it shows during games."

Senior Brooklynn Richards and junior Katelyn Holm will also be in the mix.

"We are making improvements for the program, and its nice to see the girls are willing to play hard," Hines said.



STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Megan Peters goes up for a layup Monday during and the Rayders' last pre-season practice before opening their season Tuesday against Ellsworth.

Many Rayders earn all-conference honors

A host of Charlevoix Rayder athletes earned all-conference honors in football, volleyball and soccer for the just-concluded fall 2011 season.

The football and volleyball teams were particularly well-represented in the Lake Michgian Conference honors.

In football, Andrew Potter, Charlie Hamilton, Andrew Robarge, Coby Herriman were named to the first team, while River Gauthier, Marc Durkee, Josh Hogan, Tanner Catt earned honorable mention honors

In volleyball, the leauge champion Rayders' Jenna Way, Megan Peters, Kelly Greyerbiehl were named to the first team, while Kelsey Way, Karley Pearsall earned honorable mention honors.

In Soccer, Charlevoix's Nick Snabes was named to the first team while Sawyer Golovich earned an honorable mention

In all 47 athletes from four area schools were named to the All-Lake Michigan Conference teams for the 2011 fall season. The all-league teams were selected by conference coaches.

commission has had the faith in the staff. We always knew that the buck stops with the commission. If the contract comes in too high, you turn down the contract and pull the plug."

Ultimately, the board voted 5-1, in favor of the resolution. Commissioner Rich Gillespie cast the sole dissenting vote.

Gillespie said he was not opposed to the project in general, but rather the fact that he believes that construction of the trail should have the consent of property owners along the path's route.

As the trail has been discussed over the past several years, several property owners along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road have come forward saying they don't want a recreational trail along their property. Even though the trail is proposed to be constructed in the road right-of-way, some property owners have argued that the county does not have the right to do so. However, the Michigan Attorney General has issued an opinion contrary to that argument.

"No one is a more ardent supporter of public projects," Gillespie said. "But I think this flies in the face of the efforts we've been trying to make and private property rights."

Assuming that all of the funding pieces fall into place as expected, a tentative timetable prepared by Northwest Design Group estimates that construction of the trail could begin in the spring of 2013.

In the meantime, the county parks and recreation committee has begun preliminary planning for the second phase of the trail — which will likely begin at U.S. 31 and head east, county commissioner and committee member Shirlene Tripp said.

COA

$355,000 dip into savings. At that rate in another three or four years the agency will have burned through its savings.

And to add to the urgency, the senior millage is set to expire next year, which means come August or November of 2012, the commission will be coming to voters with a request for a renewal — or perhaps an increase in the millage.

Messer said his recommendation is to fill the budget hole through a combination of the millage and implementing a sliding-scale fee for services. The scale would be based on a client's ability to pay, where those with the lowest household incomes would be charged the lowest percentage of the cost of the service.

"I just don't think it's fair to ask the taxpayers to bear all that burden," Messer said.

Messer said he thinks the agency could incorporate a fee-structure (and the associated billing functions) with the staff it currently has. So far, the county board has told Messer to continue with his work preliminary to implementing a fee structure. He the agency would need about 90 days to implement to program.

In the meantime, Messer and the commission on aging staff are heading back out to hear from the people in another round of community forums.

But this time the questions will be a little different: Should the county seek a senior millage renewal or increase? If an increase, how much? If further cuts are needed to fill the budget gap, which services should be preserved and which should be considered first for elimination?

The first of the community forums is scheduled for 6-8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 1, in the Charlevoix Public Library community room B.

The remaining sessions include:

— Boyne City, 6:30-8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 7, at the Boyne District Library Community Room

— East Jordan, 6:30-8:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 8, at the Grandvue theater

— Beaver Island, 6-8 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 13, at the St. James Township Hall.

CAMP

lic hearings, garner support and complete the application," the supervisor commented.

The township will also need to come up with 25 percent of the value of the property in matching funds, required in order to be considered for the grant.

"We're currently looking at about a $100,000 investment," Knepp said, noting that is only a preliminary number.

Bill Schulman currently owns Camp Sea-Gull with his family and said regardless of whom eventually purchases the property, they would like to see it remain in use as a day camp or overnight camp for kids.

Knepp said she envisions the park as a day use facility that would offer swimming, boating, picnicking and perhaps other recreational amenities. At an informational meeting this spring, there seemed to be little interest among the board and audience in creating any sort of overnight campground on the property.

The township will not learn whether they are approved for the grant until December 2012. Schulman said that shouldn't be an issue for his family because Camp Sea-Gull will be open for business as usual throughout next summer. "We're in no rush to sell," he said, "We've been open 60 years, what's another 60?"

Earlier this year when the Schulmans decided to put the camp up for sale, they also announced the would cease operating the girls summer camp, but would continue to host a health spa, high school marching bands, yoga retreats and other groups who want to use the facility.

The owners actually plan on expanding their business this spring with the introduction of a high-end canoe/kayak store called, Schulman Paddleworks on the site.

"We've had a lot of people interested in buying. Whether they're viable or not is still to be seen," he said.

Plea deal pending in murder case

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A Charlevoix-area woman accused of killing her mother earlier this year will likely avoid a trial on murder charges — and possibly a trip to prison — if a pending plea agreement pans out.

Sandra Gregory, 74, had been scheduled to a four-day jury trial beginning Feb. 6 on a charge of open murder in connection with the March 27 death of her 94-year-old mother, Amelia Patricia Gregory.

But recently Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema and Gregory's defense attorney Kraag Lieberman struck a deal under which Gregory would plead no-contest to a charge of manslaughter — a 15 year felony. In exchange for her plea, the open murder charge, which is punishable by up to life in prison would be dismissed.

The plea could happen as early as Friday, Dec. 9, if arrangements can be made to have Gregory at the Charlevoix County Courthouse for the plea hearing. The plea agreement cutoff date in the case is set for Dec. 16.

Gregory has been out of jail on a $100,000 bond since early July. A condition of that bond is that she is to live with her sister and her sister's husband in Greenville, that she wear an electronic tether device and that she attend weekly mental health counseling sessions.

Gregory

Jarema said a major factor in his decision to make the plea agreement offer is the fact that the two experts who have examined Gregory have offered differing opinions of her mental status.

Gregory's mental capacity has been at issue from the start of the case.

Emergency crews were called to the Gregory residence south of Charlevoix around 8 p.m. on March 27 to a report of a deceased elderly woman in the residence.

According to court documents, Gregory told police that earlier in the day her mother had told her she would rather be with her dead husband than be admitted to a nursing home and that sometime after that conversation she attempted to smother her mother with a pillow and then hit her on the head with a lamp.

Early on in the case defense attorney Lieberman indicated that he intended to offer an insanity defense for Gregory. In the same filings he has conceded that his client was responsible for her mother's death.

He also agreed to accept an evaluation of Gregory by staff from the state's Michigan Center for Forensic Psychiatry that found her competent to stand trial — that is, that she understands the charges against her and can assist in her own defense.

Jarema said the same state examiners also found that Gregory does not suffer from "a mental defect that would prevent a jury from finding her guilty of the charged offense."

However an independent evaluation conducted by another examiner at the defense's request found that she does have qualifying mental conditions — including the early stages of dementia.

Jarema said if the plea takes place as expected, under the reduced charge, it's unclear whether Gregory's sentence will include prison or jail time. That will depend where she "scores" on the state's the minimum sentencing guideline range, and the judge.

He said he expects Gregory will remain out on bond under the current arrangement while she awaits sentencing.

Siren's song ending?

City considering shutting off daily soundings for safety's sake

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Those who work and live in and around downtown Charlevoix may soon have to rely on their stomachs and watches to tell them when it's time for lunch and time for bed.

The Charlevoix City Council is considering a request by city fire chief Paul Ivan to discontinue the practice of sounding the siren atop the city hall at noon and 9:30 p.m. daily.

Ivan came to the council with his request at its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday — not to squelch tradition or make the lunch lines shorter at area restaurants and delis — but with a mind toward the community's safety.

Earlier this year Ivan and public safety officials from Boyne City and East Jordan began an effort to coordinate with all Charlevoix County

Plane crash survivor out for the season

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — An Indiana high school basketball star who suffered a serious head injury in a small plane crash that killed his father and stepmother near the while attempting to land at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport in late June, likely won't return to the court this season, his family said last week.

Austin Hatch made an early commitment in June to play basketball at the University of Michigan starting in 2013. The plane crash happened shortly after.

His family said he's making great strides in his rehabilitation, but the first year is vital to the recovery process and it's unlikely his doctors will clear him to play during his junior season. Along with a head injury, Hatch suffered a punctured lung and broken ribs and collarbone.

The family's statement was distributed by Fort Wayne's Canterbury High School, where the 6-foot-6 Hatch is a junior.

His father was flying when the plane struck a garage in at the corner of Grant and Carpernter streets. The family had been on their way to their summer home on Walloon Lake.

It was the second plane accident Hatch survived. He and his father lived through a 2003 crash that killed Hatch's mother and two siblings. His father was flying then too.

Hatch's family said last month that he had returned home after being cared for at the Munson Medical Center in Traverse City, and the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago.

The statement released Wednesday, Dec. 1, says Hatch will attend Canterbury's games this season but would like his privacy respected with no requests for interviews.

Zoning hurdle next for proposed shelter

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A Charlevoix-based church is one step closer to its goal of establishing a shelter for homeless women and children after the owner of the property targeted for the proposed project signed over the deed last week.

Charles Rehmann of Alanson Development Group, which owns the property on the southwest corner of Garfield and State streets, said the idea for the donation grew out of a confluence of events that started with a July 4 fire that caused extensive damage to the apartment house that previously stood on the property.

After the damaged home was demolished, Rehmann was considering what he and his wife, Marla, might do with the now-vacant property, when he learned of a the shelter project envisioned by Third Day Ministry and Outreach pastor Ginger Stevens. He said donating the property to Third Day seemed to be a perfect fit.

He said the donation serves as a memorial to his late business partners John and Sharon Long. He said Sharon, who was a retired pediatrics nurse, would have "embraced" such a project.

The plan for the Joppa House — as Stevens plans to name the shelter — calls for a facility that can house up to 14 residents and two innkeepers. The operation would offer a sliding-scale day care service in the basement, as well.

To house all that, the Diocese of Gaylord has agreed to donate the house that formerly served as a convent on

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Ginger and Greg (middle) Stevens of Third Day Fellowship and Outreach and Charles Rehmann look over plans for what they hope will someday soon be a new shelter for women and children at the corner of Garfield and State streets. Among the documents before the trio is the deed to the property which Rehmann recently donated to the church for the project.

Cable replacement delayed

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Unexpected delays in the permitting process have prompted Consumers Energy officials to postpone the replacement of an aging underwater cable that supplies the south side of Charlevoix with electricity until spring.

After the successful test of a temporary substation that would supply the south side of the city during the expected eight-week duration of the project last week, Consumers officials were poised to start the project on Dec. 1, company spokesman Tim Petrosky said. However, following a public hearing on Consumers' application for a permit from the Michigan Department of Environmental quality, which took place on Nov. 30, Consumers officials learned that they would have to wait until a two-week public comment period expired before the permit could be granted.

Petrosky said the delayed start caused the project's coordinators to have concerns about icing conditions on the lake.

Consumers Energy had planned to begin replacing the existing four-cable 46,000-volt electric distribution line that runs on the bottom of Lake Charlevoix from the north near the Chicago Club to the south near Northwest Marine Yacht Club this year. The existing lines were installed in 1962 and testing shows that the existing cables will fail sometime in the future. The project calls for the old cables to be replaced with a single upgraded cable that will provide increased service reliability to the city of Charlevoix.

Consumers Energy officials said they had originally scheduled the project outside of the 2011 summer season to minimize the impact on residents, boaters and visitors to the area. The company is reviewing dates to begin the project next year when conditions allow and with minimum impact to the community.

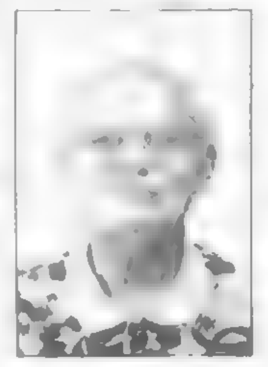
Morning walks quack up columnist



EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Entertainment is where you find it. My entertainment often comes from a daily morning walk to downtown Charlevoix from Burns Street. I buy a copy of the New York Times, what groceries I need and watch the seasons change, one day at a time.

For the past six weeks my walk has included bringing some kernels of corn to the small flock of mallard ducks that hang out in Round Lake and East Park. I began feeding them with corn from the autumn decor around our lamp posts, and when that disappeared, I was able to find alternative sources. Very quickly, some of the resident ducks began to recognize me and run toward me as soon as I came into their sight. One morning after a few weeks of daily feeding, I approached East Park on the Townhouse side of the street. A dozen ducks were waiting at the park corner of Bridge and Clinton. As soon as they saw me, they waddled out into the street, stopping traffic until the light changed and I could get to their side of Bridge Street.

On one memorable morning, I was a bit later than usual, and was met by two of the faithful flock as soon as I had crossed the bridge. They followed me down the sidewalk for a block until we got to East Park, where we were joined by another dozen birds.

I wondered whether the ducks were recognizing me personally or whether they identified my coat and hat. One morning, I wore a long tan raincoat and a broad-brimmed hat. Even though I was holding a cob of corn, they paid no attention to me until I began to toss out handfuls of kernels. It seems they only know me as the figure with the green jacket and the Greek cap.

Some mornings there are only two or three ducks, and other times as many as 15. Most often they are already in the park, but occasionally some fly in from Round Lake. Quite a few of them are now familiar enough that I know them as individuals. One hen had a broken right leg at the beginning of our time together, and could only flop along with the aid of her right wing. Recently she seems to be healing nicely and now has a barely noticeable limp. A few individuals are particularly aggressive, and attempt to chase away any competition for food, while most feed comfortably together.

When the Lions Club put up their Christmas tree compound, the duck's line of sight was disrupted for a few days, but they are adaptable and have found new paths to the sidewalk.

When returning from the morning stop at Oleson's, I have found it best to walk back to the bridge through the alley. If I try to sneak along on the west sidewalk on Bridge, the ducks will begin to cross the street, regardless of traffic. Up to now there have been no known traffic fatalities, but I worry about them.

I don't know whether it is completely legal to feed wild ducks-maybe there are rules like those for deer feed. The ducks seem very appreciative, but so far none of them has followed me all the way home, which, I suppose would mean I could keep them.

Entertainment is where you find it.

Letters to the editor

Thanks to St. Marys Cement

Editor:

A grateful "Thanks" to Dirk Cox and the crew at St. Marys Cement plant in Charlevoix. Friday, Dec. 1 staff at St. Mary's shared their expertise in the making of cement with our Webelos Den (Pack 17 of East Jordan). The boys were exposed to the complexity of taking a "rock' and creating building material for much of our infrastructure. Of course what they saw was the fun of big machines, an amazing view of Lake Michigan, and, most importantly, the generous spirit of individuals who make time in their day for others.

The field trip will help the boys meet requirements for their geology pin, but they will also be left with lasting memories.

Charlevoix County Community Foundation releases annual report

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation saw an increase in charitable donations in 2011. This information, and more, is chronicled in the foundation's recent annual report, titled, "It's Showtime!"

In spite of ongoing economic challenges in Michigan and across the country, more than 1,000 people made a charitable contribution to the foundation, with overall gifts totaling more than $1,275,000. As a result, the foundation was able to distribute nearly $950,000 in grants that supported the area's nonprofit agencies and other causes. In addition, the foundation played a supporting role by providing more than $147,000 in scholarships to local students.

Some of the foundation's grants provided assistance for programs that benefit the area's young people, including the $20,500 distributed by the members of the foundation's Youth Advisory Committee. Programs that helped meet the community's most pressing needs — purchasing clothing, covering fuel and utility expenses and helping to stock the area's food pantries — also received extra attention, as did programs aimed at economic development and community leadership 2011 was a year of growth for organizational aspects as well, as the foundation was reconfirmed in the Council on Foundations National Standards process, a designation that signifies that the Charlevoix County Community Foundation meets or exceeds all of the requirements of the organization's accreditation process. Other highlights included the implementation of the organization's new strategic plan.

"In a lot of ways, 2011 was a significant year for us," said foundation president Chip Hansen. "We were able to get the most out of our resources, while responding positively to key needs in our community, in spite of ongoing economic challenges."

"Our endowed funds are a huge advantage," Hansen explained, adding, "as they allow us to enjoy a certain level of predictability in an economy that has otherwise been unpredictable."

With an asset base of nearly $20.3 million and the support of so many people on an annual basis, the foundation has been able to grant more than $11 million since 1992.

"2012 marks the 20th anniversary of the community foundation," Hansen said, adding, "We've come a long way in 20 years, and our growth is a reflection of the generous nature of our community."

More information about the community foundation is available in its annual report. For a copy of the report, call the foundation office at (231) 536-2440 or access it online at www.c3f.org.

SIREN

municipalities which have existing sirens — which also includes Charlevoix Township, and Boyne Falls — in hopes of creating a county-wide emergency warning system.

Ivan told the council the plan is for the system — which would most likely be used for a weather emergency such as a tornado — to be used only in circumstances where there is an imminent serious threat and people need to take cover immediately.

He said, like any alarm, it's important that (aside from a once-a-month test) it is used only when there is an immediate danger to avoid desensitizing residents to the sound.

Ivan explained that many years ago the siren was used to call firefighters to the station when there was a call. But that practice was discontinued with the advent of 9-1-1 and pagers that notify firefighters when they are needed.

He said even the 9:30 p.m. sounding no longer has any relevance as a curfew notice for youth as the city's earliest curfew is 10 p.m.

Although no one on the council voiced any opposition to Ivan's plan at Monday's meeting, the council did heed a suggestion from city manager Rob Straebel to postpone their decision on the matter until their next meeting in two weeks to allow the community to weigh in on the change.

"Sometimes small issues like this can become big," Straebel said.

If given the go-ahead for the change, the siren would be heard only during monthly tests at 7 p.m. on the first Tuesday of the month.

Ivan said planners are still drawing up criteria for when the emergency siren would be activated and who would have the authority to set it off.

(Visit www.charlevoixcourier.com to weigh in on the siren issue through this week's online poll.)

In other business, the council conducted a public hearing on a proposed amendment to the city's municipal airport ordinance.

Airport manager Matt Bailey explained that the ordinance needs to be updated to give some enforceability to existing airport policies — in particular rules about parking and standards for several of the airport's functions.

After hearing some comments regarding some wording in the ordinance, city attorney Jim Young asked the council to table the matter to allow him some time to review and edit the proposed language.

SHELTER

the St. Mary Church property less than a block away from the site of the donated land.

Stevens said representatives from a house moving company recently inspected the former convent building and found it to be in good shape and a good candidate for moving.

Stevens said the estimated cost of moving the house is about $10,500 and another $15,000 to build a new basement and foundation.

With the deed to the property securely in hand and a building to put on the land at the ready, the next big hurdle for the project will be getting approval from the city.

The parcel is zoned R-2, which would not normally allow for the type of use that the shelter would represent. In fact, none of the zones in the city's current zoning ordinance contemplate a "transitional home," city planning and zoning director Mike Spencer said. That's where the "comparable use" section of the city's zoning ordinance kicks in, he said. The section gives the city's zoning board of appeals the authority to "classify a use into a comparable use category which is not specifically mentioned (in the ordinance.)" In this case, the R-2 zoning does allow "churches and church-related structures, such as parish hall, parsonages, and cemeteries."

So, it will be up to the zoning board of appeals — likely at its January meeting, to determine if the proposed shelter qualifies as a "church-related structure."

Stevens noted that although the building will not serve as a church in the traditional sense, Joppa House will ask clients to participate in offered programs, including church services, financial counseling, cooking, motivational groups, substance abuse counseling and Bible study.

Spencer said if the zoning board of appeals makes the appropriate finding, the rest of the project's approvals could be handled administratively. He added that his review of preliminary plans for the project have not uncovered any issues that would create a zoning concern.

Stevens said she is hopeful — if all goes well, the shelter could be operating sometime next spring.

Donations can be sent to Third Day Fellowship, P.O. Box 174, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. Donors should note in the memo line whether their donation is for the Joppa House shelter, the ministry operations fund or the food pantry program.

New student-led music club strikes a chord

AEBRA COE
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

A new club is hitting all the right notes at Charlevoix High School. Members of the student-run music club say the group offers an outlet for musical students to practice and perform with others like them at the school.

Andrea Rizzo says it all started with a dream — literally. The 17-year-old formed the group this spring after she said she had a vivid dream about being in a band, and thought, "this has to happen."

She worked with several other students to build support this spring and the music club had their first performance at the school's homecoming celebration in October.

"It's something for kids at the school who don't have another niche like sports," said Rizzo.

The club currently has eight singers and six instrumentalists and they all get together to practice four to five days a week.

Robby Hovie, a senior, also helped create the club. He said he's played guitar since third grade and wanted to find other musicians to be in a band.

He spoke with several other students who agreed there was a need for a musical outlet that the school hadn't provided them.

"I like playing in front of the school. It provides a break for the student body from watching sports," said Hovie, who acts as the band's coordinator. He said the school has devoted much of its extra-curricular effort toward athletics, but this group of kids was interested in branching out, being creative and using the school's resources for something different.

Rizzo said it was a challenging experience getting the club going, "It started off rough," she said. They had trouble finding a teacher to supervise, a space to practice and equipment with which to play.

"I thought I was in over my head," she said, "We finally figured everything out and then started to progress, slowly."

The group is now supervised by auditorium director and lead day custodian Tom Eggers. They use the auditorium or the band room to practice, which ever is available.

Rizzo said it was the other students that motivated her to continue working to make the club a reality, "It wasn't all about the music, or if we got to perform or not. It was all about the friendships the club created and the enthusiasm the members had."

The club is now entirely student run and organized. At practices, the large group first splits up and practices in smaller pieces then comes together as one.

Their next performance will be Thursday, Dec. 15, at the school's academic awards banquet. They'll perform contemporary and classic songs from a variety of genres. The recently formed music club is also planning a performance at the half time of a Charlevoix varsity basketball game in January.

Grey Gables still chocolate champ

The Grey Gables Inn rode the popularity of their tasty hot chocolate accompanied by caramel-wrapped marshmallows to a fifth consecutive victory in the "Charlevoix's Hot Chocolate Champ" competition hosted by Flurry Fest this past Saturday in East Park. This year's contest featured the closest results yet in the five year-old community competition featuring local eateries.

The Grey Gables Inn garnered 61 total votes, besting Sadie & Jake's Gallery & Café by a slim two-vote margin. Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant finished third with 37 votes with Scovie's, Edgewater Bistro, Kilwin's and Whitney's of Charlevoix all finishing within eight votes of one another. This year's voting appears to indicate that while the Grey Gables Inn remains the top dog when it comes to hot chocolate, the rest of the field is truly upping their cocoa game, Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Director Keith Carey said.

The event also featured Santa's traditional arrival, chauffeured by the Charlevoix Volunteer Fireman's Association and sponsored by Northwestern Bank. Santa's reindeer also made an appearance and great music provided by Tuba Christmas, the Petoskey Steel Drum Band, Tiger-Bear Jon and the Charlevoix High School performing arts' Christmas glee ensemble filled the heated tent in East Park.

Flurry Fest was supported by generous contributions from Bay Winds Federal Credit Union, Bingham Insurance Services, Charlevoix Ace Hardware, Charlevoix Courier, Landscape Logic, Way Transportation and Todd & Pam Wyett.

Calling all cartons!

Recycling officials seeking more cardboard cartons

Emmet County Recycling

HARBOR SPRINGS — Residents of Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Presque Isle counties have been able to recycle coated paper cups and cartons -- such as milk cartons and juice boxes -- for more than a year.

But at the Emmet County Recycling Center, where the recyclables are sorted in preparation for their use by factories in the region, staff say they aren't seeing many cartons in the bins.

So to raise awareness of carton recycling, Emmet County Recycling is issuing a challenge to their friends and neighbors: collect 10,000 pounds of cartons in 10 weeks.

"People in Northern Michigan are great recyclers — for example, we know that well over 80 percent of Emmet County residents recycle with us — so we're pretty sure it's just a matter of getting the word out that cartons are recyclable. It's a whole new material that previously wasn't recyclable," said Elisa Seltzer, director of Emmet County Recycling.

The "10,000 Pounds in 10 Weeks" campaign is being supported by a matching grant from the Carton Council. The Carton Council is a group of carton manufacturers seeking to increase recycling of cartons across the United States.

The 10-week challenge runs Nov. 14, through Jan. 22, 2012. Cartons will continue to be collected after the January deadline, but won't count toward the 10,000 pound goal. Cartons can be recycled at all Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Presque Isle county recycling drop sites, and through Emmet County's curbside collection program. Even though they are made of paper, because they are often still damp, cartons are collected in the containers bins. In addition to milk cartons and juice boxes, similar containers like half-and-half cartons and broth boxes are included too.

From the Recycling Center, the cartons are shipped to Great Lakes Tissue (GLT) in Cheboygan. Great Lakes Tissue separates the plastic/aluminum layers from the paper portion of the carton and uses the paper to make tissue products, such as paper towels and napkins.

"Carton recycling is a fine example of how recycling supports jobs in the region," remarked Seltzer. "GLT bought the former Procter and Gamble mill, which was sitting shuttered right in the middle of Cheboygan. They brought jobs back to the town. Recycled cartons are important to GLT because they're a lower cost feedstock, compared to virgin paper pulp. The lower cost material helps GLT compete."

Under the Carton Council grant, Emmet County Recycling will be educating about carton recycling many different ways. Plans include everything from information on the county website to a "found objects" sculpture by Ritch Branstrom of Rapid River. "We're having fun with all different ways of communicating that cartons are recyclable," said Kate Melby, communications coordinator for Emmet County Recycling.

Toys for Tots event makes a splash

Fox Motors, Avalanche Bay team up to support annual drive

Fox Motors in Charlevoix has teamed up with Avalanche Bay Water Park in Boyne Mountain to bring a little joy to children in need. From now until Dec. 10, the public is encouraged to bring a new, unwrapped toy to the Fox Charlevoix dealership on US 31 in Charlevoix. In appreciation, anyone donating a toy will receive two free water park passes from Avalanche Bay. In addition, Fox Charlevoix will again make a donation to Toys for Tots of Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties with every gift donated.

"It's a great charity," John Cueter, northern division director for Fox Motors said. "Just knowing that we helped put a smile on the face of a child and their family makes it all worthwhile." Last year Fox Motors collected over 14,000 toys that were given to Toys for Tots for distribution throughout the Grand Traverse region. "We're excited to be able to extend the toy campaign to Charlevoix this year." Cueter added.

The Fox for Tots toy drive will be topped off with a party at Fox Charlevoix on Saturday, Dec. 10. The public is invited to come take part in this free event. There will be free food and refreshments, children's games, drawings and giveaways and, of course, Santa Clause and his reindeer

All donated toys collected at Fox Charlevoix will be given to Toys for Tots who distribute to children in need through area family service agencies.

The event sponsors include Fox Motors of Charlevoix, Avalanche Bay in Boyne Mountain, WKHQ, WMKT, Big Country Hits, Northern Michigan Review and Charter Media.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation grossed $85,000 from the 240 attendees Friday at Castle Farms in Charlevoix, with more than 50 volunteers to help the event run smoothly. Proceeds provide support for the new school nurse project, placing registered nurses in area schools.

Rayder boys look for depth to counter inexperience

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REIVEW

The members of the 2011-12 Charlevoix Rayder boys varsity basketball team are front (from left) Deauantae Drain, Chandler Novotny, Charlie Hamilton, Andrew Potter, Tanner Catt, Jarod Reibel, Justin Erskine; back, coach Adam Wood, Andrew Plude, Tommy Zipp, Matt Batdorff, Sawyer Russell, Josh Hogan, Coby Herriman, Will Jeakle, assistant coach Jim Geis.

Adam Wood eased some concerns among Rayder Nation last season when he took over the Charlevoix program from legendary coach Keith Haske and guided the Rayders to the Lake Michigan Conference championship.

Ten seniors graduated from that team, leaving very little varsity experience, relatively speaking, for Wood to work with in 2011-12.

Still, it's Charlevoix, and the Rayders always seem to find a way to be competitive, and successful, no matter how much experience returns.

"We do have quite a bit of inexperience at the varsity level," said Wood, who led the Rayders to a 16-6 finish a year ago. "I feel really good after a couple weeks of practice about how far down the bench we're going to be able to go."

Senior guards Andrew Potter and Andrew Plude are the lone returnees who played measurable minutes a year ago. Three others, Will Jeakle, Matt Battdorf and Coby Herriman — all 6-2 seniors — also return.

Among the top players up from last year's JV team are 6-4 Sawyer Russell along with diminutive — but very talented, athletic and basketball-smart — guards Charlie Hamilton and Tanner Catt.

Josh Hogan, a 6-6 senior, has joined the Rayders and should provide a strong inside presence, despite the fact that this is his first year of playing organized basketball.

"He's never played so we're patient with him, but he's got a great physical body," Wood said. "It's not easy, especially in this sport where there are skills involved, but luckily he's a quick study. He's done a great job so far and we're hoping for some good things from him."

And for the Rayders on the whole.

The challenge for Wood in his sophomore season will be to prove that the Rayders can be competitive, and can defend their league title and be a threat in the state tournament, without the benefit of many returnees who have been through the minefield of the Lake Michigan Conference.

In Charlevoix over the past decade and a half, that's come to be expected. This year, at least as they head into their opener, those goals haven't changed.

"Coming into the year, no matter what anybody else's expectations (for us) are, our's are playing for the league championship and getting down to the Breslin," Wood said. "That's been kind of the way we've gone about it. We've kept up the pace in practice. It's a good group of kids who listen and who work hard every day. ... When you work hard and the kids buy in, you've always got a chance."

Here's a look at what the Rayders will be up against from other area Lake Michigan Conference teams:

Boyne City

The Ramblers return a slew of talented and experienced players, have a roster loaded with good size, and have added a talented transfer who might be as good a guard as there is in Northern Michigan.

In short, Boyne looks — on paper — like a legitimate threat to contend for the Lake Michigan Conference championship, which is hasn't claimed since 1998.

One of the Ramblers top players is Jay Redman, a 6-foot-4 senior and the son of coach Redman, is back for his third varsity season.

He's led Boyne in scoring and rebounding in each of the past two years, and is a two-time All-Lake Michigan Conference first-teamer. He has made a verbal commitment to play in college at Lawrence Tech.

Joining the fray is point guard Keegan LaBlance, a transfer from Charlevoix, who, despite standing just 5-foot-8, may be as talented pound-for-pound as any player in Northern Michigan and who also may be suiting up on a college campus next season.

"We've got a true point guard now ... with a whole lot of potential," said Nick Redman of LaBlance, who proved himself a deft ball handler and capable scorer during his time at Charlevoix.

Jay Redman is one of seven returning letter winners from a team that finished 9-12 a year ago and lost in a Class C district championship game to Harbor Springs. Six of those losses were by four points or less.

Also back is Ryan Carson, an athletic 6-5 sophomore who paid his dues last year on the varsity as a freshman.

BOYS PREVIEW

Weston Kartes, 6-5; Garritt Moeke, 6-2, and Collin Kruzel, 6-3 and 220 pounds; also return. All three are seniors and, along with the likes of Carson and Jay Redman, give Boyne a good-sized and potent frontline the likes of which the Ramblers have not produced in years. All played significant minutes a year ago.

Guards Tevin Larmond and T.J. Douglas also return, and both possess the speed and quickness required of defensive stoppers. Corey Redman, a 6-4 freshman and coach Redman's son, will also be in the mix, giving the Ramblers plenty of depth and versatility.

East Jordan

East Jordan boys' basketball coach Darrin Weber and his Red Devils finished 9-12 a year ago, and must replace stalwart Wes Petrie, an all-around effort player who kept the Red Devils in some games and helped them finish other close ones.

Still, a solid nucleus returns in forwards John Richards and Dustin Mellios, and Austen Mellios. All three are seniors. The 6-1 Dustin Mellios averaged a team-best 14 points per game a year ago.

Senior guard Wyatt Werner returns as does sophomore guard Noah Bacchus. Both are solid ball handlers. Another sophomore, 6-2 Isaiah Sladick, will be counted upon to contribute in the post, Weber said.

"The kids all have a lot of experience," Weber said. "We went to team camp at CMU (Central Michigan University) and a Gaylord team camp. We'll try to be more aggressive on the defensive side and we'll try to play more up-tempo offensively because we're scrappy.

"As long as we can handle turnovers and rebound, we should be competitive in most games."

Harbor Springs

The Rams return just two players who played significant minutes last season when they won their first Class C district championship since 2008.

Senior point guard Scott Morse is the lone returning starter and is coming off a year in which he averaged about 8 points and 4 assists per game.

He'll be joined in the backcourt by senior Ben Kloss, the only other player on the roster who has meaningful varsity game experience. He, like Scott Morse, proved to be a capable ball handler and scorer a year ago, and the two veterans will be counted upon to shoulder the scoring load as their teammates adjust to varsity ball.

Two seniors, Emmet Fineout and Matt Luebke, also return, and they'll be joined by a good number of juniors headlined by 6-6 Neil Zoerhof along with Nick Vandermus and Spencer Kloss, both 6-3, and guard Peter Lauer. Varsity newcomer Ryan Cantrell, a 6-3 senior, also should help in the front court. Also in the mix is junior Trevor Rohrer.

Lauer and Zoerhof, the top scorers on last year's JV team, figure to start alongside Scott Morse and Kloss, while the fifth starting spot remains up for grabs.

SPORTS reviewing the action

JV takes two of three in opening week

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

It was an up and down (and back up, again) first week of action for the Charlevoix Rayder girls junior varsity basketball team last week.

The Rayder JV opened up their week and the season on Tuesday, Nov. 30 with a 49-14 victory over neighboring Ellsworth.

Kourtney Putman led Charlevoix with 12 points while Gloria Greene, Jennaca Holecheck, Ellie Way contributed 6 each.

The Rayders jumped out to a 18-4 lead by the end of the first quarter and never looked back.

Head JV coach Todd Klinger also pointed to the strong play of Kelsey Pischner on defense and on the boards.

"This win was a total team effort with 12 players scoring at least one basket," Klinger said. "The girls were aggressive on defense which led to many steals and transition baskets."

He added that he was pleased with the effort, especially for a first game

""We did not have a lot of turnovers which, in a first game, teams usually will."

However, when Cheboggyan came town on Wednesday, it was the Rayders' turn to spend most of the game playing catch-up, before ultimately losing 43-22. The Rayder kept it close in the first half, trailing 12-9 at the end of the first quarter and 19-17 at the half.

But the Chiefs blew the game open in the second half, scoring 24 points while holding the Rayders to 3.

Leading ther Rayders against Cheboygan were Kelsey Pischner with 6 points and Katie Hinkley with 5

"Cheboygan played a very intense and uptempo style that we hung tough in the first half, but we struggled to match that style in the second half," Klinger said. "Offensively, we were hurrying our shots and it seemed like the basket had a cap on it," He added noting that the Rayders only scored 1 point through the first 13 minutes of the seconnd half.

"This game was a good learning experience for the girls to see the style and intensity that we want to play with."

The Rayders came back to cap off a busy first week of the season with a 53-13 victory over Mesick.

Charlevoix was led by Jennaca Holecheck who had 12 points, Kourtney Putman, with 9, and Ellie Way with 8.

Klinger also pointed to the play of Olivia Storm, Maggie Hamilton, and Jennifer Archery.

"The team bounced back from a tough loss to Cheboygan with a great team effort," Klinger said. " The girls came out and set the tone with aggressive full court pressure."

After a busy first week, The Rayders, now 2-1, will not play again until they host Gaylord on Tuesday, Dec. 13. Tip off is set for 6 p.m.

Lady Rayders post strong start following season switch

After just a short time for many members of the Charlevoix varsity girls basketball team to switch gears from volleyball to basketball, the Rayders' first week of the season was both busy and full of bright spots.

It took the Rayders a quarter make the transition from hitting balls over nets to shooting them through them in th season opener Tuesday, Nov. 30, but once they got rolling, there was no looking back.

Jenna Way scored 15 points and Charlevoix rode an 18-0 second-quarter surge to a 51-39 victory over Ellsworth season opener for both schools.

"This was a good win for us tonight," Charlevoix coach Leslie Hoffman said. "The girls have not had a chance to practice a lot, but they were able to push the ball very well tonight."

Eight of the 13 Rayders played on the volleyball team that finished its season on Nov. 18 in the Class C state semifinals. They and Ellsworth — playing its first game under new coach Brenda Stevens — played to a 10-10 draw after one quarter.

Then, the Rayders took off.

With Ellsworth point guard Tara Essenberg on the bench with foul trouble, the Rayders

Geology rocks!

Third graders perform geology based mystery

Professor Rocks has gone missing!

The third graders in Shelly Novotny's class recently solved the mystery of the professor's whereabouts and taught friends and family about the geology during their Geology Rocks play on Thursday, Nov. 17 ,at the Charlevoix Elementary School in the science lab

The third graders have been learning about the rock cycle and this play was a culmination to their studies.

In this exploration, the third graders took their friends and family along with them on their journey to find out where Professor Rocks disappeared. Along they way they taught their audience about the rock cycle and all the different type of rocks, fossil fuels and different earth forms.

"I was very nervous, but it was really fun," Margaret Sheets said, who played a narrator named Jen. " I really liked singing the Landform song. It was really fun," she said.

Each child, with a classmate or two, portrayed a different earth form such as volcanoes, mountains, valleys, and ferns. Each of the groups of students had their own song to perform along with some comedic role playing.

"I love to integrate different learning styles into my lessons!" Novotny said." Some students are very talented in this area and the play gave every child a chance to shine."

Emily is a sophomore at Charlevoix High School and is the daughter of Mary Chapdelaine.

took advantage and went on an 18-0 tear and seized a 32-14 halftime lead.

"Our press in the second quarter was outstanding," Hoffman said. "Most of our points were from steals and just the pressure we were able to put on them."

But the Rayders weren't able to get comfortable.

Ellsworth had its own burst, and came out of the halftime locker room with renewed focus, putting it to work for a 15-0 run to draw within 32-29.

"We started the second half the way I expect this team to play," Stevens said. "We were using our strengths to our advantage throughout that third quarter."

But that's as close as the Lancers would get. Freshman Madeline Boss converted a three-point play with 2 minutes, 50 seconds left in the third to stop the bleeding and give the Rayders a 35-29 advantage.

Ellsworth managed to hang close and trailed by that same six-point margin, 43-37, midway through the fourth.

But Sydney Carlson scored six of her nine points over the final four minutes as the Rayders pulled away.

Emily Veenstra scored 19 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead Ellsworth. Nine of her points came in the third quarter. Dana Nuemann added nine points for the Lancers.

In the Rayders' second game of the week, a valiant late-game comeback from an 11-point deficit wasn't enough to prevent a 42-38 loss to Cheboygan in a non-league game Thursday.

The loss dropped the Rayders to 1-1.

Jenna Way scored 10 points and Madeline Boss and Kelsey Way added eight apiece to lead the Rayders.

Brooke Hancock scored 13 points to pace Cheboygan.

"I told the girls this was our second test," Hoffman said, "We played well against Ellsworth, but we were playing a different-caliber team in Cheboygan. Cheboygan's more physical, and they tested us a little bit more."

Jenna Way, Charlevoix's point guard, went to the bench with three fouls in the second quarter and the Chiefs took advantage, seizing a 22-11 halftime lead.

Jenna Way opened the third quarter with a bucket and Kelsey Way hit four straight free throws to pull the Rayders back into contention. They eventually tied it at 38-all on a Kelsey Way field goal with under to minutes to play, but the Chiefs outscored Charlevoix 4-0 down the stretch to put it away.

Kelsey Way finished with 10 rebounds.

"She played one heck of a game," Hoffman said. "She's a scrapper in there. She gets all the second-effort shots. She was a great presence for us tonight."

The Rayders committed 21 turnovers against the Chiefs after turning it over just 13 times in their opening-night win over Ellsworth.

"It's the court time and game experience for us," Hoffman said.

The Rayders wrapped up the week with a 48-24 victory over Mesick on Friday. Jenna Way led Charlevoix in scoring for the game, which was part of the Lake Michigan Conference-Northwest Conference Challenge.

The Rayders, now 2-1, will now have an opportunity to make up for some of that missed practice time as they are idle until Monday, Dec. 13 when they host Gaylord in another non-league match. Tip off for that game is set for 7:30 p.m. The Rayders open their Lake Michigan Conference season when they host Boyne City at 6 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 16.

'Tis the season . . .

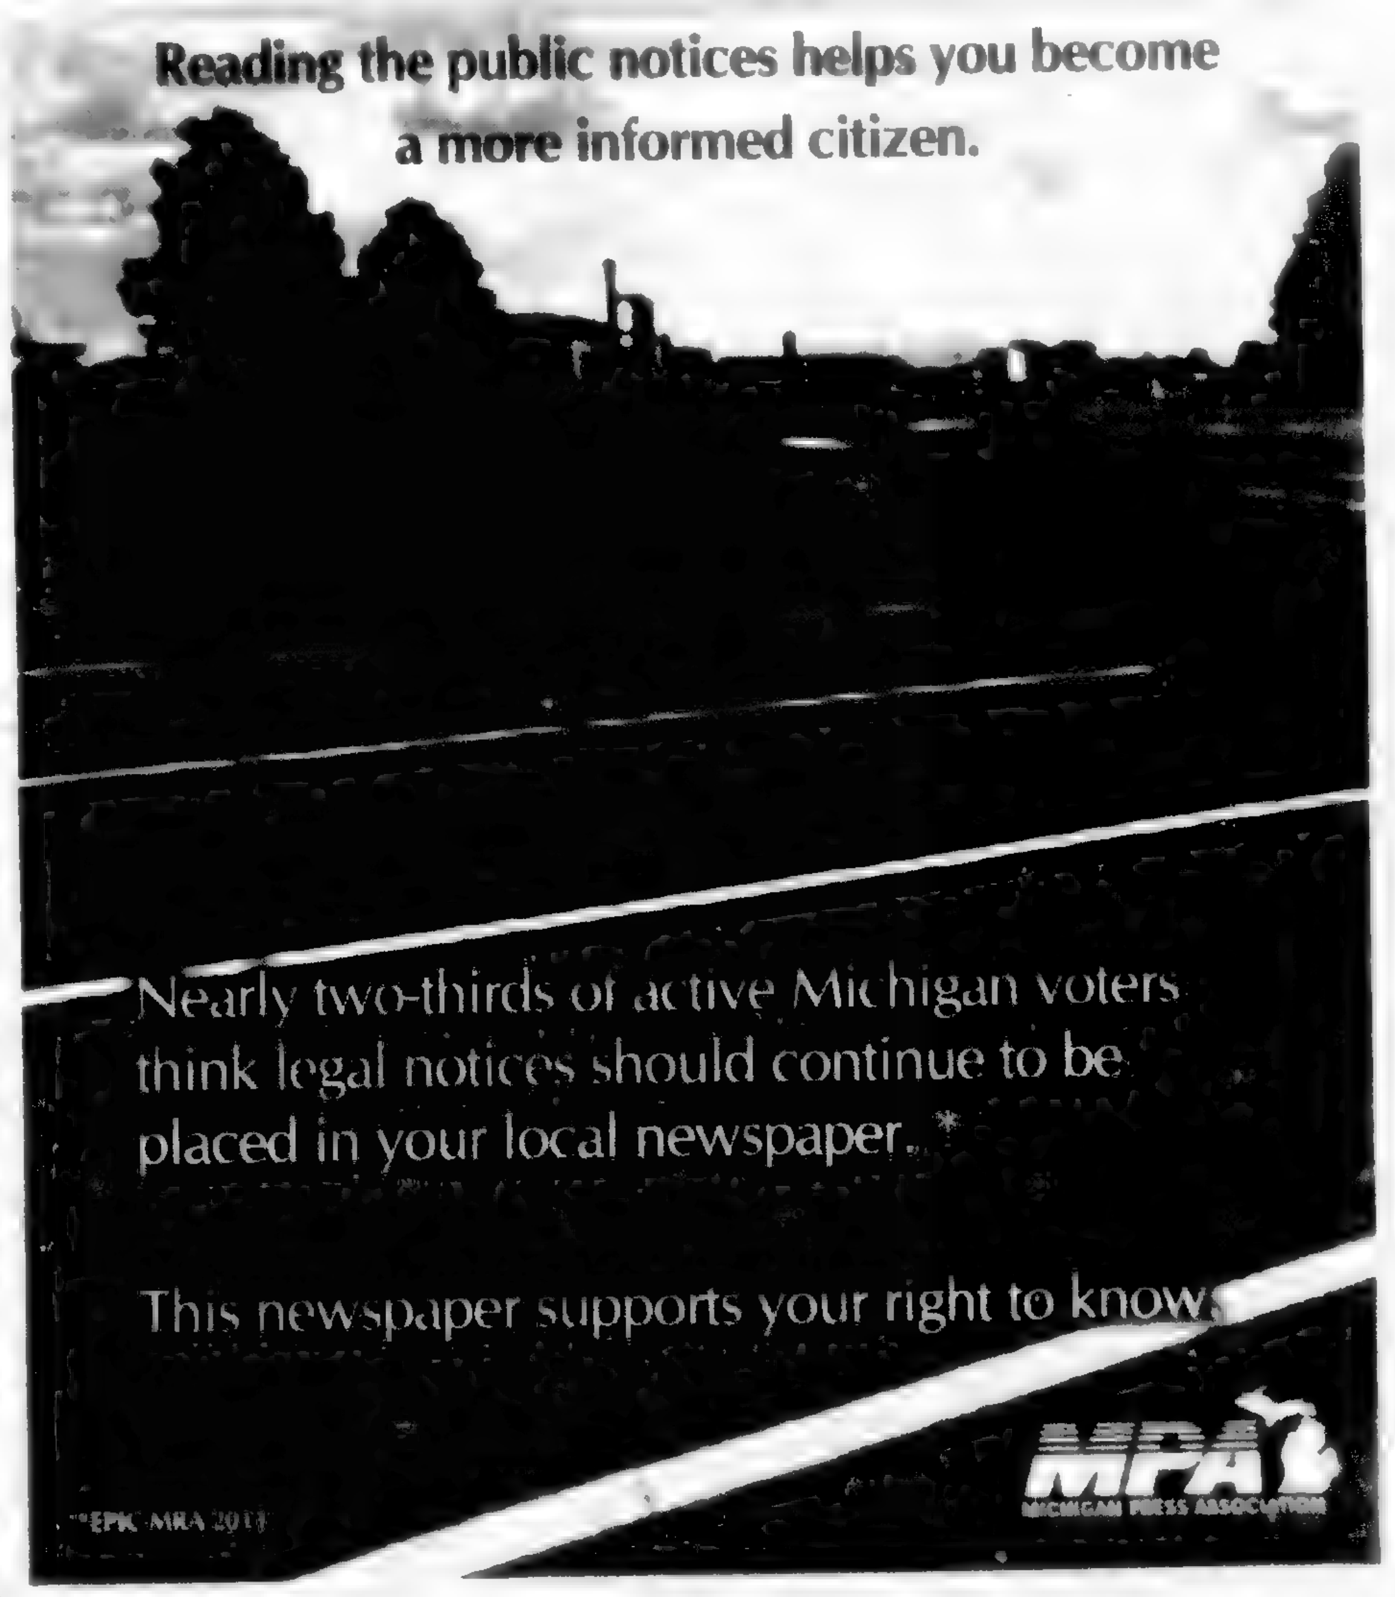
Why do we need public notices?

Public notices tell you, as a citizen, what is being done by your government. State law requires actions of interest to you be published in these notifications.

It keeps you up to date about what's happening with your city, county and school board, as well as other governmental bodies.



Reading the public notices helps you become a more informed citizen.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters think legal notices should continue to be placed in your local newspaper.*

This newspaper supports your right to know.

Blood drives — Food, shelter, comfort and hope: In a season filled with giving, there are many ways you can give back to your community through your American Red Cross. "The gift you give today will be there for the patient needing blood, the family needing shelter, or the child who needs a hug and a blanket," said Sharon Jaksa, CEO for the Great lakes Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross. "Your gifts of time, blood or money can help save the day down the street, across the country and around the world." As a humanitarian organization led by volunteers, the Red Cross offers relief to victims of disaster and helps people prevent, prepare for, and respond to emergencies. As part of that mission, the Red Cross also provides about half of the nation's blood supply through voluntary blood donations. Volunteers are always needed to work in areas related to disaster relief, health and safety, and to provide emergency communications to military members and their families. Volunteers help by coordinating and sponsoring blood drives and by simply rolling up their sleeves and giving blood or platelets. "You're needed in whatever way you choose to give," said Jaksa. "Every day we hear from individuals, families and communities who benefit from the kindness of Red Cross volunteers." In this area, the Red Cross Great Lakes Blood Services Region provides lifesaving blood to hospitals across the state of Michigan and need approximately 700 people to donate blood and platelets each weekday to meet hospital demand. To schedule a donation time or get more information about giving blood or platelets, people can visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Don Jess resigns

ANDY SNEDDON
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS EDITOR

Charlevoix High School is in the market for a new football coach.

Don Jess resigned after nine years at the helm. He informed superintendent Chet Janik of his decision on Friday, and told his players on Monday.

"This is going to give me a lot more time to spend with my family," said Jess, 35, a father of two boys, ages 2 and 5. "It's a year 'round job and my boys are getting older now. My 5-year-old, when I told him, he was pretty happy because I'll be home more."

Jess, a Charlevoix native who graduated from the school in 1994, led the Rayders to a 41-44 record in his nine seasons, including 4-5 in 2011, a slate that included the Rayders' first win over Boyne City since 2006.

He said the decision was not an easy one, but that the time was right to move on and he leaves the program with no regrets.

Zoning ordinance amendment now heads to city council

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The city of Charlevoix's effort to regulate medical marijuana user, provider and producer operations within its boundaries took one big step closer to becoming a reality Monday.

At its regular monthly meeting, the Charlevoix Planning Commission voted unanimously to recommend approval of a draft amendment to the Charlevoix Zoning Ordinance that would regulate where certified medical marijuana caregivers may produce, prepare and distribute the drug in the city.

The commission voted to send the measure along to the next step toward approval — consideration by the city council — following a public hearing that drew no comments from the public.

The proposed ordinance would allow medical marijuana providers (known as caregivers in the act) to operate only in residential districts R-1 and R-2.

The ordinance would also prohibit medical marijuana operations to be located within 1,000 feet of any school and 500 feet of any school, church, park, or beach.

At Monday's meeting the commission also added a 500-foot buffer zone around the Fire destroys Ellsworth repair shop

STEVE ZUCKER
CHARLEVOIX COURIER EDITOR

ELLSWORTH — Fire officials believe a problem with a wood-burning stove may have been the cause of a fire that destroyed an auto repair business in downtown Ellsworth late Friday.

Banks Township Fire Chief Mark Groenink said firefighters were called to Ellsworth Auto Repair located on Main Street (across the street from the Front Porch Cafe) at about 8:30 p.m. when people working in the area — a Banks Township firefighter and East Jordan Fire Chief Glen Thorman — smelled smoke, and upon investigating, found heavy smoke coming from the business.

Within about 15 minutes fire had erupted from the roof. In all, Groenink called in mutual aid from five other fire departments including East Jordan, Central Lake, Torch Lake, Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township.

He said with the fire well established, firefighters concentrated their efforts on protecting a community center next door from being damaged by the fire. He said firefighters poured huge amounts of water on the area, which taxed the village's water system and prompted fire officials to begin using water from the nearby lake to supplement the water supply.

Damage to the neighboring community center was limited to some broken windows, some melted vinyl trim and some water that made its way into the basement, the fire chief said.

Groenink said it took fire crews about 90 minutes to knock down the bulk of the fire. Firefighters remained on the scene until about 1 a.m. putting out the remaining hot spots.

Groenink said the business is owned by Brian Lemond, who did not have insurance on the building or its contents. He said workers had left the building about 45 minutes before the fire was reported and no one was in the building at the time of the fire. In addition to the business's tools, three cars and two Harley-Davidson motorcycles were destroyed in the fire.

No injuries were reported related to the fire.

Groenink said he believes the fire started in the building's basement in the area of a wood stove that the owner had just recently started using to heat the building.

He said fire crews were grateful for the food and beverages provided by the Front Porch Cafe across the street while crews were fighting the fire.

Gregory takes plea deal in murder case

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A Charlevoix-area woman accused of killing her mother earlier this year took advantage of a plea agreement that will significantly reduce the amount of time she could face behind bars.

Gregory

On Friday, Sandra Gregory, 74, entered a plea of no-contest to a charge of manslaughter, a 15-year-felony, in Charlevoix County's 33rd Circuit Court. In exchange for her plea, Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema agreed to drop the original charge of open murder, which is punishable by up to life in prison.

Gregory had been scheduled to a four-day jury trial beginning Feb. 6 on a charge of open murder in connection with the March 27 death of her 94-year-old mother, Amelia Patricia Gregory.

A no-contest plea is like a guilty plea in that the defendant his held responsible for the crime, but the defendant makes no admission of guilt. Typically, a police report is used as the factual basis for the plea. No-contest pleas are typically only allowed in cases where the defendant either can't remember the circumstances surrounding the charged incident, or when civil litigation could arise from the charged incident.

Gregory's attorney Kraag Lieberman had asserted an insanity defense early on in the case. Jarema said recently that the plea deal was the result of conflicting expert evaluations about Gregory's mental status.

Emergency crews were called to the Gregory residence south of Charlevoix around 8 p.m. on March 27 to a report of a deceased elderly woman in the residence.

According to court documents, Gregory told police that earlier in the day her mother had told her she would rather be with her dead husband than be admitted to a nursing home and that sometime after that conversation she attempted to smother her mother with a pillow and then hit her on the head with a lamp.

Gregory has been out of jail on a $100,000 bond since early July. A condition of that bond is that she is to live with her sister and her sister's husband in Greenville, that she wear an electronic tether device and that she attend weekly mental health counseling sessions.

She is scheduled to be sentenced on the charge at 9 a.m. on January 6, 2012.

Changes to Courier date, appearance coming soon

Steve Zucker
Courier Editor

Change, for some people — especially in tradition-heavy small towns such as Charlevoix — can be troublesome.

For evidence of that, you need look no further than the right side of this page to the poll about whether people think the city should or should not discontinue sounding the downtown fire siren at noon and 9:30 p.m.

Although the daily siren soundings serves no real purpose any more, respondents to the poll (the most responses we've had to a poll question in my roughly 18 months as editor) favor leaving the practice alone by about a 2-1 margin.

Well, we here at the Courier are going to be changing, too.

And while we know that tinkering with something as familiar as your hometown community newspaper could be just as disquieting as a silent passage of the noon hour, we believe the coming changes will be for the better.

First, beginning the first week of January we will be switching from a Wednesday to a Friday publication. Currently the paper prints at the Petoskey News-Review around noon on Tuesday and it is usually on newsstands late that same afternoon and it shows up in local mailboxes on Wednesday. After the first of the year it will print around noon on Thursday, appear on newsstands later Thursday afternoon and show up in local mailboxes on Friday.

This change provides several benefits both to our readers and advertisers. First, with the paper coming out on Friday, it will allow us to put a greater focus on coming weekend events. Also, with most of the major city and school board meetings taking place on Mondays, it will allow for more follow-up reporting following those meetings.

The new publication date also offers advantages to our advertisers, especially those who wish to coordinate their advertising with weekend sales or events.

And if changing the date wasn't enough, we're not stopping there. We'll also be changing the way the paper looks. At the same time the publication date changes, we'll also be changing the Illness inspires healthy holiday habits

A LOOK AT LIFE
Gayle Gennett

Holy Toledo is all I can say about my Thanksgiving. Family came north, stayed a few days and then prior to heading home, gave us an early Christmas present — the stomach flu. It took 12 of the 16 of us down for the count. What I thought might be food poisoning turned into a healthy virus that is contagious and hits hard with no mercy. The doctors and nurses said this flu may spread pretty quickly during Christmas and New Year's as families gather. So here's the heads up to get out the sanitizers, wash those hands and keep your hands and feet to yourself. (Never mind the last one I thought I was back in school.)

Always one to preach about wellness and reducing stress, there I was sicker than I had been in many years. It was as if our family was on a hit list: Carefully hiding out, avoiding personal contact and making an occasional phone call to see who fell to the demise of the Thanksgiving plague. We each gave ourselves a number as we went down, while those with a better immune system held out victorious. I was the fourth stricken and, because I hadn't been taking in the liquids my body required, I needed IVs from the ER to get me through this family epidemic. My five-cups-of-coffee-a-day routine threw my organs into overdrive. With good advice for the umpteenth time, I've started my day with a glass of water rather than a hot cup of Joe. It actually makes me feel more wide awake, a little fuller and definitely less chatty I think my husband likes the last one.

I was successful in reminding myself to take on less and continue with exercising to reduce stress and enjoy the holiday hustle and bustle. So if you are out and about, don't forget to park farther away and take stairs when possible. Take time for yourself whether it is a nap, a walk around the block or to sit and read. We all need a little down time. Increasing your multivitamins, vitamin C or echinacea is a good idea, too. You don't necessarily have to wait for a symptom to show up. Start taking them before all the company or dinner parties and obligations get going. I can't stress hand washing enough. Just water doesn't cut it. The soap companies are not trying to encourage more sales. It's important for disinfecting and the advice of singing "Happy Birthday" quietly in your head is the right amount of time for a scrub-a-dub-dub. If you are in a public bathroom, it's always an added plus to sing aloud as you never know who's having a birthday to celebrate and, after all, it is the holidays, so a Christmas song may be in order.

The month of December brings on events from concerts to dinner parties. If you really don't want to attend them all then don't. it's OK to say "no" occasionally. It's better to eat healthy all the time but during a season where the spread is more apt to be filled with sweet stuff, and add to that rushing to take care of family needs, you may be tempted to slip into the fast food world. If possible it may be better to cook a few things ahead of time, freeze them and thaw when needed so you may continue to eat healthy.

If you are afraid you may overeat at a dinner party, a glass of water before eating will help you to slow down and fill you up a bit. The ideas I listed may or may not be something you already do but a gentle reminder from someone who hid out for a while and is grateful to be upright and mobile again is always worth heeding. After all, good health is something we all want and it's definitely on my Christmas list.

Pastor thankful for community support

As we begin to contemplate the end of the year that culminates in the Christmas season and the anticipation of new beginnings, we at Third Day Fellowship & Outreach would like to thank all of those who support our ministry. So many of our local businesses, community groups and individuals have given of their resources in financial giving, food and physical items to our fledgling street-level ministry here in Charlevoix. Some things have been one-time donations and others have been monthly supporters. My staff and I would also like to give a huge thank-you to the 26 volunteers that help us in the drop-in center offering individual attention to

And again we express immense gratitude for the communities support of our newest project, Joppa House Women's & Children's Transitional Home which will address the needs of women and children who are homeless or facing homelessness.

DDA director grateful to Flurry Fest contributors

The fifth annual Flurry Fest (on Dec. 3) resulted in the Grey Gables Inn defending its "Best Hot Chocolate" title for the fourth time. It also provided a great reason for several hundred residents and visitors to spend time celebrating everything that makes Charlevoix such a terrific community in which to live. Despite the wet weather, festival-goers were treated to a heated tent full of wondrous varieties of hot chocolate provided by our generous local eateries Edgewater Bistro, Grey Gables Inn, Kilwin's, Sadie & Jake's Gallery & Café, Scovie's Gourmet, Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant, Whitney's of Charlevoix and served by their wonderful employees. Seasonal musical favorites were supplied by Tuba Christmas, the Petoskey Steel Drum Band, Tiger Bear Jon and Ms. Jodi Thompson and the Charlevoix High School Christmas Glee ensemble. Santa, escorted by the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Fighters Association, also made his customary appearance to gather Christmas wishes from children and distribute candy donated by Northwestern Bank.

Flurry Fest was created partially to help coax our local residents to visit downtown for their holiday shopping, but more importantly to give us all an opportunity to celebrate the season with our friends and neighbors. This mission is supported by the individuals and businesses who give their time and resources to ensure Flurry Fest continues to be part of the Charlevoix holiday season. Organizing and coordinating an outdoor event in early December is no easy task and the lion's share of the behind-the-scenes work was once again performed by Ga Ga for Kids owner Jodi Bingham and Whitney's of Charlevoix general manager Paul Andrzejewski. Direct financial support of the event was offered by Bay Winds Federal Credit Union, Bingham Insurance Services, Charlevoix Ace Hardware, Charlevoix Courier, Landscape Logic, Way Transportation and Todd & Pam Wyett. The city of Charlevoix continues to support community events through the efforts of street superintendent Pat Elliott and city engineer Don Swem and their hard working crews. Charlevoix Ace Hardware donates lighting equipment each and every year and this year loaned the event a commercial popcorn popper. The Charlevoix Lions Club graciously provided two stunning Christmas trees which Landscape Logic beautifully decorated to add a festive touch to the event.

A special thank you to all of those who braved a wet and chilly day in downtown Charlevoix to experience Flurry Fest. We hope you enjoyed your time under the tent and visiting Santa's reindeer. We also hope you spend some time in our local businesses, patronizing those who help make our community so special. We wish you and yours a safe and uplifting holiday season filled with everything you cherish.

Happy Holidays,

Dinner organizers thankful for volunteers

Editor:

The 5th annual Community Thanksgiving Day Dinner was another huge success. We served a record number of community members — in excess of 200 people. This dinner would not be possible without the support from the people who gave their time, to serve others. We would especially like to recognize the Villager Pub and Kelsey B's for cooking all of the turkey, the First Baptist Church for hosting this year's event and the Charlevoix Ministerial Association for their financial assistance paper from its current tabloid size to what's known as a "broadsheet" size. This is the more standard newspaper size that publications such as our sister publication the Petoskey News-Review uses. Actually, it would be more accurate to say we'll be going back to a broadsheet format as the Courier was broadsheet up until the early 1990s.

The overall size of the paper — that is, the space available for printing, will not be changing, it'll just be oriented differently. The new format will be in two sections with news, features, business and community news in the "A" section and sports and classified in the "B" section.

Although the change does offer us some cost savings, by standardizing paper sizes among our publications, the best part about the new format is that it opens up a great deal more design options for us. In the current tabloid format, the square "half pages" limit our ability to be creative with design — especially on the front page.

Another benefit, as we work to continually beef up our sports coverage, it gives us another "front page" to highlight all of the many sports activities of area teams. We'll have more flexibility with photo collages of events, and for our advertisers, we will now have two back pages available in color.

The new format will also come with an updated look to the paper. We've spent several months working on new design elements that we hope will make the paper more attractive and user-friendly. One change we expect most will appreciate is a revamp of our community events listing — now called "Stepping Out." Although the fate of the section's name has not yet been determined, we are going to be reorganizing how it is presented, including easy-to-find category headers. So, if you're looking for the library events, you can find them at a quick glance.

All in all, we think the new day and format will ultimately improve our service to you the reader.

One thing that won't be changing is our commitment to bringing you the best news, sports and community events coverage both through our print and online editions.

We're excited about the new year and what it has in store for the Courier and we hope you will be, too.

Bridge Street crosswalk plan moves forward

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

An effort to make crossing Bridge Street safer for students walking to and from school is moving closer to becoming a reality after a recent meeting among school, city, state transportation leaders and community members.

Charlevoix Middle School principal Travis Garrett said the group met on Dec. 9 to do a "walking audit of the area around the school and make suggestions about how to make the street crossing safer.

Earlier this school year Garrett and social studies teacher Bryan Hawkins began a quest to make crossing the busy, four-lane state highway safer for students as they walk or ride their bikes to and from school.

At the October Charlevoix school board meeting Garrett told board members that the danger of crossing the street comes to his attention regularly when he hears screeching tires. He has since been working with others in the community toward applying for a "Safe Routes to School" grant that would pay for measures to make the crossing safer.

Garrett said Monday that one key to the discussion was finding out from state officials what measures were allowed in light of the fact that Bridge Street (U.S. 31) is a state highway.

After multiple discussions, the group agreed the best course of action would be to seek a grant that would pay for the following measures:

— A crosswalk to be painted across the pavement at the intersection of Bridge and Garfield streets;

— An overhead sign to mark the location of the cross walk;

— Signs with flashing lights to the north and south of the cross walk warning not only of the crosswalk ahead, but lowering the speed limit to 25 mph from 7:30-8 a.m. and 3-3:30 p.m. on school days; and

— Electronic signs and equipment on either side of the crosswalk that would tell drivers their current speed.

Garrett said one concern expressed by the group was that after the improvements are installed, students might have a false sense of security that traffic will stop for them on the road when they attempt to cross the street.

He said he plans to address that issue by having signs placed at the crosswalk indicating "cross traffic does not stop" and having educational sessions with students.

Garrett said preliminary estimates are that the cost of the equipment and its installation will be more than $100,000, but he's seeking $200,000 in the grant, to help pay for some of the educational programing for the new safety modifications.

"We're shooting for the moon here and any improvements we can get will be a big help," Garrett said.

He said it will likely be several weeks before the grant application is finalized, but he said his hope is that the upgrades might be in place by the time spring rolls around — when students are more likely to be riding and biking to and from school.

Garrett said he's been encouraged by the amount of community support and interest in the project, including the other nearby schools. He said he expects the effort will also be aided by being included the city's ongoing "Complete Streets and Walkable Communities" plan.

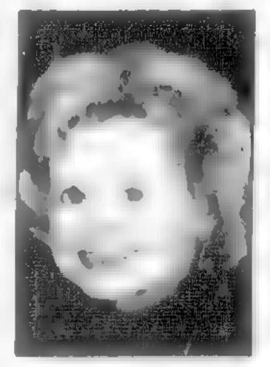
OBITUARIES

Frances Rollins Kohler: June 24, 1950 - Dec. 9, 2011



Kohler

Long time Charlevoix resident, Fran Kohler died peacefully on Friday, Dec. 9, 2011 following a long illness. Fran was married for more than 50 years to the late Louis (Bud) Kohler of Charlevoix, and leaves behind four loving children, seven grandchildren, four great grandchildren and a host of other devoted family members and friends.

Frances Eileen Rollins was the second of two cherished daughters born to Frank and Mary Rollins in Franklin, Kan. The very close knit family moved to Detroit when Frances was a toddler, and raised their daughters there. Fran was a brilliant student who graduated as valedictorian of both her high school and college classes. She graduated from Detroit's Immaculata High School and Marygrove College, and later earned her master's degree from the University of Michigan.

Fran married Bud Kohler in Detroit on June 24, 1950. Following Bud's service in Korea with the Marine Corps, the couple lived in Detroit, and later in East Lansing and Saginaw, raising their two sons and two daughters. Prior to her marriage, Fran taught in the Detroit Public Schools. When her children reached school-age, Fran returned to teaching, devoting 20 years with the Saginaw Township Schools. Summers were always spent in Charlevoix, where Fran and Bud happily moved full-time upon their retirements in 1986.

Friends and family members all appreciated Fran's remarkable intelligence, wit and great humor. She developed many close friendships among her teaching colleagues over the years, all of whom consistently referred to Fran as "the smartest, funniest person they ever knew." One former colleague commented, "We would call upon Fran regularly for information on any subject, in the same way people now turn to the internet!" Fran loved to read histories, biographies, and essayists. She recognized and appreciated good writing, and was quick to critique weak editorials.

Fran was also an excellent cook, known for her ability to take a seemingly simple dish and create something exceptional. She and Bud enjoyed visiting their children and grandchildren as their family grew, but took special delight in their summer and Christmastime celebrations in Charlevoix. As a couple, Fran and Bud traveled and actively supported many local interests, including the Charlevoix Historical Society, the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, Charlevoix's 'Operation Petunia,' the Charlevoix Hospital Foundation, and St. Mary's Church and School.

Fran was predeceased by her husband, Bud in November 2001, and by her cherished sister and only sibling, Rosemary Rollins Hicks in September, 2005. Her parents, Frank and Mary Rollins died in 1992 and 2002 respectively. Fran is survived by her sons Tom (Judith) Kohler of Boston, Mass., and Bill Kohler of Charlevoix; daughters, Judy (Kim) Krzeszewski of Reese, and Janet Kohler (Dan) Dueweke of Fairfax, Va.; grandchildren Christine Findlay Klass, Foster (Melissa) Findlay, Carey Rollins Dueweke (Tony) Stefano, Sarah and Anne Dueweke, John and David Kohler; great-grandchildren Charles Klass, Emily Schaub, Olivia and Alexandra Findlay. In addition, Fran is survived by 10 nieces and nephews, and many cherished friends.

A visitation is scheduled at Winchester Funeral Home from 6–8 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 16, 2011 followed by a Rosary service at 8 p.m. A funeral mMass will take place at 11 a.m. on Dec. 17 at St. Mary's Church. Those who would like to honor Fran's memory may wish to consider donations to the Immaculate Heart of Mary Retirement Fund (Monroe, Mich.), the Charlevoix Historical Society, the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, or the Alzheimer's Association.

Joan Galloway is remembered with love and as said best by Father Louie, "Joan was such a gentle, gentle person; a wonderful wife and mother." Joan practiced as a registered nurse, raised a family of 10 children, saw the birth of more than 40 grandchildren, and spent 57 wonderful years with her true love, Richard W. Galloway. While her job as a nurse was fulfilling, she was drawn to the remarkable experience of nursing the injured back to health. Whether good times or bad, she loved to laugh and cry and experience life with her family. While we may never know what the next phases hold for Joan, we do know that her late son Steven will be there with her. Now, more than ever, we believe she is resting peacefully in heaven with her famiglia italiana enorme.

Day of free dental care December 23

Beacon Dental Center will offer a day of free dental care for people in need on Friday, Dec. 23, as part of the nationwide Dentistry from the Heart initiative.

On Dec. 23, Dr. Michael Sullivan and other professionals at Beacon will provide free services to the first 50 adult patients, or as many as can be seen from 7 a.m.-4 p.m. that day.

Beacon is located at 06483 M-66 North, Charlevoix. Patients are advised to arrive early for the Dec. 23 event, since services will be available on a first-come, first serve basis. Patients are also encouraged dress appropriate for the weather and bring items such as chairs, blankets, water and snacks, since they will be outside while waiting to be seen.

Patients, who must be 18, will have a choice of a free extraction, filling or cleaning. Several hygienists, dental assistants and other dental professionals will be donating their time and resources, in order to provide free dental care to as many residents in need as possible. Organizers expect thousands of dollars' worth of dental care to be donated as part of the event.

To learn more about the event at Beacon, contact Betsy Kelly at (231) 547-9141 or betsy@beacondentalcenter.com.

Beacon Dental Center is hosting a Dentistry from the Heart event for the first time this year.

Dr. Vincent Monticciolo, a dentist in Florida, began the program in 2001, wanting to give back to the community and provide aid to the growing number of Americans without dental insurance. Dentistry From The Heart is a registered nonprofit organization that provides free dental work for people in need. Since its inception, Dentistry From The Heart has grown to include more than 200 annual events nationwide and provided more than 60,000 people with an estimated $6 million in free dental care services.

Trail funding comes through

BRANDON HUBBARD
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Just a few weeks after the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners voted to serve as the lead agency for a proposed non-motorized trial project along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, the second major funding segment for the first phase of the project was awarded by state officials last week.

The Boyne City-Charlevoix trail was one four trail projects in Charlevoix and Emmet counties that will receive roughly a combined $1 million in grant funding from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund, the trust fund board decided Thursday.

The projects focus on the expansion of bike and pedestrian trails for residents and visitors in the Northern Michigan area.

"I think it is because this area has had so much success at developing trails," said Jeff Winegard, executive director of the nonprofit Top of Michigan Trails Council. "Now I think the investors really see a potential for movement. Success breeds success."

Winegard said by funding trails the state has recognized potential economic returns in tourism.

"It's just going to keep growing and growing. I think we have an opportunity to be a real destination for recreational tourism," he said.

More than $39 million across 99 projects were approved for state grant funding in 2012 from the monies collected from oil and natural gas harvesting on state land.

Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder called the expenditure "a wise investment in Michigan's economic future and quality of life."

After more than eight years of planning and public meetings, Charlevoix County will receive $300,000 to complete a 10-foot wide, 3.2-mile, non-motorized recreational trail from Young State Park into downtown Boyne City.

"We've seen the success of the Little Traverse Wheelway (connecting Harbor Springs, Petoskey and Charlevoix), and then people come here ask where the bike path is and we have to send them 15 miles away," said Jim Baumann, executive director of the Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce that endorsed the project two years ago.

Baumann said the addition of a recreational trail to the city will help bring additional business downtown, including the 500 daily summer campers at the state park.

The county also recently learned that the trail will receive a $565,900 grant in federal transportation enhancement funds. Another $71,000 has previously been pledged by the city of Boyne City, Evangeline Township and a Charlevoix County Community Foundation grant.

Slightly more than $17,000 is still needed in donations for the $954,500 project, but the announcement that the state would be putting in the funding has already stepped up donations.

The Northern Country Bicycle Club pledged $1,500 in proceeds Thursday from summer events and $500 from the president of the club, Paul Servais.

To help collect the donations, the Top of Michigan Trails Council has set up a fund at: The Top of Michigan Trails Council, 445 E. Mitchell St., Petoskey, Mich. 49770

"I think a lot of people were just waiting for the state money to make donations," Baumann said.

A second phase of the project is also in the planning stages to head east from U.S. 31.

Other area trail projects included in the grants awards included:

— The city of Petoskey is recommended to receive $300,000 to create a 10-foot wide concrete path, trail head parking, road crossings, benches, interpretive signs and native seeding for the north segment of its greenway.

A second grant will pay $59,700 to construct a .37-mile paved, accessible non-motorized trail connecting Village Harbor Drive and East Park in Resort Township.

— A major expansion of the Little Traverse Wheelway will also begin work in the near future with the help of a $300,000 grant to create a multi-use recreational rail-trail connecting the communities of Conway, Oden and Alanson to Petoskey and Harbor Springs.

Emmet County approved $100,000 toward the grant match earlier in 2011 for the asphalt path. The money was paid by the county's restricted trail fund and represents about a 6 percent investment in the overall trail cost of $1.55 million.

A trail head is expected to begin at M-119 near Spring Lake and stop at the Alanson village limits, effectively traversing Bear Creek, Little Traverse and Littlefield townships. The 7-mile trail is the first phase of a larger plan to improve the 35-mile Petoskey to Mackinaw City Trail into a route for summer recreation and snowmobiles in winter.

A second grant for $942,000 has been submitted to Michigan Department of Transportation Enhancement for the largest portion of the trail. An additional $57,000 will also need to be raised.

— Tuscarora Township in Cheboygan County will also receive $250,900 in grant funding to develop a trailhead for the North Central State Trail — the initial phase of a trail outlining the western end of Burt Lake. The monies will be spend on parking, a trail gateway, landscaping, lighting, benches, trash receptacles, a bike rack and universally accessible restrooms. The 62-mile, crushed-limestone trail connects Mackinaw City to Gaylord.

Charitable Giving Helps Everyone

To participate in the spirit of the holiday season, you may be thinking of making some charitable gifts. If so, you'll no doubt enjoy helping a group that does valuable work.

But to begin with, it's important to understand just how necessary your gifts are to the country's social fabric. Given the effects of the Great Recession and the slow recovery, it's not surprising to learn that charitable giving fell a combined 13% in 2008 and 2009, after adjusting for inflation, according to The Center on Philanthropy at Indiana University. And although 2010 giving increased by 2.1%, again adjusted for inflation, many groups are seeing tough times as 2011 comes to a close. So your gift counts.

And it can count for you, too. By contributing to a qualified tax-exempt organization [e.g., a charitable group that has received 501(c)(3) status from the IRS], you may earn valuable tax deductions. This is true whether you give cash or another type of asset, such as stocks or real estate. And you may be able to get further tax benefits if the noncash asset you've donated has appreciated in value since you purchased it.

Making charitable gifts now may help you reduce your taxable estate. As you may know, the estate tax exemption level has fluctuated in recent years, so it's hard for any of us to say for sure that we won't be subjecting our estates to these taxes. However, that doesn't mean you can't take steps now to plan for possible future estate taxes.

One such step might involve establishing a charitable remainder trust. Under this arrangement, you'd place some assets, such as stocks or real estate, in a trust, which could then use the assets to pay you an income stream over a certain period of time. When you establish the trust, you may be able to receive tax benefits based on the amount the charity is likely to ultimately receive, the charitable group's so-called "remainder interest." Upon its termination, the trust would relinquish the remaining assets to the charitable organization you've named. Keep in mind, though, that this type of trust can be complex; to establish one, you'll need to work with your qualified tax advisor and estate-planning attorney.

Another popular contribution vehicle is the "donor-advised fund." Here's how it works: You give cash or appreciated securities to the donor-advised fund, with the expectation of receiving a tax deduction for the contribution in that same year. You recommend which charities are to benefit from the contributions to the fund, and the fund invests and manages your contribution, along with the other assets in the fund. Again, you'll need to consult with your qualified tax advisor before establishing a donor-advised fund to help ensure you obtain any expected tax benefits.

As we've seen, you can follow different charitable giving strategies. But however you choose to make charitable gifts, you can take satisfaction in helping worthy organizations while possibly improving your own tax picture.

Rayders fall to Petoskey, defeat Frankfort 59-58

ANDY SNEDDON
SPORTS EDITOR

The Charlevoix Rayder boys varsity basketball team faced a tough test as they opened their 2011-12 season against a talented Petoskey Northmen team, falling 78-49 on Tuesday, Dec. 6.

In addition to some inexperience, the Rayders also had to overcome 29- and 20-point performances by Petoskey's Zak Lewis and Joe Robbins respectively.

"We did a lot of things well, especially with it being the first game," Petoskey coach Dennis Starkey said. "We needed our captains, Zak and Joe, to get us going and they both did for sure."

The point totals were career bests for both Lewis and Robbins, both 6-foot-3 seniors who, along with senior guard Jake Mullin, form the nucleus of a team that will attempt to win a third consecutive Big North Conference championship and again mount a state-tournament run.

The Northmen also posted an approximate 3-to-1 rebounding edge over the Rayders.

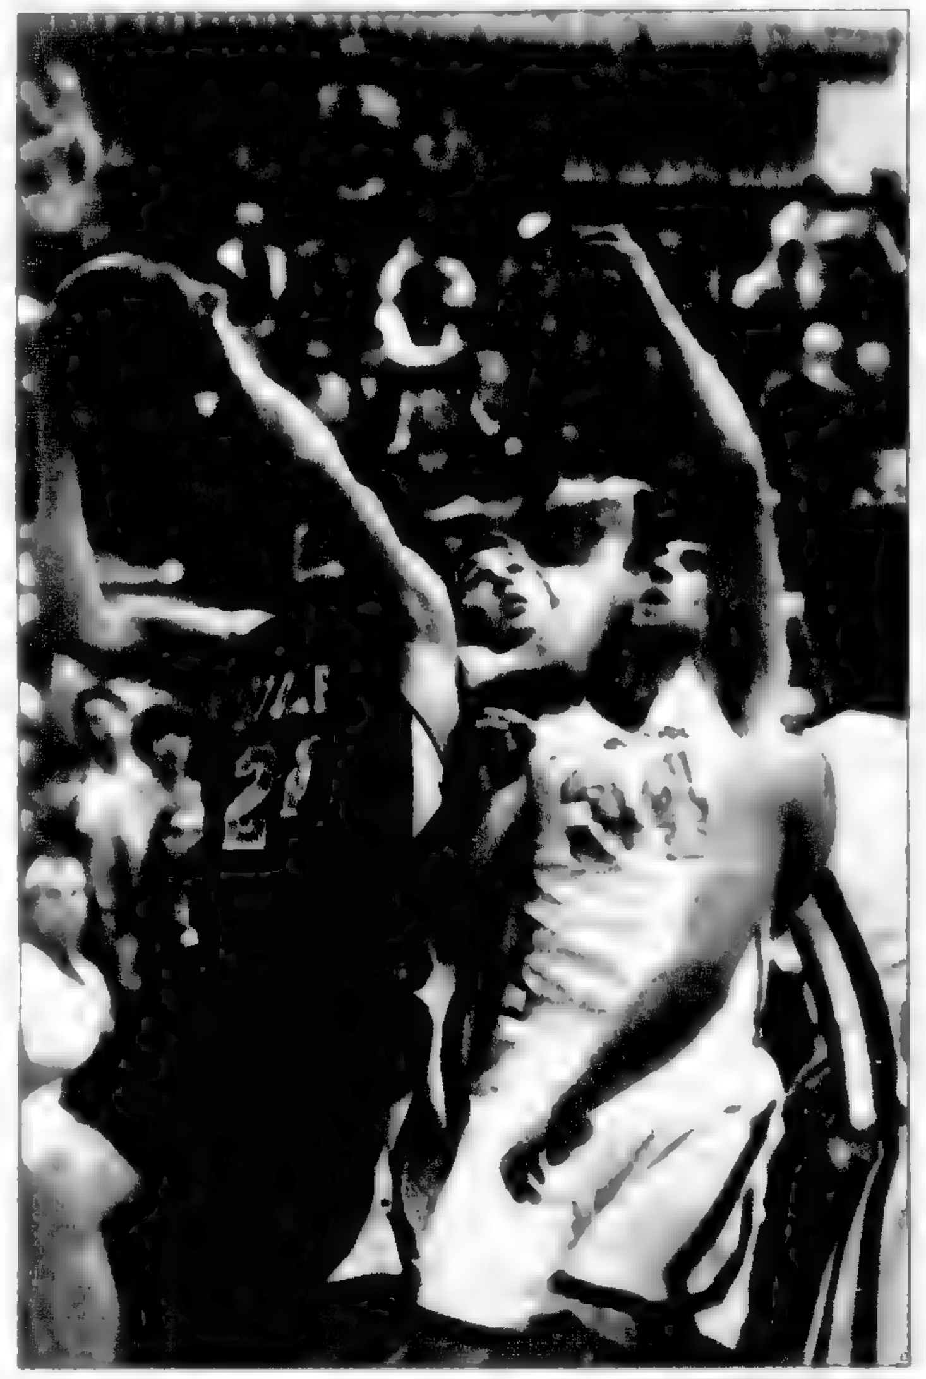
Charlevoix junior Charlie Hamilton came off the bench to score 18 for the Rayders, while Andrew Plude added 11, and Tanner Catt, another junior, had nine.

After making just one of their first seven field goal attempts, the Northmen warmed up making five of their next 10 for a 11-8 lead after one quarter.

Then, the lanky Lewis took over. He hit four 3-pointers en route to scoring 16 points in the second quarter as Petoskey outscored the Rayders, 24-12, in the stanza for a 38-20 halftime lead.

Lewis' performance may herald a big season. At least that's the hope in the Northmen camp.

Sam Baumgartner and Jake Mullin opened the third quarter with back-to-back triples to extend Petoskey's lead to 24, 44-20, and the Northmen were never seriously threatened after that.



COURTESY PHOTO

Petoskey's Joe Robbins (left) goes up for a shot against the defense of Charlevoix's Coby Herriman (34) and a teammate in the Rayders' Tuesday, Dec. 6, loss to the Northmen at home.

Petoskey made nine of its 22 3-point attempts on the night, and was 27-of-56 from the field overall. The Northmen also were good on 15 of their 19 free throw tries.

"We've got a group of a lot of skilled guys who can shoot it and you have to be patient at times and let things come around," Starkey said. "I thought for the most part our guys, for a first game, played as well as could be expected."

Second-year Charlevoix coach Adam Wood and his team faced a daunting task of opening against the Northmen, who return plenty of talent and experience from a team that won Big North Conference and Class A district championships last year.

Added to that the fact that though the Rayders are coming off a season in which they captured the Lake Michigan Conference title a year ago, they graduated 10 players from that squad and return few who saw significant playing time in 2010-11.

"We play Petoskey every year, but we never really open with them, or it's been awhile since we opened with them," Wood said. "And with a young team I knew it was going to be a difficult game.

"After watching (Petoskey) this summer, I knew they had a really, really nice team. A lot of good guard play, they play really well together, and I think that's one of the things that's really going to separate them (from the rest of) their conference."

Hamilton, generously listed at 5-foot-11 on the game roster, gave the Rayders a big-time offensive spark. His contributions were among several good showings from time to time by the Rayders.

"I was really impressed with Charlie's fearlessness — he's not big in stature," Wood said. "I thought (Catt) played pretty fearlessly. Those are some of things that are encouraging.

"It's a long season and one of our mantras is we're just going to get better every day and if we do can that then I think we're going to end up being OK."

"I know Charlevoix will play better as the season goes on," Starkey said. "Adam does a great job here and I know this team's going to be a tough team to beat later on in the season. I'm glad we played them early."

Petoskey won the JV game, 49-23. Joe LeBlanc scored 15 points to lead Petoskey, while Shea Whitmore and Hunter Viles added 11 apiece. Zach Hankins scored 10 points to pace Charlevoix.

Rayders bounce back

After its season opening defeat at the hands of the Petoskey Northment, the Rayders bounce back Friday as Andrew Potter, Will Jeakle and Andrew Plude each scored 17 points leading Charlevoix to a 59-58 overtime win over Frankfort in a Lake Michigan Conference-Northwest Conference Challenge boys' basketball game.

"We played a solid game tonight against a good team," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said.

Sawyer Russell's putback with under 25 seconds remaining gave the Rayders, who trailed 47-42 after three quarters, the victory.

Brandon Miller scored a game-high 24 points to lead the Panthers.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

The Charlevoix Rayder boys freshman basketball team opened its 2011-12 season with a 55-35 loss at home to Petoskey Monday

The Rayders trailed by just four at the end of the first quarter and the Northmen took the same margin into halftime leading 23-19. Petoskey opened up its lead in the second half, outscoring the Rayders 13-5 and 19-11 in the third and fourth quarters respectively.

The Rayders were led by Ke'Nen Borths with 15 points, Will Telgenhoff and Ryan Joy 6 points each and Noah Jeakle added 5.

Coach Joe Solomon noted that Ryan Joy played 31 of the possible 32 minutes of the game and that Telgenhoff "led the team in assists, rebounds and all around hustle."

The Rayder freshmen were scheduled to travel to Gaylord on Tuesday and Boyne City on Friday. Tip off for both games is set for 6 p.m.

Rayders earn all-state, regional honors

Jenna Way

Charlevoix's Jenna Way and Pellston's Tayler Friend each led their respective high school volleyball teams to much success this season.

As a result, the pair each earned All-State first-team honors as selected by the Michigan Interscholastic Volleyball Coaches Association. Way earned a spot on the Class C first-team, while Friend was named to the Class D first-team. It is the second consecutive year that both have earned first-team All-State honors.

Way, a 5-foot-7 setter, led the Rayders to a 49-5-6 finish — a school record for victories — the Lake Michigan Conference championship, and the program's first Class C regional title. The Ferris State University-signee finished the season with 1,062 assists, 356 kills, 405 digs, 129 aces and 60 blocks. Way, who led the Rayders in assists, kills and aces, had an attacking percentage of .426 and a serving percentage of 95 percent.

Greyerbiehl

Friend, a 5-10 outside hitter, capped an outstanding four-year career by leading the Hornets, 47-11-5, to the Ski Valley Conference title and a fifth consecutive Class D regional championship.

Peters

She finished with a team-high 693 kills, led the team with 449 digs and added 44 block kills, 91 aces and served at 86 percent.

Why do we need to have public notices?

Public notices tell you, as a citizen, what is being done by your government. State law requires actions of interest to you be published in these notifications.

It keeps you up to date about what's happening with your city, county and school board, as well as other governmental bodies.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters think legal notices should continue to be placed in your local newspaper.*

ZONING

football practice fields on May Street near the school district's bus garage.

The ordinance would also require a spacing of at least 500 feet between caregiver locations.

Based on the above "buffer zones" city planner Mike Spencer created an overlay map of the city that shows which lots would be available to house medical marijuana caregiver operations. The map will be incorporated into the ordinance.

The proposed ordinance would also create a 500 foot buffer zone around licensed day cares, but like the spacing between facilities requirement, these zones will not be reflected on the overlay map.

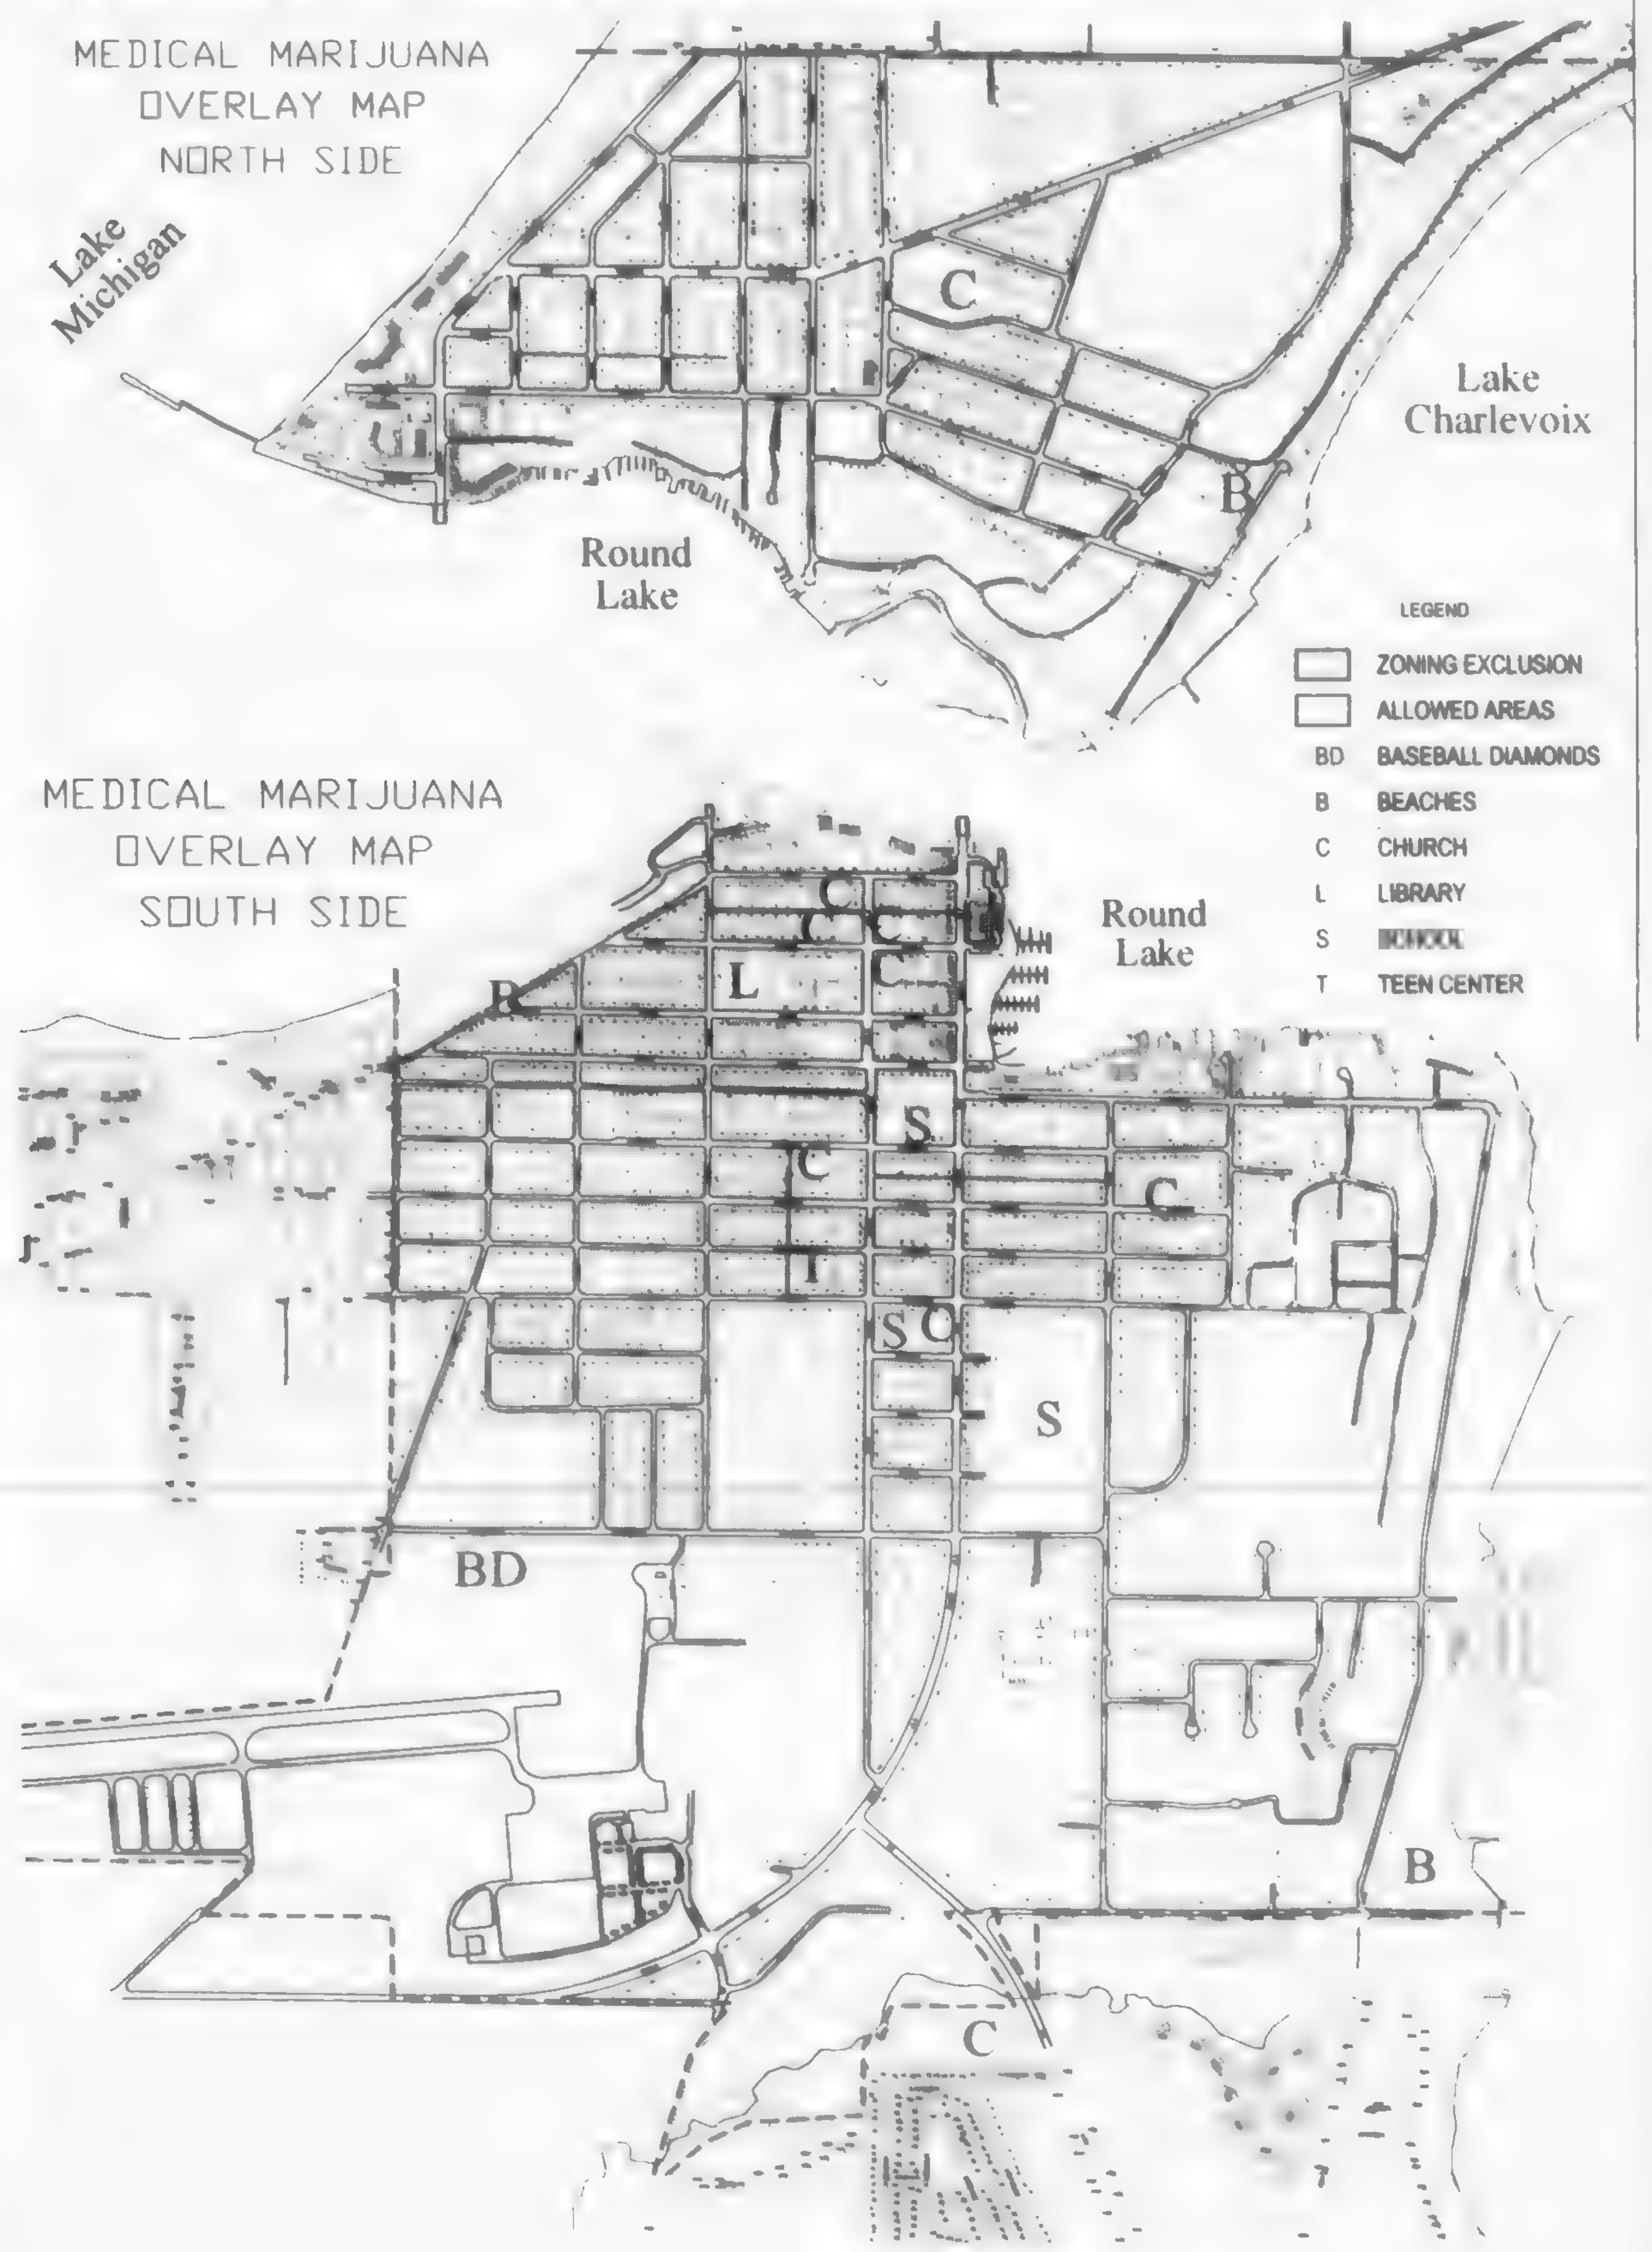
Spencer it would not be feasible to include day care centers and other care provider operations on the map because they are likely to be far less permanent than schools and parks and beaches.

Other elements of the ordinance would require that providers do not advertise the presence of their medical marijuana operations, that all marijuana product is delivered to their patients, and not picked up at the site of the operation.

Spencer said a properly certified caregiver wishing to perform caregiver services in the city would need to apply for a permit from the city. City staff would then check to see that the property is not in an excluded area, make sure there are no licensed day care or other medical marijuana providers within 500 feet and then issue the permit if all other requirements are met.

The Michigan Medical Marijuana Act prohibits public officials from disclosing information to the public about the identity of certified users and caregivers and exempts those records from disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act.

The draft zoning ordinance amendment will now go to the city council, which must conduct a public hearing on the matter. Because of notice requirements, Spencer said he expects the matter won't be before the council for its consideration until late January.



RESIGNATION

"Tough decision, but I was very fortunate in the fact that I was able to coach some great kids and coach with some great coaches who really cared about the kids, both on and off the field," said Jess, who is part-owner of an insurance agency in Charlevoix.

"I have a lot of memories of not only the team successes, but individual player successes both on and off the field, and kids going on to college or going on to the military," he said, adding that the most satisfying aspect of the job is in watching freshmen develop into solid young men with bright futures.

"We had a lot of great success stories with kids who started out with bad grades and no discipline, and by the time we were through with them, you could really be proud of them and they could be proud of themselves," he said.

Jess, who starred on the gridiron during his high school days and helped the Rayders to a playoff berth in 1992 as a junior, was just 26-years-old when he took over the program after playing four years as a receiver at Alma College. He then spent a few years as an assistant to former Rayder head coach Todd Klinger.

Just as he took pride in helping his players evolve and develop, he did the same, he said.

"When I first started coaching all I wanted to do was win a state championship," he said. "The more I got into it, the more I realized how the kids needed structure, and needed discipline — needed football in their lives. It's a way to get them through life. It was more than just about winning and losing.

"That's really where I spent a lot of time over the past few years. Everyone wants to win football games, but sometimes there are things that are more important."

Jess' first Rayder team in 2003 finished 1-8, but the program quickly made strides and the Rayders went 5-4 in '04, then made back-to-back playoff appearances in 2005-06, when they went a combined 14-6. The Rayders also earned playoff trips in 2008-09.

Charlevoix finished a combined 33-30 in the Lake Michigan Conference during Jess' tenure, with their best finish coming in '06, when they were 6-1 and placed second. Their 8-2 overall finish that year was their best record under Jess.

While Charlevoix never won a league championship or a playoff game under Jess, the program was generally competitive. Three of the Rayders' five losses this season were by a touchdown or less, and they finished fourth or better in the eight-team league six times during his nine years.

Blood drives — Food, shelter, comfort and hope: In a season filled with giving, there are many ways you can give back to your community through your American Red Cross. "The gift you give today will be there for the patient needing blood, the family needing shelter, or the child who needs a hug and a blanket," said Sharon Jaksa, CEO for the Great lakes Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross. "Your gifts of time, blood or money can help save the day down the street, across the country and around the world." As a humanitarian organization led by volunteers, the Red Cross offers relief to victims of disaster and helps people prevent, prepare for, and respond to emergencies. As part of that mission, the Red Cross also provides about half of the nation's blood supply through voluntary blood donations. Volunteers are always needed to work in areas related to disaster relief, health and safety, and to provide emergency communications to military members and their families. Volunteers help by coordinating and sponsoring blood drives and by simply rolling up their sleeves and giving blood or platelets. "You're needed in whatever way you choose to give," said Jaksa. "Every day we hear from individuals, families and communities who benefit from the kindness of Red Cross volunteers."
In this area, the Red Cross Great Lakes Blood Services Region provides lifesaving blood to hospitals across the state of Michigan and need approximately 700 people to donate blood and platelets each weekday to meet hospital demand. To schedule a donation time or get more information about giving blood or platelets, people can visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Gift of gratitude

From Afghanistan, with love: Marines gift flag to students

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The annual Charlevoix Elementary School Christmas sing-along is always a special event for students, staff and parents, but this year's event, on Tuesday, was expected to be more heart-warming than usual thanks to a special presentation on behalf of some grateful U.S. Marines.

Earlier this school year, the school's AmeriCorps workers Michele Saul and Jessica Linderman spearheaded a service project through which all students in first through fourth grades wrote letters to U.S. Marines stationed in Afghanistan.

Saul explained that the military does not allow letters to be sent to service members at-large, so a parent who is the sister of a Marine stationed in Afghanistan offered to have him serve as the person to whom the letters could be sent.

That Marine was Master Sgt. Jefferey Sornig, a 23-year veteran of the Marine Corps and a native of Petoskey.

Saul said the letters were written in honor of Veterans Day and arrived in Afghanistan on Nov. 10, the day before Veterans Day and Sornig distributed them among his fellow Marines in Unit 40441,

False alarm

Twice daily siren soundings safe

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday heeded a message it heard loud and clear from many in the community and decided not to turn off the traditional noon and 9:30 p.m. soundings of the former fire siren atop city hall.

At the council's Dec. 5 meeting, city fire chief Paul Ivan had requested permission from the council to discontinue the twice-daily siren sounding practice as part of an ongoing effort to create a uniform county-wide emergency alert system among the cities of Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City.

The goal, Ivan explained, is to have one set of protocols for how emergency sirens are used and sound across the county, so in the event of an impending serious threat such as a tornado, residents know what to listen for and what it means. As part of the process, it has been suggested that an audible emergency alert system, such as the one area leaders are working on developing, have the most impact

Correction

Because of incorrect information supplied to the Courier, a story beginning on page one of the Dec. 14, 2011 edition of the Charlevoix Courier about the Charlevoix Planning Commission approving a motion to recommend approval of a draft medical marijuana zoning ordinance amendment to the city council mistakenly reported that the planning commission's vote was unanimous. The vote was, in fact, 6-1 with commission member Dan Buday casting the sole "no" vote.

East Jordan student death ruled accidental

ALICE SPENCE

EAST JORDAN — The death of 12-year-old Collin Homan has been determined.

Collin passed away on Dec. 6. Antrim County Sheriff Daniel Bean stated in a press release that the Charlevoix County Medical Examiner determined the death to be accidental, however the case is still open and details of the incident have not been released.

Bean said, "Often when there is an unexplained death of a student, it is often the first conclusion that the student committed suicide because of being bullied. Sadly, this is often true but not in this case."

Bean added that investigators looked into whether bullying was a factor and determined it was not. Investigators are also trying to track down the source of Internet postings including those on Facebook about such rumors.

"It is unfair to the memory of this young student, his family, his friends and his community to pass along Internet postings which are not factually correct but based on rumor and gossip. It is a myth that if it is on my friends' Facebook, it must therefore be true," Beane said.

Collin is the son of Nicholas and Danielle (Sutherland) Homan. He was a student at East Jordan Middle School. Information in Collin's obituary stated he loved to work on anything mechanical or electronic. He was currently working on fixing a treadmill and a go-cart. Collin also enjoyed fishing and mushrooming. He had completed hunter safety classes this fall and had also taken his first buck.

Charlevoix County high-speed chase ends in arrest

Police say the driver of this Ford Mustang led officers on a high-speed chase north of Charlevoix Monday before he was cornered and surrendered to officers.

A out of state man who was a suspect in connection with some suspicious recent activity at two local banks is in even more hot water after police say he led officers on a high-speed chase through portions of northeastern Charlevoix County Monday.

Charlevoix deputy police Scott Hankins said the incident began shortly before noon. Hankins he was on patrol when the he received word from a local bank that a suspect in an ongoing fraudulent activity investigation had just passed through the bank's drive through. Hankins said he saw a vehicle matching the description of the suspect vehicle heading north on U.S. 31. Hankins said he followed the vehicle from the downtown area north on U.S 31. He said a short distance north of the Bridge he attempted to make a traffic stop on the vehicle for speeding, but the driver failed to stop. He said the driver of the red 2010 Ford Mustang 5.0 fled north on U.S. 31 toward Bay Shore at a high speed. Hankins gave chase, reporting in the area of Big Rock Road it appeared that the driver had thrown some items — perhaps a checkbook — out of the car as he was driving.

Hankins reported that the suspect vehicle was traveling in excess of 110 mph and his police cruiser could not keep up. He reported that he lost sight of the suspect vehicle in the area of Nine Mile Point and he terminated chase, but not the search for the vehicle.

As the pursuit unfolded Charlevoix County Sheriff's deputies and other police agencies converged on the area. Officers continued to comb the area for the vehicle. After about 15 minutes, Hankins, received word from another officer that a the suspect vehicle may be in the Lake Michigan Heights mobile home park. Hankins said he found the Mustang in the Lake Michigan Heights park and forced the driver to stop the vehicle. He said there was no contact between his vehicle and the Mustang.

Hankins said the suspect is a 34-year-old who has ties to the area, but has identification from Nebraska. As of late Tuesday morning, the man remained lodged at the Charlevoix County Jail. He was scheduled to be arraigned at 10:30 a.m. on charges of third degree fleeing and eluding police — a five year felony and driving while license suspended, a misdemeanor. Police said the investigation into the man's alleged suspicious bank activity was not yet complete and could take several days to finish.

Charlevoix man accused of embezzling from employer

STEVE ZUCKER

A Charlevoix man is facing a pair of felony charges amid allegations that he embezzled more than $11,000 from his employer.

Crain

The Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office recently charged Casey Crain, 34, with one count each of embezzlement by agent or trustee, $1,000-$20,000 and using a computer to commit a crime. The charges are punishable by up to five years and seven years in prison, respectively.

According to a Charlevoix Police Department affidavit filed in the case, in October, David Cole, owner of Carquest of Charlevoix, reported to police that one of his employees (Crain) had been stealing money from the business.

According to police, Cole reported that Crain had been altering inventory numbers in the business's computer system and then conducting fraudulent cash returns and pocketing the money.

Police said in all, Crain is accused of taking $11,738.40 between September of 2010 and October of this year.

According to the affidavit, Crain allegedly admitted taking the money to both Cole and to police when he was questioned about it.

Crain is free from custody after posting a $5,000 surety bond. He is set for a pre-trial conference on Jan. 3 and a preliminary examination in the case on Jan. 10.

Public education and profit don't mix

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Public education has always been important to me both personally and as a societal obligation. A less than sterling primary and secondary education, nonetheless, made it possible for me to be a part of the first generation in either parent's family to escape from agricultural peasantry into a professional career. My heart has an extremely large soft spot for universal public education. I believe that this most American institution is at serious risk. Public education, as we have known it, may disappear completely replaced by tax funded corporations whose major goal is the largest possible profit.

The danger to public education is not from the widely-proposed and promoted idea that our public primary and secondary schools are failing. In general, they are not failing. The danger is the increasing, for-profit privatization of public education. More and more, large corporations own and operate charter schools as a profit-making enterprise, paid for almost exclusively with public funds. Increasing numbers of those enterprises consist of computer based on line circumstances where students never see a classroom and seldom or never interact directly with their teacher. I have no argument with the general idea of profit, but education is not the same thing as making widgets. The cheapest education, which would maximize profit, is unlikely to be the best. It is simply not true that private corporations are inherently more efficient than comparable public institutions. The partial privatization of Medicare in what are called Medicare Advantage programs run by private, for-profit corporations cost 10 percent more than regular Medicare for comparable levels of medical coverage

A wise person, whose name I forget, once said, and I am paraphrasing here, "There is nothing that cannot be made more poorly or more cheaply, and those for whom the price of something is their sole concern are the willing victims." Education CAN be made cheaper, but we should not expect the product to be better.

There is little evidence that on-line, charter schooling provides a better educational outcome, but such a system can easily be made cheaper. In a time when many local budgets are strained, the thought of turning public education over to efficiency experts may seem like a good idea.

It is not difficult to understand why for-profit, on-line charter schools can make money for their parent corporations, especially if the school is a virtual one, with no building, no cafeteria, no parking lot, no athletic programs and small numbers of low-paid teachers who almost never see their students. Those teachers may be cyber-responsible for 200 students each. And such arrangements are one small cyber-step from outsourcing the teaching function to India.

A corporation, promoting such a pattern of education can advertise, vigorously recruit students, lobby and entertain legislators and still make a handsome profit. Almost all that profit is from the public money that the charter corporations can receive

Education for profit is a bad enough idea, but when combined with on-line education programs, it is nearly horrifying to anyone who cares about public education.

Education is NOT a business opportunity. It is more properly understood as the nearly sacred obligation of one generation to the next. We abandon that obligation at some long-term risk. Any given generation gets only one shot at an education. If we decide as a society that a new idea is so attractive and inexpensive that we can largely abandon what is known to work, we may not find out for 20 years what a horrible mistake we have made. And by that time the corporation responsible for the mistake will have disappeared.

Call me conservative, but moving away from our long-term pattern of classroom-based, teacher-fronted education in favor of a business model, where profit must be the primary goal, is too dangerous to merit serious consideration or support.

Ministerial association grateful for support

Editor:

Benevolence is defined as: "An inclination to perform kind, charitable acts. A kindly act. A gift given out of generosity."

The pastors and churches of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association would like take a moment during this busy holiday season to express our thanks and gratitude for the continued support we receive from our local organizations, churches, individuals and businesses in this community. Your generosity allows us to serve those who are suffering financially because of unemployment, underemployment or other factors that foster the need for assistance with heating, utilities, prescriptions or other living expenses. The donations you give to the Charlevoix Ministerial Association Benevolence Fund allow us to minister in the name of Jesus to those who are downtrodden, overwhelmed and/or marginalized, sharing the hope of the gospel as well as giving hope in the form of benevolence. We are very grateful for your generosity and support during this past year and are looking forward to continuing to serve our community in the years to come! May God bless you for your giving!

M. CHRIS LEESE/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

With yet another successful distribution day behind them, organizers with the Charlevoix Community Christmas project are catching their breath and taking stock of this year's campaign.

Committee chairwoman Bev Boss, said the annual holiday charitable collection for people in need in the community — which will celebrate its 30th anniversary next year — served a record number of children during this year's distribution day, which took place on Friday at Bethany Lutheran Church.

Boss said although the program provided items two 221 families this year — down 29 from last year, the total number of children served was 458, eclipsing the old record set last year by eight.

Boss attributed some of the drop in families to those who have either moved away or moved in with other families.

She said the needs in the community — many of them a symptom of the still-lagging economy, continue to be many.

She said the economy also seems to have an impact on giving, She noted that giving levels were down some this year. She said organizers still had enough items to go around, but noted that the coffers and stores of leftover items to carry over to next year won't be as great as in previous years.

She said this year seemed to be a very "back-to-basics" year as far as needs. She said in addition to typical requests for coats and snowpants, there were many requests for socks and underwear.

She said even among the toys, the most popular items were simpler toys such as Legos, trucks and baby dolls.

Another trend Boss said organizers noticed was the increase in teens — more than 100 — who were among the clients this year. She said clothes, especially warm items such as hooded sweatshirts were popular among teens.

She said that she and the rest of the committee continue to be overwhelmed by the generosity of the community which supports the Community Christmas program every year.

Excavation of possible Griffon wreck moves forward

Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson (left) watches as seasonal resident and Great Lakes Exploration founder Steve Libert signs an agreement with the Republic of France and the State of Michigan to do preliminary testing at the possible underwater shipwreck site of the Griffon at Charlevoix City Hall in July of 2011.

Researchers say they have enough evidence to recommend a test excavation of a northern Lake Michigan shipwreck site to determine if it's the Griffon, which sank loaded with furs in 1679.

The Detroit Free Press reported Monday that tests revealed something consistent with a vessel. Researcher Ken Vrana of the Center for Maritime and Underwater Resource Management cautions there's no "smoking gun."

The next step would be to seek permits for the excavation.

Groups overseeing the project include the state of Michigan and France, since the Griffon was a French ship. The other group is the Great Lakes Exploration Group. Founder Steve Libert discovered the site in 2001.

It hasn't been disclosed but the site is believed to be between Escanaba and the St. Martin Islands, near Wisconsin.

Libert is a seasonal Charlevoix resident.

Built by the legendary French explorer, Rene-Robert Cavalier, Sieur de La Salle, the Griffon was intended to carry out lucrative fur-trading commerce which would support La Salle's expedition in search of the mouth of the Mississippi.

In July of 2010, after a prolonged legal battle among himself, the state and French officials, Libert signed an agreement for further exploration of the site at Charlevoix City Hall.

Contacted by Courier via email Monday, Libert said he's excited about the latest development in his nearly three-decade quest to find the Griffon.

Libert credited Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder and Attorney General Bill Schuete for their help in moving the project along.

"I honestly believe that for the first time in Michigan history, if not American history, that a truly public private co operative agreement will be successful in excavating a maritime archeological treasure," Libert said.

Libert said in early February 2012 he and several scientists will brief the government of France at their embassy in Washington, D.C., of their scientific analyses.

"I expect great discoveries during our test excavations coming in 2012," Libert added. "Hopefully all of our research and time underwater exploring will prove us correct, that this is the 'Holy Grail of the Great Lakes,' 'Le Griffon.'"

Libert said in addition to all the other work associated with the exploration effort, he's also working on recovering from injuries he sustained while working on surveying the wreck site in June.

"Hopefully I can return to diving and be there right beside the scientists when they uncover the ship. I can't imagine not being present. This has been a dream of mine since I was 14 years old," the 57-year-old Libert said.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Charlevoix woman injured in crash

Snowy road conditions may have contributed to a two-vehicle traffic crash south of Charlevoix late Saturday that caused minor injuries to one of the vehicle occupants.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials said the crash happened at about 9:45 p.m. on U.S. 31 near Norwood Road.

Police said driver, Bridget Peters, 20, of Charlevoix, was traveling north on U.S. 31 when she said she lost control of her vehicle when it crossed the center line. Police said Peters' vehicle was then struck by a vehicle traveling south on U.S. 31. Peters was wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident, her air bag did not deploy.

The other vehicle was occupied by the driver, Nicole Hutchins, 31, of Central Lake, and passenger, Greg Bloom, 36, of Central Lake, Both Hutchins and Bloom were wearing seatbelts and the airbags did deploy.

Police said all vehicle occupants declined an ambulance response saying they were not injured. However, Peters later complained of minor back pain and was transported by her mother to Charlevoix Area Hospital for evaluation. She was released later that night.

Deputies were assisted at the scene by an off duty Pellston firefighter and Michigan State Police. There was heavy snow falling at the time of the accident.

Hannah Ochs wins geography bee

Charlevoix Middle School sixth grade student Hannah Ochs won the school's school-wide geography bee on Friday and now will have the chance compete against other middle school students vying for a shot at a $25,000 scholarship.

Following a high-energy competition in the school's gym Friday, Hannah edged out classmate Hunter Jenson in the final round to win the competition.

Prior to the school-wide bee Friday, social studies classes at the school chose one winner per class and two "wild card" entries per grade for a total of 20 contestants. Those 20 students competed on Thursday during lunch in the semi finals, whittling the field to the top 10 who included:

5th grade: Ronnie DePottey

6th: Kenzi Cunningham, Spencer Haan, Hunter Jenson, Hannah Ochs

7th: Tyrell Chavez, Brad Klinger, Maggie Potter, Nathalia Rogacheski

8th: Hunter Jensen

Hannah now has the opportunity to take a geography test. If she scores high enough, then she will be invited to the state bee for a chance to win a $25,000 scholarship and an invitation to the national bee in Washington D.C

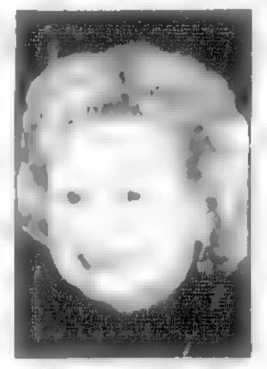
OBITUARIES

Editor's note
Because of an editor's error, the headline over the obituary for Frances Rollins Kohler appearing in the Dec. 14 edition of the Charlevoix Courier contained incorrect information. The obit, without the incorrect information, appears below.

Frances Rollins Kohler



Kohler

Long time Charlevoix resident, Fran Kohler died peacefully on Friday, Dec. 9, 2011 following a long illness. Fran was married for more than 50 years to the late Louis (Bud) Kohler of Charlevoix, and leaves behind four loving children, seven grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and a host of other devoted family members and friends.

Frances Eileen Rollins was the second of two cherished daughters born to Frank and Mary Rollins in Franklin, Kan. The very close-knit family moved to Detroit when Frances was a toddler, and raised their daughters there. Fran was a brilliant student who graduated as valedictorian of both her high school and college classes. She graduated from Detroit's Immaculata High School and Marygrove College, and later earned her master's degree from the University of Michigan.

Fran married Bud Kohler in Detroit on June 24, 1950. Following Bud's service in Korea with the Marine Corps, the couple lived in Detroit, and later in East Lansing and Saginaw, raising their two sons and two daughters. Prior to her marriage, Fran taught in the Detroit Public Schools. When her children reached school-age, Fran returned to teaching, devoting 20 years with the Saginaw Township Schools. Summers were always spent in Charlevoix, where Fran and Bud happily moved full-time upon their retirements in 1986.

Friends and family members all appreciated Fran's remarkable intelligence, wit and great humor. She developed many close friendships among her teaching colleagues over the years, all of whom consistently referred to Fran as "the smartest, funniest person they ever knew." One former colleague commented, "We would call upon Fran regularly for information on any subject, in the same way people now turn to the internet!" Fran loved to read histories, biographies, and essayists. She recognized and appreciated good writing, and was quick to critique weak editorials.

Fran was also an excellent cook, known for her ability to take a seemingly simple dish and create something exceptional. She and Bud enjoyed visiting their children and grandchildren as their family grew, but took special delight in their summer and Christmastime celebrations in Charlevoix. As a couple, Fran and Bud traveled and actively supported many local interests, including the Charlevoix Historical Society, the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, Charlevoix's 'Operation Petunia,' the Charlevoix Hospital Foundation, and St. Mary's Church and School.

Fran was predeceased by her husband, Bud in November 2001, and by her cherished sister and only sibling, Rosemary Rollins Hicks in September, 2005. Her parents, Frank and Mary Rollins died in 1992 and 2002 respectively. Fran is survived by her sons Tom (Judith) Kohler of Boston, Mass., and Bill Kohler of Charlevoix; daughters, Judy (Kim) Krzeszewski of Reese, and Janet Kohler (Dan) Dueweke of Fairfax, Va.; grandchildren Christine Findlay Klass, Foster (Melissa) Findlay, Carey Rollins Dueweke (Tony) Stefano, Sarah and Anne Dueweke, John and David Kohler; great-grandchildren Charles Klass, Emily Schaub, Olivia and Alexandra Findlay. In addition, Fran is survived by 10 nieces and nephews, and many cherished friends.

A visitation took place at Winchester Funeral Home from 6–8 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 16, 2011 followed by a Rosary service at 8 p.m. A funeral Mass took place at 11 a.m. on Dec. 17 at St. Mary's Church. Those who would like to honor Fran's memory may wish to consider donations to the Immaculate Heart of Mary Retirement Fund (Monroe, Mich.), the Charlevoix Historical Society, the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, or the Alzheimer's Association.

Great Lakes Energy fund seeks grant applications from community

The Great Lakes Energy People Fund is accepting grant applications from nonprofit organizations throughout its local service area. The upcoming grant application deadline is Feb. 1, 2012.

The People Fund is supported solely by Great Lakes Energy members who allow their electric cooperative to round up their bill each month to the next dollar. Since 1999, more than $2.2 million in grants have been awarded to charitable and community organizations throughout Great Lakes Energy's 26-county service area, which stretches from Kalamazoo to the Mackinac Straits.

"Through the generosity of our members who round-up their bill to the nearest dollar, we can give back to organizations in need," says president/CEO Steve Boeckman. "We encourage nonprofit community organizations to apply so that the funds can be put to good use in our local service area."

Nonprofit organizations can apply for a grant through the People Fund by downloading the application at www.gtlakes.com. The application can also be requested by calling Great Lakes Energy, (888) 485-2537, ext. 1313.

Tickets for chamber's State of the Community event on sale

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will host the second annual State of the Community Address from 11 a.m. - 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 11, at Castle Farms.

This year's event will feature five speakers recapping the accomplishments and challenges that the community faced in 2011 and will take a look at plans for 2012.

Speakers at the community address will include: Erin Bemis, president of the Charlevoix Chamber; Norman "Boogie" Carlson, mayor of Charlevoix; Joshua Meyerson, medical director of Northwest Michigan Department of Heath; chief Charles Burley, commander of Coast Guard Station Charlevoix; and Cheryl Potter-Browe, Charlevoix County Clerk.

"This is a great event for anybody who wants to learn more about our community," said event coordinator Bethany Pearson. "It's exciting to see how much we can all accomplish in a single year."

Admission is $30 per person or $225 for a table of eight, and the event is open to the public. Tickets also include a catered lunch, and a community organizational booklet, with more than 40 reports from different community sectors that have an impact in Charlevoix.

Anyone interested in attending this event, should contact Pearson at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101, or e-mail pearson@charlevoix.org. Tickets are sold on a first come first serve basis. Last year's event was sold out.

New spa gives owner a chance to pursue her passion

ROBERT WHITE
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The new spa is located at 110 Antrim St., Charlevoix, next to Oleson's Food Store.

Lamb, of Boyne City, graduated from Boyne City High School in 1987 and The Petoskey Beauty Academy in 1988. Since then, she has cut hair and performed manicures and pedicures. For the past several years, she has operated a salon in her Boyne City home, and opened the SPA charlevoix last June.

Lamb says she learned many years ago that she didn't like doing hair. She didn't like the hustle and bustle found at most beauty salons, and she realized she was very passionate about manicures, pedicures, facials and such. She decided to specialize and offer services she really loved to do, and the SPA charlevoix is the result.

Whenever she traveled through Charlevoix, Lamb would look for a location, and last spring spotted the available space in the Oleson's plaza. She checked on the price and made the decision to open her own business, outside of her home.

Lamb said she enjoys the relaxed atmosphere. Her business has grown, she noted, "because I offer a great service at a great price."

The spa owner believes that everyone, men as well as women, should enjoy and not feel guilty about spending some money on themselves. That's why she charges what she does — enough to keep the doors open, but not the prices some might expect to pay at a spa.

Along with offering services spa, Lamb also makes house calls, especially for seniors. She noted that she "enjoys giving back to the community where she was raised."

Brenda Lamb stands outside the SPA charlevoix, which she opened earlier this year.

Home parties are another of Lamb's offerings. Recently she and Tiffany Baxter, who offers massages at the SPA charlevoix, went to the home of a bride the night before her wedding. All of the wedding party's female members got a manicure and message.

To make an appointment for spa services, call (231) 330-4469. Hours for the SPA charlevoix are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday, and evenings and weekends by appointment.

Chef to share holiday recipes at farmers market

Paul Ramey, head chef and owner of Charlevoix's Roquette Burger Bistro will be at the Charlevoix Holiday Farmers Market which will take place from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 22, at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Ramey will be passing out recipe cards and free samples of his favorite homemade bread pudding with maple caramel. Most of the ingredients used in his recipe can be found at the farmers market.

"When it comes to winter I start to think comfort food, and nothing around the holidays is more comforting than a warm, soft bread pudding. Sweetened custard amidst layers of home baked bread relax and remind me of Christmas spent growing up in the South," said Ramey.

For the last minute holidy shopper, the farmers market will also include many gift ideas and gift boxes of many local products.

For questions regarding the farmers market, contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101.

LOOKING BACK…

In 1959 Charlevoix was rocked by the news that it had been chosen as the site of the first nuclear plant in Michigan, and the fifth in the United States, at Big Rock Point a few miles north of town just off U.S. 31. Work started soon after. By early 1962 the 130-foot reactor containment sphere was almost completed. In February the reactor arrived in Charlevoix by rail from the south, passed the train station at Depot Beach, and was hauled to the plant where it was taken inside the sphere, tilted, hoisted by crane 90 feet into the air, then slowly moved across the top of the massive concrete reactor housing block until it was pinpointed over and lowered into a circular hole where it would boil millions af gallons of lake water to create steam for a turbine for the next 35 years. More than a million people from all over the world came to the plant's information center between 1961 and 1973. Big Rock Point was decommissioned in 1997 and completely removed by 2006.

Coast Guard reminds of ice, cold water safety precautions

CLEVELAND — The 9th U.S. Coast Guard District seeks to remind those in the Great Lakes Region of ice and cold water safety precautions to take this winter, according to a news release.

Cold water is defined as any water colder than 70 degrees Fahrenheit, according to the release. And the fact that the air temperature might be much warmer than freezing is irrelevant when people unexpectedly enter the water.

"The primary responsibility of ice rescue lies with each state," the release states. "The Coast Guard assists state, county and local response agencies when requested by the respective agency and/or when the response exceeds the state, county or local agency's asset capability."

Those who choose to venture out onto the ice should remember the following acronym, according to the news release.

Intelligence — Know the weather and ice conditions, know where you're going and know how to call for help.

Equipment — Have the proper equipment, such as a marine radio, life jackets, screw drivers/ice picks.

While winter recreation on cold water and ice is a tradition around the Great Lakes, it can be dangerous and it is important to take safety precautions. Following are some things to keep in mind before going out:

— Great Lakes weather is unpredictable and dangerous, especially during seasonal transitions. Always check and monitor the marine weather forecast before any trip out onto the lakes. Lake effect snow, high winds and dropping temperatures are good indicators an outing should be postponed.

Owners of vehicles left on the ice after a rescue are subject to civil penalties for pollution violations. Such civil penalties can range from $250 11,000.

— Complete a "float plan." Always tell family and friends where you are going and when you expect to return and stick to that plan. Be sure to notify them if plans change.

— Never go out onto the cold water or ice alone. Plan outings with other boaters who will be on their vessels.

— Carry all required and recommended safety gear, such as visual distress signals and a sound producing device. Carry visual distress signals and a quality whistle in the pockets of the life jacket being worn so they are easily accessible in the event of an emergency.

— The Coast Guard recommends carriage of a registered personal locator beacon in addition to a VHF-FM marine radio, to alert the Coast Guard and local safety agencies of potential distress. Consider a waterproof hand-held model that can be kept on one's person.

— Wear a Coast Guard-approved personal flotation device, which allows a person to float with minimum effort and to assume the Heat Escape Lessening Position, or HELP, bringing the knees close to the chest and holding them in place by wrapping the arms around the shins.

— Dogs should also wear personal flotation devices. Not all dogs swim or swim well, and they are also susceptible to the effects of harsh weather, such as hypothermia. Some manufacturers make life jackets specifically designed for dogs and cats that come in a variety of sizes.

— Set limits and know when it's time to go home. There will be other days and other outings.

BOYS BASKETBALL

KURT GRANGOOD/ NEWS-REVIEW

After defeating Gaylord earlier in the week in its second consecutive buzz-beater victory, the Charlevoix Rayder varsity boys basketball team could not defeat rival Boyne City.

Friday's game was not the way coach Adam Wood and his team would have liked to begin a league championship defense.

The Rayders found themselves in a 9-1 hole to start the game and could never fully climb out Friday in dropping a 69-55 decision to Boyne City.

The loss dropped the Rayders to 2-2 overall. Charlevoix was scheduled to play at Kalkaska on Tuesday, Dec. 20, in a conference game, then will be idle until after Christmas break. The Rayders return to action on Tuesday, Jan. 3, with a non-league home game with Suttons Bay.

Friday's win for Boyne was its first in the regular season in 14 years over the Rayders.

"This was a big night for our program, and for our team," said Boyne coach Nick Redman. "The boys and fans were up for the game. It was exciting."

Senior guard Keegan LaBlance, who transferred to Boyne City from Charlevoix after last season, scored seven points during a 9-1 Boyne run to start the game.

"We had a great start. Keegan came out on fire," coach Redman said.

LaBlance made four of his eight 3-point attempts on the night to finish with 19 points. He also had eight assists. The Ramblers were led by freshman Corey Redman, who scored a career-high 23 points. Senior Jay Redman added 16 and seven rebounds.

Andrew Plude scored 13 points, Andrew Potter had 12, and Will Jeakle added 10 to lead Charlevoix, which was coming off back-to-back dramatic non-league victories over Frankfort and Gaylord. The Rayders came from seven points down late in the fourth quarter to beat Gaylord, 73-72, and they won in overtime at Frankfort, 59-58.

But no such dramatics were in the cards Friday for the Rayders against Boyne, which is expected to have its best team in more than a decade with the Redman brothers and LaBlance leading a deep, talented and tall cast.

The Ramblers led, 19-11, after one quarter and increased their advantage to 33-21 by halftime. Boyne's lead was 53-38 after three quarters.

"We battled hard and I was proud our kids and how we fought through some early problems, not hitting our shots and their pressure defense," Wood said.

The excitement was much more on the Rayders' side of the court at the end of their game Tuesday in Gaylord where Andrew Potter's 3-pointer beat the buzzer lifting Charlevoix to a 73-72 non-league boys' basketball victory over Gaylord.

The fantastic finish — Potter's bucket capped a comeback from a seven point deficit with under two minutes to play — came four days after the Rayders beat Frankfort, 59-58, in overtime.

"The Frankfort game on Friday (Dec. 9), to be able to pull that out, was a big confidence booster and to have the experience of playing in close games like this, I think, will pay dividends as the year progresses," said Charlevoix coach Adam Wood. "I think it is a big confidence booster for our kids especially with the inexperience we have. And it's nice heading into Boyne City on Friday."

Andrew Plude scored 23 points and dished out seven assists to lead the Rayders, 2-1, while Potter finished with 20 points.

Tyler Cherry had 21 points to lead Gaylord, 1-2, while Tyler Frisch added 18 points, and Zach Lundell had 16.

Charlevoix led, 44-37, at halftime, but was outscored 22-12 in the third quarter and trailed, 59-56, entering the fourth. The Blue Devils led by seven with under two minutes to play when the Rayders railled.

Potter and Plude scored six points apiece in the fourth quarter.

"We attacked the basket pretty well," Wood said. "We went with a small lineup and our kids did a good job responding."

Down 72-70, Charlevoix called timeout with 7.6 seconds to play. Wood drew up a play to get the ball to either Potter or Plude for the potential game-tying, or game-winning, shot.

On the final play, Rayder senior Will Jeakle found himself trapped by a double team in the corner, but he found an open Potter at the top of the circle and got him the ball. Potter delivered.

"(Jeakle) showed great patience," Wood said. "Those three seniors (Jeakle, Plude, Potter) seem to have a pretty good rapport. They seem to know where each other is. They do a good job playing together. And it shows on the court."

Justin Pearl scored on a floater as time ran out, lifting the Rayders to a 41-40 win in the JV game. Nate Moon scored 15 points to lead Charlevoix, and Pearl finished with 11.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Rayder girls recover to defeat Ramblers

The Charlevoix Rayder varsity girls basketball team bounced back from a lopsided loss to Gaylord with a victory over conference rival Boyne City to end the week on a high note last week.

Jenna Way scored nine of her 14 points in the first quarter Friday, staking Charlevoix to a lead it would never relinquish as the Rayders downed Boyne City, 59-51, in the Lake Michigan Conference girls' basketball opener for both schools.

Charlevoix improved to 2-2 overall, while Boyne slipped to 1-3.

Way's big first quarter helped stake the Rayders to a 21-10 lead, but the Ramblers never went away. Kelsey Way added 12 points to Charlevoix.

"We played pressure defense in the first half," Charlevoix coach Leslie Hoffman said. "We also kept our key players from early foul trouble, and hit some big shots."

The Rayders led at halftime, 40-32, and were up 48-41 after three quarters.

Halee Boughton made 10 of her 12 free throw attempts and finished with 16 points to lead Boyne City, while Tanner McCune added 13 points, and Rachel Butler had eight. Butler led the Ramblers with nine rebounds.

"The girls hung in there tonight," Boyne City coach Kevin Fitzpatrick said. "We kept it close, and played with them, we are gaining confidence with every game."

The Rayders bounced back from a tough loss to Gaylord earlier in the week.

MacKenzie Edwards scored 22 points as the Blue Devils claimed a non league victory over the Rayders on Tuesday, Dec. 13, 67-37. Gaylord, which had won three straight and stoods at 3-2, raced to a 2105 first quarter lead. Charlevoix closed the gap to 10, 34-24 by halftime.

"Both teams were tested tonight with early foul trouble," Charlevoix coach Leslie Hoffman said. "We plaid strong pressure defense in the second period close to the gap, we could not take advantage of our opportunities at the free throw line."

Gaylord outscored the Rayders, 33-14 in the second half.

For Charelvoix, 2-2 following the game, Megan Peters and Sydney Carlson scored nine points each and Peters grabbed 11 rebounds.

On Thursday, the Rayder girls junior varsity team defeated Boyne City 51-27.

Maggie Hamilton scored 15 points and Kourtney Putman added 13 to lead the Rayders.

Heather Nichols scored 10 points and Mallory Karaszewski added six for the Ramblers.

The Rayders were scheduled to play host to Kalkaska in a Lake Michigan Conference game on Tuesday, Dec. 20. It is the league opener for the Blazers, who shared the league championship with Traverse City St. Francis last season.

The game with Kalkaska will be Charlevoix's last before Christmas break. The Rayders return to action on Wednesday, Jan. 4, with a non-league home game with St. Ignace.

Charlevoix senior middle infielder and outfielder Madison Zimmerman has already accomplished quite a bit on the softball diamond.

She'll look to add to her accomplishments once more this spring for the Rayders before she moves on to play college softball at Mott Community College, as Zimmerman signed to play for the Bears earlier this month.

MCC, based in Flint, competes in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association Eastern Conference and the National Junior College Athletic Association Region 12. The Bears won a regional title in 2010.

The Bears have historically fielded highly competitive programs and will look to challenge for another NJCAA Region 12 title this year.

Zimmerman is a three-year letter winner for the Rayders and team captain who has played a key role on Charlevoix's three consecutive Division III district championship teams.

Rayder head varsity softball coach Ken Hoffman said last season Zimmerman finished with a .392 batting average, 26 hits, two doubles, one triple, and two home runs. She had a .449 on base percentage, .595 slugging percentage. She had 35 runs.

Charlevoix finished 24-6 last season.

A two-time All-Lake Michigan Conference first team selection, Zimmerman has also played for the Petoskey Blaze travel softball team and the Petoskey Women's Softball League, where she's played since the age of 13.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

Boys fall to Boyne City

The Charlevoix Rayder boys freshmen basketball traveled to Boyne City Friday where they fell to the Ramblers 38-25.

The Rayders were in the game until the fourth quarter. Charlevoix trailed 8-6 at the end of the first quarter and 20-15 at the half. The Ramblers extended their lead by one in the third quarter 29-23, but then pulled away in the fourth quarter for the eventually 13-point margin.

The Rayders were led by Ryan Joy with 11 points, Noah Jeakle with six points and Andrew Michaud with four.

Freshman coach Joe Soloman noted that although he did not score, Bryan Noirot "played a significant role coming off the bench to replace Ke'nen Borths who got in early foul trouble and eventually fouled out of the game."

The freshmen boys will be back in action after the Christmas break when the team will travel to Ellsworth on Thursday, Jan. 5 and Elk Rapids on Friday, Jan. 6.

Zimmerman also had interest from Delta Community College, Muskegon CC, Oakland CC and Lake Superior State University. She selected MCC because she liked the coaching staff, players and their style of play.

Zimmerman, who also lettered twice in volleyball where Charlevoix won two league and district titles, a regional title and trip to the Class C state final four, plans to pursue a degree in respiratory therapy.

Rod Studaker is the new head coach for the Bears after taking over the program in June 2010. Studaker is a 2004 inductee to the Michigan High School Softball Coaches Association Hall of Fame.

Studaker and assistant coach Dan Cunningham have signed seven 2011 prep graduates to play this upcoming season for MCC. Four additional players have joined the team as walk-ons.

"We feel we have a roster with a bunch of players who can play more than one position. As a result, we have depth at every position – especially at pitcher and catcher," Studaker said.

The Lady Bears begin practice in January 2012, play 10 games during the Florida Spring Training trip in mid-March and then open with an MCCAA league doubleheader at home on March 31, 2012 against Delta CC.

when the sirens are sounded only in the event of an emergency (or a regularly scheduled monthly test).

Ivan noted the siren, which was once used for civil defense purposes and to alert firefighters to a call, has not been used for either of those purposes for many years. He also noted that the 9:30 p.m. sounding does not correlate to the city's curfew, which is 10 p.m.

Ivan told the council that many people report that "they don't even hear the noon or 9:30 sirens anymore" — the exact condition the change in procedure is intended to avoid.

At the Dec. 5 meeting, city manager Rob Straebel suggested that the council hold off on a decision to allow the community to offer its input on what he suspected could be a contentious decision.

Straebel was right.

Several members of the council said they've had extensive input from the community members — most of them in favor of keeping the daily siren soundings in place.

Many of those favoring leaving the siren soundings in place pointed to the soundings as a hallmark of a small town. Many said they have fond memories of their kids or themselves being called home for the evening by the siren's sound. Others said if the siren was discontinued they'd feel like they were losing yet another part of what make Charlevoix unique.

Council member Lyle Gennett, a retired city firefighter, renewed a more practical concern he brought up at the last meeting, that if the siren sits unused for many weeks at a time — especially in the winter, it might not work when it's needed.

"If you sound it every day, you'll know if it's not working," Gennett said.

Gennett went on to say he thinks people will be able to easily tell the difference between the daily noon and 9:30 p.m. sirens because the emergency alert is one solid tone for three minutes, as opposed to the daily soundings which only last about 20 seconds.

Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. agreed, noting that people had no problem telling the difference between the regular soundings and the emergency soundings in the days when the siren was used to alert firefighters to a fire call.

"It's a small town thing that is cool to keep," Carlson said.

Dennis Kusina was the lone council member to voice support for changing the siren sounding policy.

"I equate it with the kid who cried wolf," Kusina said. "A change like this is hard, but it's for the better if everyone has it uniform across the county"

Ivan conceded that he understands the community's sentimental attachment to the siren soundings, and said he shares some of those same feelings of nostalgia, but he said in his role as fire chief he has to put those feelings aside and look at what makes the system most effective as a potential life-saving tool.

Ivan said he will continue to work with organizers of the alert system project on developing policies for the system's use. He noted that the siren system still retains value even if the daily soundings are left in place.

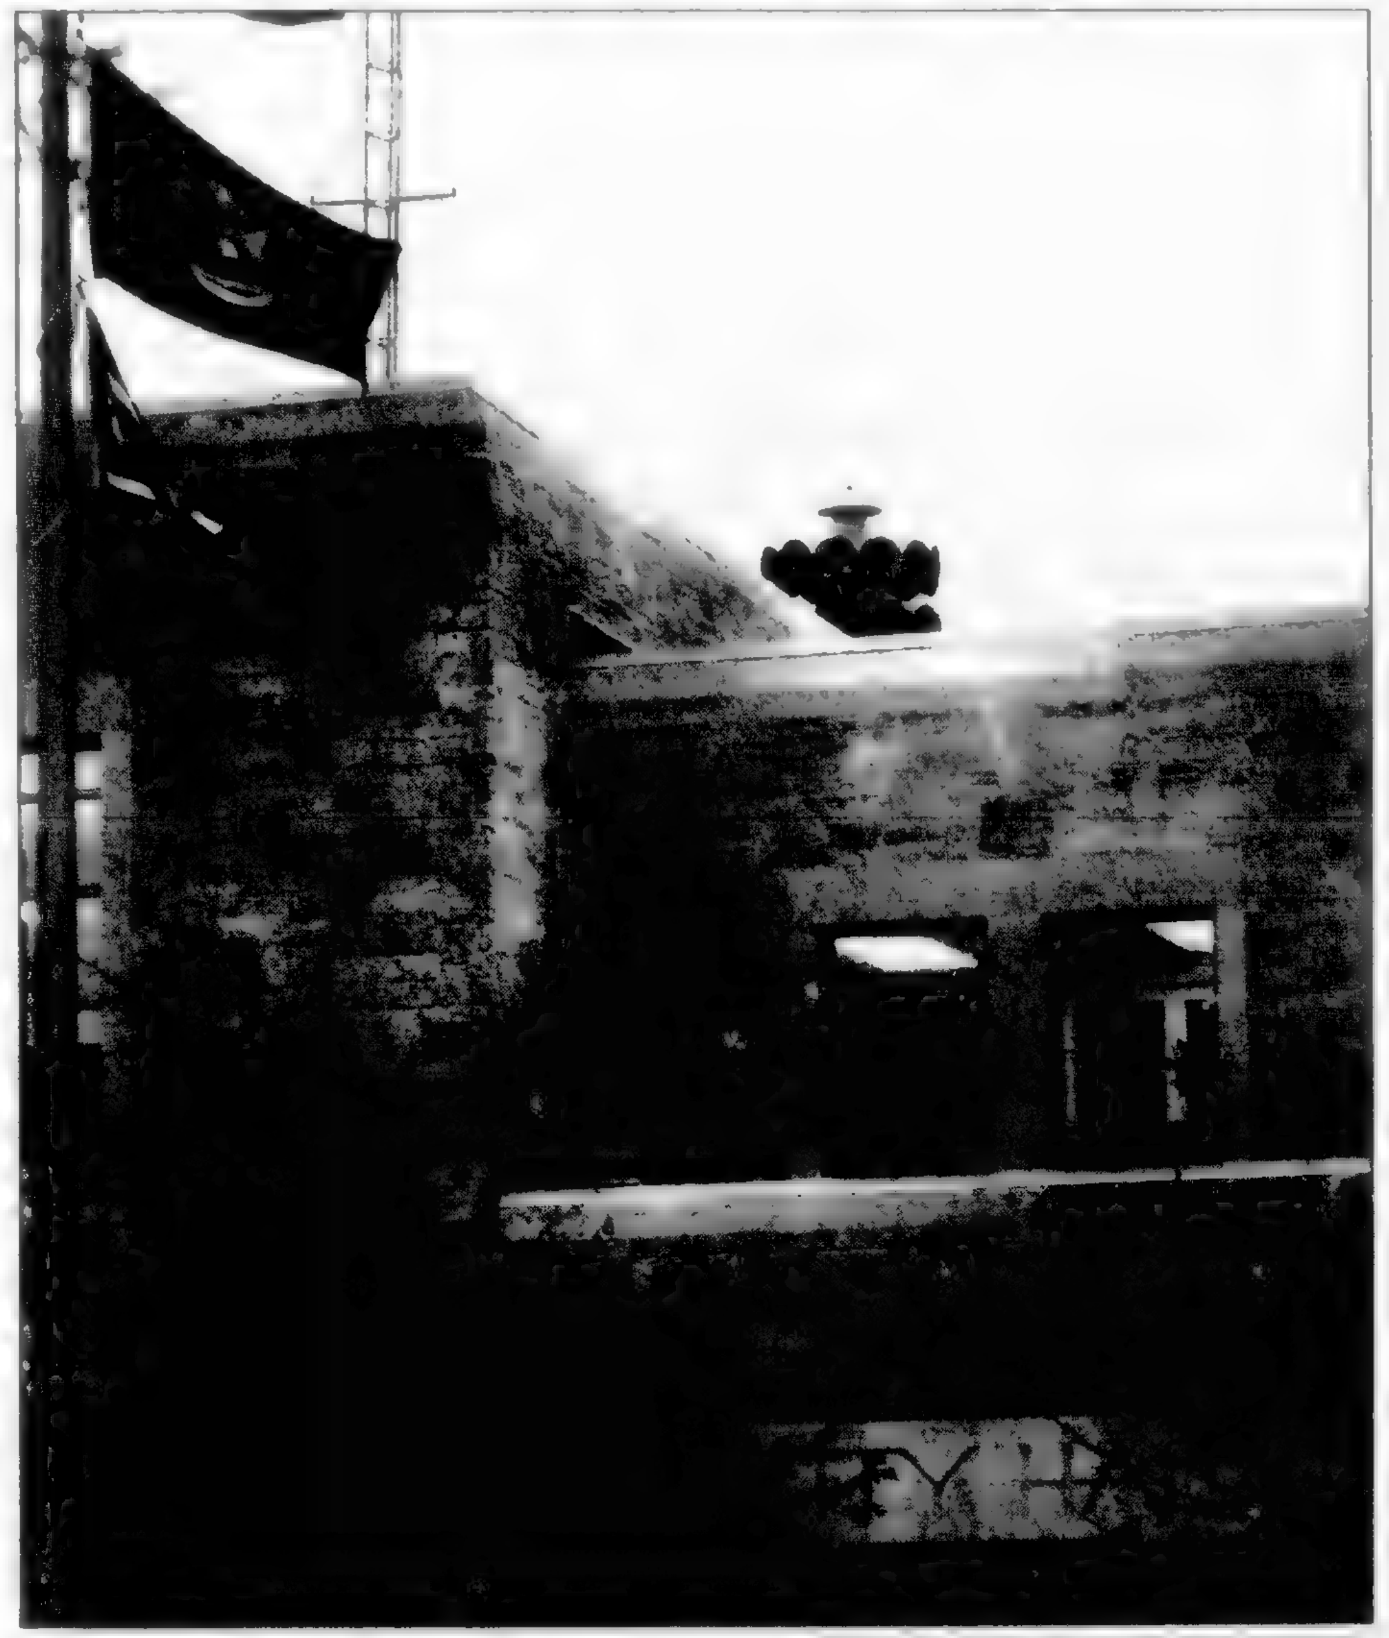
In other business, the council set a public hearing for Jan. 3 for a proposal to rezone the property that is home to the now-closed Charlevoix American Legion hall at 106 East Garfield just east of Bridge Street.

Last year, citing dwindling numbers and rising costs, local Legion officials decided to put the hall up for sale and share space with the Veterans of Foreign Wars post just north of town. Recently Legion officials have entered into a purchase agreement with a local dentist who wishes to use the building for his dental practice. However, the property is currently zoned "public reserve," likely dating back to its days as the home to Lincoln School. The public reserve zoning, does not allow for a dentist office and American Legion officials are requesting the property be rezoned as "professional office." The Charlevoix Planning Commission recently recommended the matter for approval by the council.

The council also set a public hearing for a proposed update to the city's zoning ordinance that would control where and how caregivers properly certified under the Michigan Medical Marijuana Act could produce and distribute medical marijuana. The public hearing is set for Jan. 16.

The council also approved an agreement with Performance Engineering to do pre-construction engineering work for several proposed infrastructure project next year. The biggest project on the list is a complete reconstruction of Clinton Street from Bridge to Park Avenue. The other two projects include paving and otherwise improving the White parking lot (located behind the fire station) and reconstructing the intersection of May and Garfield streets.

City street superintendent Pat Elliott said the number of projects the city will be able to afford for the coming year will depend on how taxable values come in and how that impacts the city's infrastructure fund. The contract is for 16 percent of the project's overall cost, but is not to exceed $148,000.



STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Although difficult to see from the ground, the former fire siren atop Charlevoix City Hall will continue to be heard twice daily at noon and 9:30 p.m., the Charlevoix City Council decided Monday.

FLAG

First Battalion, 25th Marines at Camp Leatherneck Afghanistan, part of Operation Enduring Freedom.

She said the Marines were so touched by the students' letters that they sent them something back — the American flag that flew over Camp Leatherneck on Veterans Day.

Sornig

Saul said the flag arrived at the school about two weeks ago and arrangements were made for members of Sornig's family and a Marine Corps representative to attend the school's holiday sing-alongs to make a special presentation to the students.

Saul said she and Linderman were impressed with the quality of the letters that the students wrote to the Marines. She said the tone shared among the students' letters was one of thankfulness, support and pride of the Marines' service.

United Way seeking funding applications

Char-Em United Way's 2012 Community Investment Allocation process has begun and the agency is encouraging non profit agencies which provide programs and services meeting the health and human service needs of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties to submit a letter of intent to apply for funding.

Letter of intent applications can be requested by contacting Char-Em United Way at 487-1006. They can also be downloaded from United Way's website www.charemunitedway.org. Letters of intent are due by Jan. 13. The submissions will be reviewed by the United Way Allocation Committee, and agencies which meet United Way's funding criteria and priorities will be invited to submit a complete application.

In 2011, the organization made Community Investment Allocations of $204,065 to 29 programs of 30 agencies in grants ranging from $650 to $20,000.

The program's 2012 funding priorities focus on meeting the community's needs for education, income and health. More information on these priorities, as well as other criteria for eligible programs and agencies is available from United Way.

Agencies invited to submit a full application will be scheduled to make a presentation to a citizen review panel in April. The panel reviews the requests for funding, hears presentations, seeks additional information, and makes recommendations to the United Way board of directors. The board of directors will meet in May to consider the recommendations of the panel and to make Community Investment Allocation decisions.

For more information about Char-Em United Way or the application process, call (231) 487-1006, email info@charemunitedway.org or write PO Box 1701, Petoskey MI 49770. Complete application information is available online at www.charemunitedway.org.

Blood drives — Food, shelter, comfort and hope: In a season filled with giving, there are many ways you can give back to your community through your American Red Cross. "The gift you give today will be there for the patient needing blood, the family needing shelter, or the child who needs a hug and a blanket," said Sharon Jaksa, CEO for the Great lakes Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross. "Your gifts of time, blood or money can help save the day down the street, across the country and around the world." As a humanitarian organization led by volunteers, the Red Cross offers relief to victims of disaster and helps people prevent, prepare for, and respond to emergencies. As part of that mission, the Red Cross also provides about half of the nation's blood supply through voluntary blood donations. Volunteers are always needed to work in areas related to disaster relief, health and safety, and to provide emergency communications to military members and their families. Volunteers help by coordinating and sponsoring blood drives and by simply rolling up their sleeves and giving blood or platelets. "You're needed in whatever way you choose to give," said Jaksa. "Every day we hear from individuals, families and communities who benefit from the kindness of Red Cross volunteers." In this area, the Red Cross Great Lakes Blood Services Region provides lifesaving blood to hospitals across the state of Michigan and need approximately 700 people to donate blood and platelets each weekday to meet hospital demand. To schedule a donation time or get more information about giving blood or platelets, people can visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

2011, a year in review

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

As 2011 draws to a close and we pause to look back at the headlines from the past year, we see a wide array of topics. Some were tragic, and some inspire hope. Here are the top five:

Hatch plane crash

At about 7:35 p.m. on Friday, June 24, a single-engine Beech A36 aircraft crashed into the garage of a home located at the corner of Carpenter and Grant streets while attempting to land at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport. The crash killed the pilot, Stephen Hatch, 46, and his wife Kim, 44, and caused serious injuries to Hatch's then 16-year-old son, Austin. The family was flying to Northern Michigan from their home in Fort Wayne, Ind., to their seasonal home on Walloon Lake.

Austin, a basketball star at Canterbury High School in Indiana, had accepted a scholarship to play basketball at the University of Michigan starting in 2013.

Two of the family's dogs were also aboard the plane. One died in the crash, the other, Austin's young male labradoodle named Brady, somehow escaped the plane without injury and was picked up by an animal control officer a day after the crash.

Austin spent more than three months recuperating from his injuries, which included a serious head injury, with a punctured lung and broken ribs and collarbone, at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City and finally returned home to Fort Wayne in early October.

On Dec. 1, Austin's family released a statement saying he will likely not be returning to the basketball court this season. His family said he's making great strides in his rehabilitation, but the first year is vital to the recovery process and it's unlikely his doctors will clear him to play during his junior season.

In its preliminary report on the crash, the National Transportation Safety Board said Stephen Hatch told Charlevoix Municipal Airport that he was executing a GPS approach to the 4,550-foot runway. Witnesses said the cloud ceiling was 200 feet above ground level and visibility was 1 mile. Hatch's Beechcraft A36 broke out of the clouds about halfway down the runway. The plane's engine then increased power, the report said, before making a left turn and a turn back to the right around a water tower before crashing into the yard near the airport. The National Transportation Safety Board report doesn't state a cause for the crash.

The crash in Charlevoix was the second plane accident Austin Hatch survived. He and his father lived through a 2003 crash that killed Hatch's mother and two siblings. His father was flying the place then, too.

REVIEW

Morley, 51, and crew member Suzanne Makowski-Bickel, 41. A competing vessel, the Sociable, rescued the other six crew members from the Saginaw-based yacht.

The Charlevoix County medical examiner determined that Morley and Makowski-Bickel drowned after severe head trauma made them incapable of saving themselves. After an 11-week investigation, Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said the crew acted properly and no one was at fault in the accident. Although in his report Schneider said sailing officials will need to evaluate the appropriate use of personal flotation devices and tethers, a investigation by U.S. Sailing, the governing body for sailboat racing in the United States, concluded those devices were not factors in the deaths.

The U.S. Sailing report instead criticized the design of the WingNuts boat, saying its sail area was too large for its weight under the conditions of the long Great Lakes competition.

"WingNuts was a highly inappropriate boat for a race of this duration, overnight, without safety boats, and in an area known to have frequent violent thunderstorms. Her capable crew and preparation could not make up for the fact that she had too little stability, which led to her being blown over by a severe gust," stated the report, which was requested by the Chicago Yacht Club, the race organizer.

The U.S. Sailing report praised WingNuts' crew and the boat's preparation before the storm, and it also praised the crew of Sociable, the boat that rescued WingNuts' survivors and coordinated the search and rescue.

The deaths were the first in 190 races that the Chicago Yacht Club has hosted.

Gregory murder

A Charlevoix-area woman accused of killing her mother earlier this year took advantage of a plea agreement that will significantly reduce the amount of time she could face behind bars.

Earlier this month, Sandra Gregory, 74, entered a plea of no-contest to a charge of manslaughter, a 15-year-felony, in Charlevoix County's 33rd Circuit Court. In exchange for her plea, Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema agreed to drop the original charge of open murder, which is punishable by up to life in prison.

Gregory had been scheduled for a four-day jury trial beginning Feb. 6 on a charge of open murder in connection with the March 27 death of her 94-year-old mother, Amelia Patricia Gregory.

Gregory's attorney Kraag Lieberman had asserted an insanity defense early on in the case. Jarema said recently that the plea deal was the result of conflicting expert evaluations about Gregory's mental status.

Emergency crews were called to the Gregory residence south of Charlevoix around 8 p.m. on March 27 to a report of a deceased elderly woman in the residence.

According to court documents, Gregory told police that earlier in the day her mother had told her she would rather be with her dead husband than be admitted to a nursing home and that sometime after that conversation she attempted to smother her mother with a pillow and then hit her on the head with a lamp.

She is scheduled to be sentenced on the charge at 9 a.m. on Friday, Jan. 6, 2012.

Angels among us

Financial woes continued to plague many sectors of the community and government. Schools continued to be particularly hard-hit across the state. Although the purse strings still remain very tight for the Charlevoix Public Schools, the district was able to avoid the huge budget cuts and layoffs that it saw in 2010. The school board was also able to work out a two-year contract with its teacher and support staff unions without the bitter acrimony that came with the process during previous year's negotiations.

Also after about a decade of steadily dropping numbers, the district's enrollment held steady, and might have even ticked up a student or two when the fall count took place this year.

But perhaps the brightest among the glimmers of hope to crop up this year was early successes of a school fundraising campaign dubbed "Investing in Our Future ... Our Students," that seeks to raise $200,000 for school programs over a three-year period. The effort, which is being spearheaded by the Charlevoix Schools Foundation and administered by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, is built on the foundation of $120,000 that has been offered up by four anonymous donors in the form of matching funds for money that is contributed to the effort from the community at-large. District superintendent Chet Janik has been referring to the donors as "The Four Angels."

In late November, foundation officials announced the first round of grants to be awarded through the program totaling about $22,000. The grants support programs in the areas of health and wellness, science and mathematics, language arts and humanities, and fine arts.

And in a late development, at the Dec. 19 Charlevoix school board meeting, Janik announced that a fifth "Angel" has stepped forward, pledging another $30,000 in matching funds, bringing the total in matching funds to $150,000.

For more information about the "Investing in Our Future ... Our Students" campaign, contact Janik at (231) 547 8101 or cjanik@rayder.net.

Shelter from the ashes?

Emergency crews were called to a house at 801 State St. late July 4 to a report of a structure fire. The house, which was divided into separate apartments on each of its three floors, had flames coming from the second floor windows when fire crews arrived on the scene.

Two occupants were hospitalized briefly following the fire, but all of the occupants lost most of their belongings as the fire gutted the structure. The burned out building sat surrounded by yellow tape for several weeks and was ultimately torn down leaving a vacant lot at the corner of Garfield and State streets. Fire officials were not able to nail down an exact cause of the fire, but said it was accidental in nature.

But in the wake of recent events, it may turn out that there is a silver lining to be found inside the cloud of smoke for those in need.

After debating what to do with vacant parcel, Charles Rehmann of Alanson Development Group, learned of a project envisioned by Third Day Ministry and Outreach pastor Ginger Stevens to establish a shelter for homeless women and children in the community. He said the property seemed to be a perfect fit for the project and donated the land for the shelter.

The plan for the Joppa House — as Stevens plans to name the shelter — calls for a facility that can house up to 14 residents and two innkeepers. The operation would offer a sliding scale day care service in the basement, as well.

To house all that, the Diocese of Gaylord has agreed to donate the house that formerly served as a convent on the St. Mary Church property less than a block away from the site of the donated land.

The estimated cost of moving the house is about $10,500 and another $15,000 to build a new basement and foundation.

With the deed to the property securely in hand and a building to put on the land at the ready, the next big hurdle for the project will be getting approval from the city.

It will be up to the city's zoning board of appeals — likely at its January meeting, to determine if the proposed shelter qualifies as a "church-related structure." If that happens, it would clear the way, zoning-wise for the project to move forward.

Stevens said she is hopeful — if all goes well, the shelter could be operating sometime next spring.

Donations can be sent to Third Day Fellowship, P.O. Box 174, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. Donors should note in the memo line whether their donation is for the Joppa House shelter, the ministry operations fund, or the food pantry program.

2012: In with the new, out with the old

Steve Zucker
Courier Editor

Year-end issues of many newspapers focus on looking back on what major events shaped the news landscape for the past 12 months (see page 1).

But as this year closes, we are looking both forward and back as it's truly going to be "in with the new and out with the old" as we ring in the new year here at the Charlevoix Courier.

If you didn't see my column two weeks ago, or the display ads for the past several weeks, we're going to be changing things up a bit with the Courier after the first of the year.

You have before you, the last Wednesday, tabloid-sized edition of the Charlevoix Courier. (Well, sort of, more on that a little later.) So, hang on to it. It might be a collector's item some day.

Beginning the week of Jan. 6, the Courier will be switching from a Wednesday to a Friday publication. It will be on newsstands late Thursday afternoon now instead of late Tuesday afternoon.

At the same time the publication date changes, we'll also be changing the paper from its current tabloid size to what's known as a "broadsheet" size. This is the more standard newspaper size that publications such as our sister publication the Petoskey News-Review uses.

The overall size of the paper — that is, the space available for printing, will not be changing, it'll just be oriented differently. The new format will be in two sections with news, features, business and community news in the "A" section and sports and classifieds in the "B" section. The new format will also come with an updated look to the paper. We've spent several months working on new design elements that we hope will make the paper more attractive and user-friendly.

As I explained in my earlier column, we believe the changes will offer many benefits to our readers and advertisers including a publication date that coincides with the weekend, more back-of-section color advertising space, and many more.

And if changing the date and look of the paper wasn't enough, we're throwing one more twist into the mix — just for our subscribers.

For the first four weeks of the year, subscribers will be getting two issues of the Charlevoix Courier in their mailboxes each week.

This is being done to purposely confuse you.

No, not really. In fact, we hope it will help ease you into the transition from the Wednesday to the Friday publication day. Let's face it, we are all creatures of habit, and we don't want to go messing with your internal weekly clock all at once. You might

Correction Note

Because of a production error, the column appearing on the opinion page in the Wednesday, Dec. 21 edition of the Charlevoix Courier under the headline "Public education and profit don't mix," mistakenly carried the name and photo of Courier columnist Gayle Gennett. The column was, in fact, written by the Courier's other regular columnist Roger Knutson. The column on this page, this week is actually Gayle's.

Listening: More relationship wisdom

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

An article I previously wrote titled "Getting Married is Easy, Staying Married is Hard," created quite a stir and numerous hits online. It seemed as if readers were looking for answers and guidance in the realm of relationships. Thus, this week's column will reveal more tidbits about caring, living with and loving someone.

Sometimes we senior citizens feel the need to share our thoughts on life because we think we have all the answers. Right, wrong or indifferent, the voice in our head tells us to do so — or maybe I'm just hearing voices. What will follow are my words of wisdom that I assure you will not appear in any Hallmark card soon. Grandma was known for sharing her thoughts and I inherited that trait, so the tradition continues.

1. It's far better to learn about the person you are with rather than to try to educate them on your method of doing things. Who's to say your way is the better or the right way.

2. We are all individuals, but a relationship works best as a team concept. When criticizing and correcting is part of the correlation, the feeling you have for each will naturally break down.

3. We need people to listen and not always give advice and it's helpful to reflect making certain you are understood correctly. For example: "So you're telling me..." and then repeat so the speaker knows you understand.

4. A unity candle at a wedding may blend two into one but that doesn't mean you need to lose your identity in the process.

5. We all need a quiet space and time to ourselves now and again. That's why sewing rooms and man caves were invented.

6. Separation can help you appreciate what you have in each other and then when you do spend quality time sharing an activity it's even more fun.

7. Don't give up an activity you really love (as long as it legal and not harming anyone). I don't think it's healthy to give up what you like to do just to make someone happy. Again, you may need to refer back to item number three on the list. You are who you are and marriage doesn't change that.

8. In this McDonald's society of quick fixes, patience is still one of the best qualities to keep in marriage. My dad always said "steady as she goes, stay on course." He was referring to the subs he maneuvered, but it can apply to relationships too.

9. I think we've lost the art

LETTER to the editor

Setting the record straight

Editor:

In the Wednesday, Dec. 21, News-Review, my wife of 38 years and I are listed as having been granted a divorce in Charlevoix County. This is, in fact, not true. Glenda and I continue to live together as husband and wife and hope to continue this wonderful relationship for many years to come. We respectfully request that this be printed and that your article be corrected so that our friends and family know the truth.

Thomas F. and Glenda C. Conlan
Charlevoix

Editors note: The Charlevoix County Circuit Court action listing Thomas Conlan refers to in his letter, "Glenda Conlan vs. Thomas Conlan" that appeared on page A2 of the Wednesday, Dec. 21, edition of the Petoskey News-Review and page 2 of the Wednesday, Dec. 21, edition of the Charlevoix Courier under the heading of recent divorces, was not, in fact, a divorce judgement. The action was actually a "judgement for separate maintenance," which is nearly the same as a divorce except it does not legally "dissolve the bonds of matrimony" as a divorce does. The action was erroneously included with the rest of the divorces because it has the same case code and appears no differently on the court's docket than a true divorce case.

LOOKING BACK...

For the nation's bicentennial in 1976, Charlevoix decided to bake the world's biggest cherry pie. Will-Flow manufacturer made the 3,700-pound stainless steel tin with a volume of 479,000 cubic inches. It had a diameter of 14.2 feet, was 33 inches high, and held 2,073 gallons. Medusa Cement built a special oven at the plant on South Point. The filling consisted of 5,850 pounds of tart red cherries, 3,850 pounds of cherry juice, 4,750 pounds of sugar, 740 pounds of cornstarch, 360 pounds of tapioca, 180 pounds of butter, 90 pounds of lemon juice, and 20 pounds of salt, all totaling 15,480 pounds and mixed in a dump truck. The 1,590-pound crust of flour, shortening, water, milk, salt and baking powder was prepared in a cement mixer and rolled out with a lawn roller. The combined weight of pie and tin was just over 10.5 tons, hoisted into the oven by a 25,000-ton crane. Almost 7,000 people showed up to eat 10,000 pieces of pie. The project made the Guinness Book of World Records and was named one of the nation's top 20 Bicentennial events. At left, holding the knife, is Herb Orvis of Ironton, who played football with the Detroit Lions.

of flirting with our spouses. Not obscene words and gestures, but a smile saying our loved one's name or pet name you've given them and then say something positive about them.

10. Twice during this week while speaking with other women the topic of cuddling came into the conversation. In this world I think we all need more of it and if our significant others would do just that it would help you both to reconnect.

11. Things to remove from your conversations are: "You never...or you always."

12. When in a discussion or conversation, don't cut your partner off. It's hard but try not interrupting. You may actually learn more about what he/she is trying to explain and they will feel they've been listened to, even if you don't agree.

13. Don't cause yourself unneeded stress by comparing yours to someone else's relationship or what you think a good relationship should look like. We choose partners who meet our needs and I am hopeful that growing together will mean being open to working out issues as a lifelong adventure.

14. Marriage and friendships are both a labor of love.

15. Celebrate each other's achievements and be certain that more nice things are said to each other than negative.

16. If you focus on meeting Mr. and Ms. Right you won't find them. Instead focus on a life filled with things you like to do which will lead to meeting interesting people who are interested in doing things you like to do.

NEW YEAR

end up putting the trash out or taking the kids to piano lessons on the wrong day.

(Since I've been the editor here at the Courier, about the only time my former coworkers at the Petoskey News-Review see me is on Tuesday mornings when I'm in their office finishing up the last bits of the week's production work on the Courier. When I show up there for a meeting or seminar on some other day of the week, it messes with them. I'm often tempted to stroll in there on a Friday morning and give people a momentary panic that they've been teleported back to Tuesday.)

So, here's what will show up in subscribers' mailboxes in January: On Wednesdays (for local addresses) you will receive a "special" edition of the Courier. It will be eight pages, in the tabloid size and appearance of the "old" Courier style. The "special" edition will contain mostly classified advertising, but will have some photos and a bit of news content on the first page or two. We hope to use the space available for news content to give you a look ahead to what will be coming up in that week's "real" edition of the paper.

The new and improved "real" version of the Courier will then be in your mailbox on Friday (again, for local addresses).

There will be no additional charge to subscribers for these "special" editions.

In addition to helping subscribers segue into the new publication date, these Wednesday editions also allow us to fulfill the needs of the folks who place legal advertising with us as we transition from a Wednesday to a Friday publication.

It will also give you a two day head start on shopping the deals in the classifieds.

Also, as I noted in my earlier column, one thing that won't be changing is our commitment to bringing you the best news, sports and community events coverage both through our print and online editions.

I'd also like to take this opportunity thank all those in the community who continue to support us through your readership, advertising and in many other ways.

It's an honor to serve as the editor of your local community newspaper.

Here's to a safe and prosperous 2012.

Former sheriff releases latest veterans book

World War I the focus of George T. Lasater's most recent project

SHERI MCWHIRTER/NEWS-REVIEW

Retired Charlevoix County sheriff George T. Lasater released his latest historical book, "Charlevoix County's Contribution to World War I."

Former Charlevoix County sheriff George T. Lasater just penned a new book about the region's veterans.

The book, "Charlevoix County's Contribution to World War I," follows up on his first book published in 2008 called "Charlevoix County's Contributions to World War II." All proceeds from the sale of the two books will benefit local veteran memorials across the county, Lasater said.

The new book — and even the older book — would make a meaningful gift for a local veteran, he said.

Lasater, a U.S. Air Force veteran, said he intends to continue writing books in his retirement, including one about his 32 years as the county sheriff, followed by books about the region's Korean and Vietnam war veterans. The publications are a way for him to "give back" to the community he loves, he said.

The latest book wasn't as easy to compile as the first because there aren't any World War I veterans still living. In comparison, Lasater interviewed about 200 veterans for the World War II book.

But that doesn't mean he didn't unearth some interesting tales about the region's World War I time period.

"We lost more soldiers from pneumonia and the flu than we lost from being killed in action," Lasater said.

Ernest Hemingway is perhaps the most famous local World War I veteran, though he wasn't originally from here. However, Hemingway spent a lot of time in Charlevoix County's Horton Bay following his service.

"He wasn't from here, but he recuperated here," Lasater said.

Lasater also reveals other interesting stories.

"The county has always been very patriotic. It was popular to buy war bonds. Everybody would buy war bonds. Well, nearly everyone," Lasater said.

One story in the new book involves a German immigrant who lived on the eastern side of Charlevoix County. He refused to buy war bonds and publicly said the United States shouldn't be involved in the war — that Germany was right.

A mob returned to the immigrant's farm soon after and those involved pulled the man from his bed in the middle of the night so they could tar and feather him. The farmer survived the attack, Lasater said.

Also, draft-dodging became a problem during the World War I time frame. Some interesting stories came out of that trend, as well, Lasater said.

Local historian Linda Mueller helped Lasater compile the new book. She owns Castle Farms in Charlevoix with her husband, Richard, and they strived to restore war-era buildings on the grounds. Castle Farms also has a World War I museum on site.

On the new book's cover is a local World War I veteran named Harry Potter, who died from illness. The cover also features the grave site for World War I veteran Joseph E. Power.

Both the World War I and II books are available at Local Flavor, a book shop in downtown Boyne City. They cost $20 and $35, respectively.

New officer joins police force

Traeger

The Charlevoix Police Department recently welcomed a new full-time police officer to the force.

Jason Traeger, 26, joined the department on Dec. 12 and following some days of orientation and training is now patrolling the streets of Charlevoix.

Traeger is originally from Manistee County and is a graduate of Bear Lake High School. He attended the police academy and earned an associates degree in criminal justice from West Shore Community College in Scottville.

Before coming to the Charlevoix Police Department, Traeger most recently worked for the Pokagon Band of Potawatami Tribal Police Department for three years. That department covers three counties in southwest Michigan. He also worked for two years as part-time Berrien County Sheriff's Office deputy. He also has worked in loss prevention with Kmart, at a grocery store and at Crystal Mountain.

Traeger, who is married with no children, said he's looking forward to getting to know the Charlevoix community and he believes his roots growing up in a small town will serve him well in his new position.

Traeger said in his free time he enjoys hunting and fishing.

Benefit planned for Ellsworth business fire victim

Community members in Ellsworth are planning a benefit dinner to help local business owner Brian Lemond and his family, whose business was destroyed by a fire earlier this month.

The event will take place from 5-7 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 14, at the Ellsworth High School gym, and will feature sloppy joes and macaroni salad prepared by The Front Porch Café, along with deserts donated by the community.

"This is the type of helping hand our community is noted for," said William Everett, executive director of The Front Porch Ministries, a local humanitarian outreach group that also operates The Front Porch Cafe, a nonprofit community cafe.

Lemond is the long-time owner of Ellsworth Auto Repair, a business destroyed by fire in early December. The loss included thousands of dollars in tools and diagnostic equipment, as well as a number of specialty vehicles and motorcycles.

For more information about the benefit or how donations are being handled, call William Everett at (231) 588-1017.

OBITUARIES

Joseph Etienne, 96

Joseph "The Skipper" Etienne, 96, of Charlevoix, passed away Dec. 19, 2011 at Charlevoix Area Hospital, one day before his 97th birthday.

Memorial services took place at 3 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 23 at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Matthew Wigdon of St. Mary Catholic Church officiated. A Masonic memorial service followed under the auspices of Charlevoix Lodge #282 F&AM, and a military salute concluded the services.

Joseph was born Dec. 20, 1914, in Turpange, Belgium, the son of Jeanne Pierre Etienne and Catherine Hebler. He immigrated to the United States in 1920 along with his parents and five brothers and sisters and settled in Wilmette, Ill. In 1932, at age 17, he enlisted in the U.S. Coast Guard. In his 28 years of service, he sailed the Atlantic, the Pacific and all of the Great Lakes.

In 1937, Joseph married Katherine "Kay" A. Peltonen. The two met in Wilmette when Kay was visiting her sister Ruth who had married Joe's older brother Nicholas. The Etiennes had six children.

During WWII, the U.S. Coast Guard was absorbed by the Navy and Etienne found himself in the South Pacific aboard the USS Hunter Liggett. Etienne was commissioned an ensign rising to senior lieutenant by the war's end. Thereafter, he reverted to his original status as chief warrant officer W-4. Etienne served the U.S. Coast Guard as commanding officer of four ships. He became chief warrant officer of the Charlevoix Lifeboat Station in 1947. In November of 1958, he coordinated the search and rescue efforts following the sinking of the freighter Carl D. Bradley. One of Etienne's most memorable experiences occurred in the summer of 1959 when Great Britain's Queen Elizabeth visited Mackinac Island. He was group commander based in Charlevoix and in charge of the water-related safety of the Queen's visit, for which he received numerous commendations from Washington D.C. and London. Etienne retired from the U.S. Coast Guard in December, 1960. He worked for Charlevoix County from 1962 to 1976 and retired as deputy sheriff.

Joseph is survived by four of his children: Joseph and his wife Chris of Charlevoix and Bonita Springs, Fla., Michael and his wife Norma of Naples, Fla., Robert of Naples, Fla., and Jeanine of Kauai, HI; seven grandchildren: Mark Etienne, Christine Etienne and her husband Dennis Lindeman, Neal Houseworth and his wife Amy, Stephanie Spencer-Gudith and her husband Scott, Susan Nowaczyk, Nicholas Etienne and Tyler Etienne; five great grandchildren Xavier Spencer, Mia Houseworth, Meg Houseworth, Sophia Gudith and Andrew Etienne, and a special friend Simonne Robinson. He was preceded in death by his wife Katherine, daughter Kathleen Etienne, son Donald Etienne, three brothers and three sisters.

Joseph was affiliated for many years with the Charlevoix VFW Post 1153, and the Charlevoix Masonic Lodge #282 F&AM.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix County Humane Society, 614 Beardsley St., Boyne City, MI 49712.

Those wishing to share a memory of Joseph, or condolences, may do so at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com

Evelyn Joyce Selph, 84

Evelyn Joyce Selph, 84, of East Jordan, passed away Thursday, Dec. 22, 2011, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan. She was born Jan. 17, 1927, in Grand Rapids, the daughter of Irwin and Marion (Hoyt) Hulett who preceded her in death. On Sept. 7, 1946, she married Gerald L. Selph. Evelyn enjoyed her family and liked knitting and doing crafts.

She will be lovingly remembered by her family, which includes her children, Pamela (John) Marek of Custer, Roger Selph of Buckley, Tim (Leah) Selph of Charlevoix, Julie (Mike) Wood of Petoskey; grandchildren, Annette, Amy, Mikey, Sarah, Mary, and Gordie; seven great-grandchildren; sisters, Phyllis J. Cook, Sally (Don) Lueck; brothers, Jerry (Chris) Hulett, Bruce Hulett, and David (Barb) Hulett. Evelyn's brother, Max Hulett, preceded her in death.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, 220 West Garfield, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

A memorial service will take place at a later date. The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling the arrangements.

Charlevoix State Bank marks 5 years in Ellsworth

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

ELLSWORTH — Opened in May of 2006, Charlevoix State Bank's Ellsworth branch is celebrating five years of serving the local community's financial needs.

Having no local bank, in 2000 members of the Ellsworth community approached former Charlevoix State Bank president John Kurtz about opening a branch in the Ellsworth area.

"Although we didn't immediately open a branch, the bank began offering courier services to the Ellsworth community and put in an ATM," said Leah Olson, marketing director for the bank.

As the customer base grew, the bank decided to look into a permanent location. In 2003, Dave Atkins, then the bank's East Jordan market manager, began working with Hugh Campbell, president of the village, to develop a plan and locate a site.

After two years of planning and development of the project, construction of the new branch began in 2005.

"Tim Reid and Richard Hodgson, then-chairman of the bank, performed much of the work and handled the general contractor duties," Olson noted.

Charlevoix State Bank emphasizes its local beginnings, and the fact that it has remained a locally grown business.

"Even though he's retired, our ex-chairman is still our go-to guy for building projects as well as our best employee picnic grill master," Olson said.

Construction was completed in early 2006 and the new branch officially opened on May 23. As a satellite of the Charlevoix State Bank, the branch offers full service banking to the Ellsworth community.

"Members are able to take care of all their needs at the branch, which is open full time," Olson noted.

Charlevoix State Bank is the only bank headquartered in Charlevoix County. The bank is locally owned with a board of directors which resides within its market area of Charlevoix, East Jordan, Ellsworth and Beaver Island.

"We think it shows our tie to the community we serve and live in," Olson said.

The bank as a whole employs 41 people in the Charlevoix, East Jordan, Ellsworth and Beaver Island communities, with Ellsworth maintaining one full-time teller.

"Our primary Ellsworth staff person also resides in town," Olson said. "We think knowing the people you serve is a valuable thing. We appreciate the home-town feel we have."

Charlevoix State Bank offers full-service banking including mortgages, free Internet banking, free bill pay and ATM service at its branches.

"Our branches are also dog and child friendly," Olson said. "We always welcome new pets and babies along with visits from our old friends."

With branches in Charlevoix, East Jordan, Ellsworth and Beaver Island, Charlevoix State Bank serves most of the northwestern Northern Michigan area.

The Ellsworth branch is located at 9136 Main St. in Ellsworth. Hours are 9 a.m.-12:30 p.m. and 1:30-3 p.m. Monday through Friday. They also offer extended drive-through hours and full service ATM banking on site.

For more information on Charlevoix State Bank, visit www.charlevoixstatebank.com, or call (231) 588-211 for the Ellsworth branch and (231) 547-4411 for the main Charlevoix branch.

Rayders defeat Blue Devils, earn first conference win

KALKASKA — Four players scored in double figures as the Rayders rolled to their first Lake Michigan Conference win Tuesday, Dec. 20.

Andrew Plude had a game-high 18 points, Charlie Hamilton added 16, Andrew Potter had 13, and Sawyer Russell finished with 10 as the Rayders improved to 3-2 overall, 1-1 league.

The Rayders held a 41-27 halftime lead, then outscored the Blazers, 25-9, in the third to turn it into a rout.

Plude

"We actually started out a little slow," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said. "Defense and rebounding early on was a weakness, but we responded well after halftime. We pressed most of the game, created some easy shots and got out and ran like the Rayders of old."

Hamilton

Potter finished with seven assists.

For Kalkaska, 0-4, 0-1, Lee Archer had 13 points, while Nate Cummings and Caleb Gelinas each added 10 points.

"It's nice to have a winning record going into the break," Wood said. "It was a good effort and if we can continue to balance the scoring, not only is it fun for the kids but it makes it difficult for opponents to stop us."

Charlevoix won the JV game, 67-33, as Justin Pearl had 14 points, and C.J. Rice and Zach Hankins had 10 points apiece.

After the Christmas break, the Rayders will resume their schedule with a home game against Suttons Bay on Tuesday, Jan. 3 and then will travel to Elk Rapids on Friday, Jan. 6.

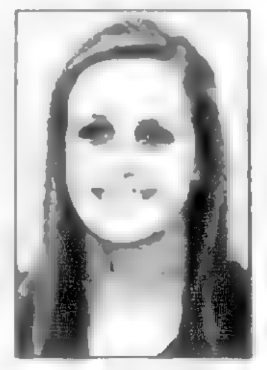
GIRLS BASKETBALL

4th quarter comeback not enough

Kelli Guy and Jamie Myas put on a shooting exhibition in leading Kalkaska past Charlevoix, 68-48 Tuesday, Dec. 20 in a Lake Michigan Conference game on the Rayders' home court.

Guy finished with a game-high 24 points, while Myas connected on seven 3-pointers and added 21 points as the Blazers held off a late Rayder surge to improve to 4-1 overall, 1-0 league.

Kalkaska was in front 48-39 at the end of the third quarter before the Rayders, 3-3, 1-1, cut the deficit to six points midway through the fourth quarter.



Way

"We had them rattled for sure," Charlevoix coach Leslie Hoffman said. "But give both Guy and Myas credit, for them to shoot the lights out like they did is not going to happen on a consistent basis. I thought defensively, we got after it for the most part."

Carlson

Jenna Way had 15 points and seven steals for the Rayders, while Sydney Carlson added 14 points.

"I didn't think the score reflected the game," Hoffman added. "We played smart, we played well defensively and we didn't get into foul trouble."

Kalkaska won the JV game, 73-50. For Charlevoix, Jennaca Holecheck had 15 points and Courtney Putman added 11.

Following the Christmas break, the Rayder girls will resume their schedule when they host St. Ignace on Wednesday, Jan. 4 and then travel to Elk Rapids on Friday, Jan. 6.

WRESTLING

Rayders fall at Kalkaska

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team lost a tri-meet against Traverse City St. Francis and host Kalkaska on Wednesday, Dec. 21.

The Rayders fell to Traverse City St. Francis 78-6 and to Kalkaska 39-18.

Against Traverse City St. Francis, Sam Hovie, wrestling at 160, had the only points won by Charlevoix on a void.

Myles Kerr, 152, Mark Durkee, 171, Tanner Seese, 189, and Devon Largent, 215, were all pinned by their opponents

Traverse City won the other nine weight classes by voids.

Against Kalkaska, Sam Hovie, 160, pinned Leanne Kneer in 14 seconds; Tanner Seese, 189, won by void; Devon Largent, 215, won by void; Kerr, 145, lost by points; Durkee, 171, lost by pin; Kalkaska won five other weight classes by voids.

The Rayder wrestling team is next scheduled to be in action on Saturday, Jan. 7 at Petoskey High School.

Winter baseball camp slated for January 22

Oakland University's baseball coaches will conduct the sixth annual Northern Michigan Winter Baseball Camp at Charlevoix High School on Sunday, Jan. 22.

The camp is open to players in grades 7-12. Because of the large number of attendees in past years, organizers strongly recommend registration in advance as sessions are limited to 18 campers. This will ensure that each camper receives one-on-one instruction from Division I coaches.

The camp schedule is as follows: Hitting (session 1): 10-11 a.m., infield defense (session 1): 11 a.m-noon; pitching and catching (session 1): noon-1 p.m.; hitting (session 2): 2-3 p.m.; infield defense (session 2): 3-4 p.m.; pitching and catching (session 2): 4-5 p.m.

Cost of the camp is $40 per session or $100 for three sessions.

For further information or registration forms, contact Charlevoix baseball coach Allen Telgenhof at atelgenhof@chartermi.net or (231) 547-3400.

Blood drives — As we wrap up the month of December and enter into the new year, the Red Cross would like people to remember that January is the perfect time to honor those who help others through the simple act of giving blood. Since 1970, January has been known as National Blood Donor Month. It's a time when the American Red Cross pays tribute to the nearly 11 million people who give blood each year, and encourage others to make a resolution to help save lives this year by donating the gift of life. January is a challenging time for blood donation because cold and snowy weather and busy post-holiday schedules can make it difficult for blood donors to keep appointments. To schedule a donation time or get more information about giving blood or platelets, people can visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

St. Mary School students recently participated in an event through which they were allowed to wear jeans to school in echange for donating a pair of socks to Third Day Fellowship & Outreach. The socks were included in the Christmas giving to outreach clients. Third day pastor Ginger Stevens said the donation struck a chord with her personally because she remembers not having socks as a child. Stevens said her first grade year, other children would make fun of her for not having socks and she would try to hide her ankles under her desk to avoid embarrassment. Pictured above presenting the student-donated socks are (from left), Lauren House, Olivia Jeakle, Alexandria Snabes, Karagon Poole and principal Nancy Philp. The students also collected and donated $113 towards the sock project.
